Stand on Canning Reversed by CU

WASINGTON —Consumers Union is reversing itself on some widely distributed and controversial home canning advice that two government agencies said was faulty if not dangerous.

But despite the reversal stand, CU predicts in the long run it will be proved correct.

Extra Session Looms On Court Reform

ALBANY —Although there is still no solution to the partisan impasse over court reform, Gov. Hugh Carey has proposed a special session of the legislature to deal with the issue.

Carey broached the possibility with leaders of the Democratic majority in the Assembly and representatives of the Republican Senate majority at a meeting in New York on Tuesday.

Cost of Living Went Up in June

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of living, pushed by spiraling fuel prices, climbed 0.5 per cent in June, the government reported today.

Although June's consumer price rise was slightly less than the 0.6 per cent increase recorded in May, it still represents the second highest one-month increase this year.

The annual rate increase works out to 6 per cent. And despite today's Labor Department report, administration economists stood by predictions that inflation will ease in coming months and average about 5.7 per cent for the year.

Guerillas May Hit Rhodesia's Cities

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Military sources say Tuesday's two grenade attacks in the heart of Salisbury could signal the start of urban guerrilla warfare against Rhodesia's white minority government.

Police said the two Chinese-style grenades exploded within two minutes of each other, blowing a hole in the floor of a restaurant, destroying a car outside a nightclub and wounding at least two persons.

Military sources said the attacks raised the possibility of guerrilla warfare in cities across Rhodesia.

New Cheat Boards Convene at Point

WEST POINT (UPI) — Officials at the U.S. Military Academy say new boards of officers are expected to convene today to begin reviewing the cases of 28 cadets accused of cheating.

Tuesday, other boards convicted two more junior cadets of cheating and deliberated the fates of 12 others. In addition, officials said cheating charges had been brought against 12 more juniors.

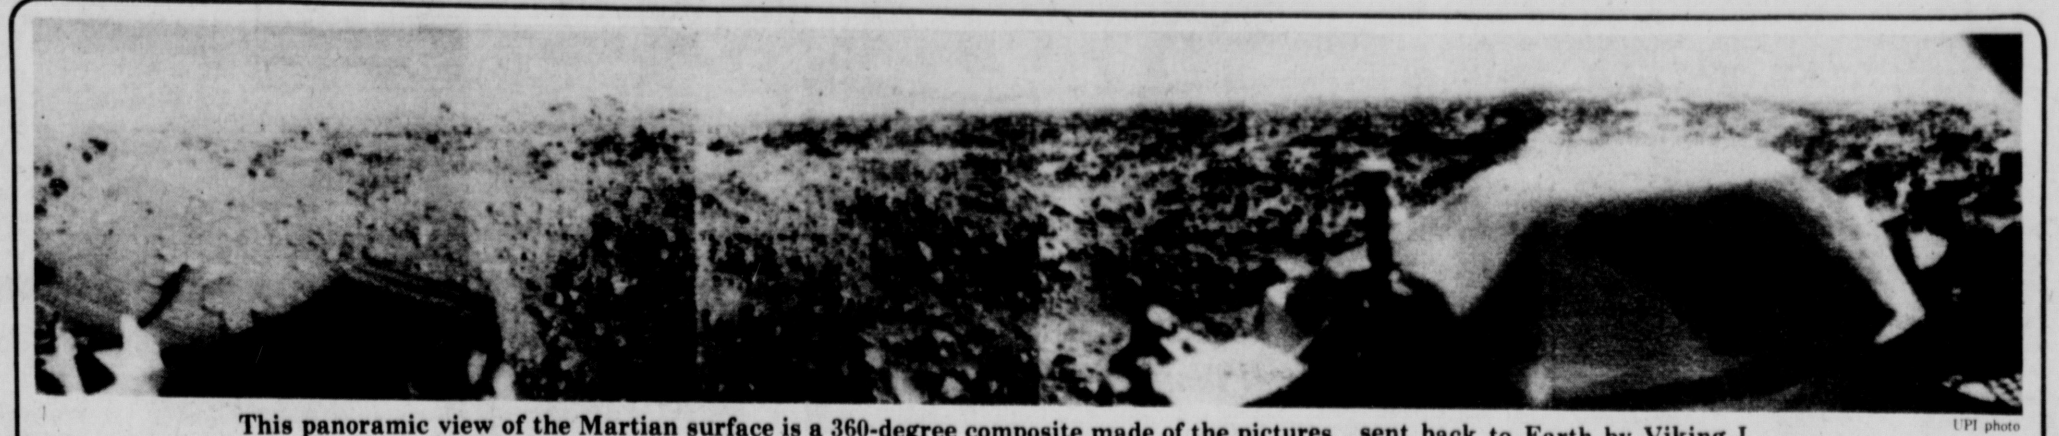

The total number of 184 cadets have now accused of collaborating on a March electrical engineering takehome examination. Officer boards have sustained cheating charges against 29 of 37 cadets whose cases have been reviewed.

This panoramic view of the Martian surface is a 360-degree composite made of the pictures sent back to Earth by Viking I

Viking Bolstering Martian Life Theories

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 1 radioed back a narrow picture of the rocky Martian surface today to add to results that already suggest Mars had the stuff necessary for life to have developed on the planet at some earlier age.

Earth control resumed radio contact with the nuclear-powered spacecraft, now a surface observatory, after Viking had weathered its first night in the cold desolation of the Martian desert called Chryse.

Whether or not there is any life on Mars now, is a question biologists hope Viking will answer. The first results from its three biology instruments are expected in three weeks. The initial two photos Tuesday and the new one today did not shed any light on the ages-old question.

Today's black and white picture was much narrower than the first two because the spacecraft transmitted the image directly to Earth for the first time. This meant less data could be sent than when Viking was using its orbiting mothercraft as a relay satellite.

Viking began its scientific observations as it descended into the thin Martian atmosphere. That information was analyzed during the night and scientists reported early today the discovery that Mars' atmosphere has about three per cent nitrogen and 1.5 per cent argon.

These findings have important implications for Mars' early history and the possibility that life may have evolved at some earlier age on the planet.

Dr. Michael McElroy, an atmospheric scientist from Harvard University, said the data suggest that Mars had a nitrogen-rich atmosphere billions of years ago. Nitrogen is a key to the origin and support of Earth-type life.

Although there is only three per cent nitrogen in the Mars atmosphere now, according to the preliminary data, McElroy said it is more easily broken

NO NAZIS — Zoning board member Florence S. Ludlow has words outside the hearing room at Kingston City Hall Tuesday night with longhaired petitioners Charles S. Lanier Jr., at right, and Martin W. Pulver III, in right background. Mrs. Ludlow, a feisty 4-foot-11 and 97 pounds, told the men ohe considered a Nazi flag in their house window "unsightly." The men said that was irrelevant to their request to add an apartment at 587-591 Abeel St. "Heck, we're no bunch of Nazis," said Pulver, a 6-foot-4, 330-pound member of "The Breed," a motorcycle club. "In our area, everybody knows us and likes us." There were no neighborhood objections to their petition.

Light Asked for Hospital Helicopters

150-Foot Tower Planned

KINGSTON — A request to erect a microwave tower 150 feet above ground at the New York Telephone Co. building on Broadway was heard by the Kingston Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) Tuesday night, prompting an alderman's call for a safety light to protect hospital-bound helicopters.

ZBA Chairman James C. Plunket agreed with Alderman Titus B. Sims, R-13th Ward, that the telephone company should arrange with the proper federal authorities to mark the tower for aircraft using the emergency heliport at Benedictine Hospital, less than 2,000 feet away.

"I have to have some assurances," said Sims, getting a promise from the company that it would supply him copies of all correspondence with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) and Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

The tower itself would be only 75 feet high, but it would be erected atop the building, another 75 feet high, to hold a shrouded parabolic dish connecting Kingston to a new statewide microwave network for toll and long distance phone service.

If approved by all the agencies involved, the strutted steel tower could be ready by next summer, when the company is predicting "real problems" if no new service capacity is added, engineer Daniel Hagadorn said.

In its line-of-sight connection with Poughkeepsie to the south, the tower's beamed signal would clear all natural and manmade objects by at least 80 feet, engineer John Sullivan said.

Eventually, the network will be beaming signals north, he said.

"Is this higher than the steeple on the Old Dutch Church?" asked board clerk Ella Clausi, more from curiosity than anything else. No one knew for sure, but the Freeman later learned that the historic steeple is at least 50 feet higher than the tower would be.

More than a dozen blocks uptown from the telephone building, the church is protected in its immediate area by an ordinance prohibiting any construction higher than the base of its steeple, some 65 feet.

The microwave tower would use a frequency of 1,100 megahertz, about 100 times higher than standard and public safety broadcast, but its energy level would be less than two watts, harmless at all but the immediate face of the unidirectional dish, Sullivan said.

Microwave is environmentally better and less costly than the alternatives, overhead or underground cables, Hagadorn said.

"I just worry about those helicopters," Sims said. "They come from all directions, and there are the schools right there."

The telephone building sits across West O'Reilly Street from Kingston High School. Between there and Bene lictine Hospital are the Myron J. Michaels Junior High School and the Sophie Finn Elementary School.

Library Survey Shows Most City Patrons Favor A Move to Uptown

KINGSTON — The Kingston Area Library today released a survey showing most users are in favor of relocating the library uptown to an urban renewal site on Converse Street.

However, the matter still hinges on the opinions of those controlling the site and the municipal purse strings — the urban renewal commissioners and the city aldermen.

"We could begin construction within two months, if we had the site," said Carolyn M. Short, library trustee and chairman of the four-month survey covering 471 household heads in Kingston, about 5 per cent of the city's families, plus 115 non-resident family heads.

The survey, based on families who contributed to the library from November to April, showed 53 per cent of residents interviewed and 51 per cent non-residents were in favor of the Converse Street move.

Some 28 per cent resident and 23 per cent non-resident opinion favored rebuilding or renovating on the present site at 399 Broadway. Others favored another central rather than uptown location.

One surveyee even suggested relocating in the former post office building on Broadway, a building that was torn down several years ago.

Others want the library to stay near the high school.

The uptown plan would be first to rebuild the children's library, burned out last year, then follow with the main library's two other sections on the urban renewal site, as funds permit.

Clouding this simple plan, however, are prospects that the city may want to build a new uptown fire station on the same two-acre site and that the Kingston Common Council or the library trustees may not want to join there in a shared municipal structure.

Further, while the council gives final approval to the sale of the site, the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency (KURA) must attach a price tag set by a federally approved appraisal.

Urban Renewal Director James G. Connors said recent urban renewal sales have run nearly $1.50 per square foot, which would price the proposed library site at more than $100,000.

Library trustees have amassed only $185,000 so far in their building fund, which would just about cover the children's library.

Adding to the complexity is the library's funding structure — only about half from the municipal government, with other operating revenue from the school district and some from the county.

Anti-OTBers Give Up

KINGSTON — Anti-Off Track Betting (OTB) forces have abandoned their drive to put the issue on the November ballot, leaving the way clear for the proposal to become law on July 25.

"The effort seems to have expired" according to Rev. Gary Mehl of Immanuel Lutheran Church, who along with other church officials has been gathering signatures for a petition to put OTB up for referendum.

"The whole thing just died when Harry Thayer took sick." ne Rev. Mehl said Tuesday.

Thayer, a local radio executive, launched the county-wide fight in June stating his belief that the betting parlors would bring financial and moral ruin to residents, especially women.

The Council of Churches backed the Thayer drive and began circulating the petitions throughout their parishes.

Thayer has been hospitalized since a June 24th automobile accident.

"Nobody picked up the ball after his illness," the Rev. Mahl said. "Petitions were being delivered to Walter Maxwell (Thayer's stepson) at station WGHQ and he called me up and asked me what to do with them, so I picked them up."

The Rev. Mahl believes he has between two and three thousand signatures in his possession, far short of the 5,760 needed.

Local legislators both publically and privately expressed disappointment at the news .

"I would have welcomed a public referendum," said legislative Majority Leader Ernest Gardner "That way we could have settled the whole thing." Gardner is a member of the tax base study committee which proposed OTB for the county.

Richard D. Nace, also a member of that committee, echoed those sentiments, commenting that he feels the voters would have voted overwhelmingly in favor of off-track betting.

Privately, another legislator said he had hoped the matter would come to public vote "because it would get the issue off our backs. People would have gone for the proposal 10-to-one and no one could question the decision afterward."

What happens after the June 25 will be mostly routine, says committee chairman C. Freeman Lasher.

"The set-up and operation of OTB will be done by Donald Groth, executive director of Catskill OTB, and I guess things will just follow their natural course."

The only function left for the legislature will be to appoint a county representative to the state OTB Advisory Committee.

None of the committee member contacted cared to speculate on who that person might be.

"That will have to be a choice made by the entire legislature," said Lasher, who added that the Tax Base Committee had no recommendations to make at this time.

Decisions on where and when the first betting parlors will open in Ulster will be based on population surveys and other criteria developed by Catskill OTB. The regional corporation will also supervise the hiring and training of betting parlor personnel.

The first parlors are expected to be operating sometime in early September.

BLOWN UP — Christopher Ewart-Biggs, Britain's ambassador to Ireland, was killed in a landmine explosion near Dublin today. Also killed in the blast, which ripped apart Ewart-Biggs' official car, was an embassy secretary, and two other embassy personnel were injured. The flamboyant ambassador was a war hero, who wore a black monocle to cover the eye he lost at the Battle of Alamein in World War II.

Real Estate Sales Are Slow and Prices Are Dropping

By Lynn Mulvaney
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — Real estate prices have begun to drop as only one in 20 of the 500 properties on the market in Ulster County are selling. Two years ago, the county's Multiple Listing Service reported only about half that many houses for sale.

Land and farm sales have also dropped dramatically with no major land purchases recorded here during the past year. The general price level is about 20 per cent below 1974, according to real estate economist Walter Donnaruma.

The City of Kingston's 2.5 per cent decrease in population in 1973-73 is one reason for dropping real estate prices, Donnaruma believes, saying, "People make the value. The only place real estate value stays up is where there is a high and increasing incidence of population."

IBM's recent announcement that it is transferring its manufacturing division out of Kingston has begun to add more homes to the market with the resulting supply of homes exceeding the demand, according to some area realtors.

Prices are dropping at all levels of the market — for example: a substanti l reduction on a $137,000 house, cut to $112,000; a $70,000 house reduced to $66,000 and other homes cut from $42,000 to $39,400 and from $38,000 to $33,000.

"Some people are misguided and some of the houses are terribly overpriced," Donnaruma said.

George Rodriguez, president of Ulster County Board of Realtors, feels the seller has a right to ask whatever price he feels the property can bring. But, he said, through no fault of their own, sellers have been generally uninformed of what the market will bring.

Those homes most vulnerable to softening of prices here are in the $35,000 to $65,000 range.

While prices are coming down, "the real estate market is not collapsing," Rodriguez emphasizes."We have more listings of better quality..... good properties at market value prices. But prices do fall when supply exceeds demand."

The drop in sales amd more homes on the market is partially due to IBM, which in the immediate past has been a significant contributor to real estate transactions in the greater Kingston community.

Several realtors have indicated they felt that IBM's move may be contributing to the destroying of buyer confidence in the area but Rodriguez believes the fault lies with general economic conditions.

It is generally agreed, however, that the softening of real estate prices is real but what seems perhaps more significant is the inflationary trend seems to have ended. Prices simply are not going up anymore and they are dropping where there is an urgency to sell.

People in low income brackets have been practically frozen out of the real estate market and new home building has come to a virtual standstill.

People who buy a house at a comfortable price have been able to keep up with inflationary trends in home maintenance. Taxes, insurance, fuel, utilities and other home costs have all soared. But many people who purchased homes in the middle to upper brackets, and were living close to the dollar, have suffered, with a record-breaking number of foreclosures in the past few years the result.

Rodriguez would like to see new industry in the area so that no one industry can upset the economic balance of the community.

Donnaruma too, would intensify the effort to attract industry to the City of Kingston. At least 2,000 jobs have been lost here since 1950, he claims, pointing to the loss of Island Dock, Manhattan Shirt Co., Gant and other industries, as well as reductions in ship and boat building.

He sees opportunity to invite the retired to come to the Kingston area. Donnaruma believes they could find reasonable homes

Dr. Nichols Resigns Paltz Center Post

NEW PALTZ — Dr. Lois K. Nichols has resigned as acting principal of the Van den Berg Learning Center at SUNY-New Paltz.

"I took a two-year leave of absence from my regular job as professor of early childhood education. When my two years were up, I had to decide whether to stay at the center or resume my regular job. I went back to my regular job," Dr. Nichols said.

Dr. Nichols came to SUNY-New Paltz in 1960 as a member of the campus school staff. In 1968, after 24 years of teaching elementary school, she became coordinator of early childhood programs at the college.

Urges Opponent To Act

ERIE, Pa. (UPI) — Patricia Crawford of Chester County, the Republican nominee for state treasurer, expressed concern Tuesday over the lack of campaigning by her November opponent.

Robert E. Casey of Johnstown won the Democratic nomination because those who voted for him apparently mistook him for state Auditor General Robert P. Casey, who is not seeking reelection.

"I am quite concerned about this because people have to know that he is not what he had people think he was," she said. "I hope he starts campaigning soon, though I have seen no evidence of it."

Casey did virtually not campaigning for the primary.

She said she has visited 50 of the state's counties since the primary.

TLC Order For The Elephants

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Two Asian elephants seized after local authorities said they were mistreated will be leaving Buffalo — with their owner under orders to treat them with "tender loving care."

State Supreme Court Justice Frank J. Kronenberg Tuesday granted William Morris, the elephants' owner, permission to take his animals out of the Buffalo Zoo, after an agreement was worked out between Morris and Assistant State Attorney General Maryann S. Freedman.

The elephants, "Cora," and "Jewel," were taken from Morris July 9, after the Erie County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals found them housed in "deplorable" conditions and inadequately fed at a local carnival.

The SPCA charged that the elephants were apparently fed nothing more than grass for 12 hours and that the floor of the trailer they were kept in was covered with up to three feet of manure.

Freedman said the court agreement should result in the conditions being cleaned up and the elephants treated with "tender loving care," while they are in New York State.

PSC Plans Look Into Yellow Pages

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Public Service Commission will hold a hearing Aug. 3 to look into the methods the New York Telephone Co. uses in soliciting and placing Yellow Pages advertisements.

The commission said Tuesday the hearing was prompted by a complaint by Suffolk County Consumer Affairs Commissioner James Lack.

Lack claimed that a change in the maximum size of Yellow Pages advertisements would disadvantage advertisers who had gained preferential placement through long use of the previous maximum size advertisement.

The commission said the hearing, at which witnesses for the general public will be heard, would be extended for a second day if necessary. Later hearings will be held to obtain New York Telephone and other testimony, the PSC said.

Examiner David Schecter will preside over the hearing at State Office Building A in Hauppauge, Suffolk County.

Named To No. 2 FBI Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard G. Held, head of the FBI office in Chicago, has been named to direct the FBI's day-to-day operations as associate director of the agency.

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley selected Held Tuesday to succeed Nicholas P. Callahan, who was fired by Kelley Friday from the number two post.

Held, 66, has worked for the FBI for 35 years. Two years ago he won the Attorney General's distinguished service award.

The Justice Department refused to comment on a New York Times report suggesting that Callahan had been fired because of his connection with an FBI recreation fund.

The Times quoted a "well-informed" government official as saying the FBI recreation fund had been misused while the late J. Edgar Hoover was the agency's director.

The report said the fund was controlled for several years by Callahan.

Dentists Holding The Line

CHICAGO (UPI) — The American Dental Association says dentists use technology to increase their "productivity" but have kept fees generally in line with other consumer costs.

In a document presented Tuesday to a hearing before the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability, the ADA said a 10-year review showed average dentists' fees for 1975 was 61.9 per cent above the Consumer Price Index's of 100 in 1967.

The comparable index for all goods and services in 1975 was 61.2 per cent above the CPI, indicating dentists' fees "have not significantly outpaced increases in other consumer service prices."

The report said dental expenditures as a percentage of total health expenditures have decreased, from 8.4 per cent of the total health dollar in 1955, to 6.3 per cent in 1975.

The report said that in 1962, the average dentists in general practice had 1,164 patients and handled 3,119 visits. By 1972, the average dentist had 1,663 patients and 3,692 visits.

"It has been estimated that the development of the high-speed handpiece alone has increased dentists' productivity to the equivalent of adding 1,174 dentists to dental manpower," the report said.

Ulster County Going to Court For N.Y.C. Tab on a Snow Job

KINGSTON — Ulster County will go to court next week in an effort to collect $250,000 in unpaid snow-plowing bills from New York City.

The county claims it has spent $288,298.85 since 1960 to plow the roads around the Ashokan Reservoir. The city has paid the annual bill only once—$15,816.04 in 1974, leaving a debt of $272,482.81.

The reservoir, and the two rods surrounding it, Routes 28 and 28A, are undoubtedly owned by the New York City Board of Water Resources, county officials say.

"Within the next week, we will file a complaint and summons in New York County Supreme Court," said John J. Lynch, assistant county attorney.

"Last August, we filed a notice of claim, which we had to file before we could bring suit, and they just didn't pay," Lynch added.

New York City officials admitted that Ulster County's claim was valid. "You have a perfect right to be paid. The responsibility for snow-plowing is ours," said Marian Oppenheimer, a spokesman for the city Department of Water Resources.

The city has a long history of not picking up the tab, although the law suggests they have to pay or plow it themselves. "Under the Watershed Act of 1905, the city was required to to maintain the reservoir's roadways and that included plowing and sanding," said Maurice Rosenstock, Republican-Conservative candidate for 101st District Assemblyman.

"The city just never made any payments in the forties and fifties," Lynch said. "In 1960, a court case said the city is responsible for the roads, so we will try to collect from that date," he added.

The city and the county entered into a written contract in 1973. The county was paid for the first year of the contract, but has received nothing for 1975 and 1976.

"You should certainly file with the comptroller's office for the years 1960 to 1973. I haven't the slightest idea why the bills haven't been paid in 1975 and 1976," Ms. Oppenheimer said.

Lynch does not expect the city to just hand over the money. "They may claim that maintaining the roads doesn't include plowing them. When the summons and complaint are issued, they will have to respond. Otherwise, we can get a judgment of default against them," he said.

"Of course, we have to plow those roads for the people who live up there whether we get paid or not," he commented.

Ms. Oppenheimer didn't know who in the comptroller's office handled bills incurred by the Department of Water Resources. She said, "Things just don't get paid by the city as fast they do in private industry."

'OBVIOUS AS HELL'

LIVERMORE, Calif. (UPI) — The kidnapers of 26 children apparently buried in broad daylight a moving van which was used last Thursday to entomb their victims.

Newsmen Tuesday went to the rock quarry where the kidnapers took the children and the school bus driver they abducted 100 miles away at Chowchilla. Investigators dug up the van, which bore a sticker reading: "Find us first in the yellow pages."

The kidnap victims were forced to enter a tiny hole and descend a ladder into the van from which driver Ed Ray and some of the older youngsters clawed their way out 16 hours later.

Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates, who held a joint news conference with Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins, said the kidnapers used heavy equipment, such as a bulldozer, to bury the 30-foot-long van.

"I always say if you are going to commit the crime, be obvious as hell," said Bates. "If they had snuck around here with shovels at night, they would have been caught."

Bates said he still had no idea of the motive for the crime. "Whoever did it put a great deal of planning, effort and even money into it," he said.

The kidnapers prepared the van by cutting a hole in the top for an entryway and bored two five-inch holes that held exhaust fans. A 4-inch flexible hose 35 feet long extended from one of the holes into tree branches where it could not be seen. The van also was equipped with mattresses, a small amount of food and water and an improvised toilet.

The vehicle was originally owned by the Palo Alto Van and Storage Co., which sold it last November. The sheriffs declined further comment.

For New Paltz Students... Earn While They Also Learn

NEW PALTZ — Students at SUNY-New Paltz will get a chance to earn while they learn next year through the college's new federally-financed cooperative education program.

Next winter, about 25 upperclassmen will spend a semester receiving academic credit and a salary for working at a job related to the student's scholarly and career interests.

The $24,000 one-year grant, renewable for at least three years, will be used first to hire a director of cooperative education this summer. This person will arrange co-op jobs in the fall in cooperation with Ulster County Community College, which also is developing a co-op program.

"I hope the program can begin with at least one placement each in the areas of education, physical sciences, social sciences, the humanities and the fine arts," said Pamela Tate, director of innovative studies and field experience education.

She hopes to provide up to 80 students with one-semester job placements by 1978. When the program is fully underway, a student may expect up to three one-semester jobs in four years.

"The job is to be primarily a learning experience, and a place of employment secondarily," Ms. Tate said. "However, in many cases, it could serve as a trial for a student who might subsequently go to work full-time for his co-op employer."

Three-fifths of the college's 1,100 incoming students have indicated a strong interest in the co-op program, she noted.

"Co-op education will particularly help the high number of disadvantaged students we have," she added.

"Many are the first in their families to attend college and many have found that their degress are not enough to assure getting a good job. We believe that we can substantially increase these students' chances in the job market, as well as make the liberal arts experience more meaningful to them," she concluded.

down in Mars' upper atmosphere into nitrogen atoms than it is on Earth. Atomic nitrogen is the form that organisms need.

He said there is now enough nitrogen in Mars' atmosphere "to allow biology to go well if other conditions are right."

"The ionosphere is producing a shower of fertilizer for Mars," he said at a news briefing.

The presence of argon in the atmosphere, although far less abundant that some earlier data indicated, means Mars must have expelled gases from its hot interior at a rate about 25 times less than that which occurred on Earth. This, McElroy said, would suggest that Mars lost about 25 times less water than Earth.

But since Earth has so much water, McElroy said this means Mars still must have large amounts of water in a subsurface reservoir, probably in the form of ice.

Asked what this all means about the possibility that Viking might find some kind of life on Mars, McElroy said:

"If you look at what you need for life as we understand it, you need energy, that we have (in form of sunlight), you need water, that we have, you need nitogen, that we have, you need carbon, and we've got lots of that and you need phosphorus and phosphate which almost certainly are present in the rocks.

"I see no reason, from anything that we know, to exclude the possibility of the evolution of life."

in a good community, known for its physical attractiveness.

Small industries could also be attracted by making the facilities and what we have in the way of living amenities known.

But most of all, Donnaruma calls for "realistic" prices in what he describes as buyer's market but a "difficult" market.

He and other realtors also place importance on the number of people leaving the area, whether they seek the sun belts of Arizona and Florida or they go in search of employment.

Only in New Paltz, Lloyd and Marlboro is there any increased real estate activity, with a number of second-home buyers located there as well as IBM employes working in Dutchess County.

And if Ulster County having its problems, so too are nearby Orange County where three private land speculators are filing a $50 million bankruptcy suit after having purchased land surrounding Stewart Airport and in Goshen and Newburgh. The cases of Investors Funding of New York City, Kanaje Corp. of Spring Valley and Bon Air Industries of Rockland County are all pending in Federal Bankruptcy Court, according to Donnaruma.

There is light at the end of the tunnel however. Real estate cycles of the past 200 years show that we are moving into an improved cycle which is not due to top until 1980.

"In this coming up-cycle, not everyone in the U. S. will prosper," Donnaruma said, " but the wild speculation is gone. People in the next 20 years will be more cautious in their real estate investments and as a result they will probably get better value for their money."

City Gets $ for Sewer Plan

KINGSTON — The city has been awarded a $143,437 federal grant toward development of a comprehensive sewer facilities plan, Mayor Francis R. Koenig has announced. The grant covers three quarters of the plan's projected cost.

The one-eighth local cost share, $23,906, will come from another federal source, the city's 1976 entitlement under the community development program. The remaining one-eighth will be sought from the state.

A comprehensive sewer facilities plan involves a three-phase review and analysis of the city's existing facilities to collect and treat sewage and storm water, then a preliminary design and cost estimate on what is further needed to meet federal sanitary requirements.

Some sources have estimated Kingston could spend another $5 million and more on waste water facilities, but City Planner Robert E. Pritchard said only the comprehensive study could answer those questions.

Although nearly all the city proper is sewered into the Kingston Point treatment plant, the study will cover, among other things, the 175 residential and commercial users now discharging some 32,000 gallons of waste water per day into the Rondout Creek with only partial or no treatment.

The study also will cover Spring Lake and the East Kingston area of the Town of Ulster.

The Kingston Point treatment plant, built in 1947 for primary treatment and then rebuilt in the 1970's for secondary or more refined treatment, has a capacity to handle 4.8 million gallons per day and room for expansion to 6 million gallons per day.

The comprehensive study, estimated to take 12 to 18 months, will go out to contract after financial and legal work is completed, Mayor Koenig said.

Youth Arrested For Break-In

Patrolmen James Wallace and Richard Krom reportedly arrested Joseph T. Smith, 17, 87 Franklin St., Kingston at the Boys' Club at 139 Greenkill Avenue.

Smith was confined to the Ulster County jail to appear in City Court where he will be charged with burglary in the third degree today.

Admits Taking Money

Olive Constable Joseph Bernholz reports that a 13-year -old boy Tuesday night admitted taking $300 from an open safe at Davis' Store in West Shokan.

Lester Davis, the owner of the store, reported the money missing to Bernholz at 6 p.m. Tuesday night. After a five-hour investigation, the two reportedly found the alleged thief, whose name is being withheld.

The teenager reportedly led Davis and Bernholz to the foot of Watson Hollow Bridge in West Shokan where much of the money was buried.

Davis, who has been robbed several times before by juveniles, will petition the youth to Family Court in Jamaica, Long Island.

Woodstock Burglary

Woodstock Police arrested a Maryland man Tuesday for criminal possession of stolen property in connection with a burglary in Woodstock Tuesday morning.

Police said they received a call at 5:20 a.m. Tuesday morning from witnesses who said they saw two men carrying a stereo set and other items from the residence of Judy Moss on Calomar Lane to a Volkswagen van.

Police say they located the van with the stereo inside and arrested Mark Brady, 19, Rockville, Md., in a house nearby. Witnesses were unable to positively identify Brady as one of the men seen at the Moss residence, according to police.

Brady was taken before Woodstock Justice Rudolf Baumgarten and charged with criminal possession of stolen property. He was remanded to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $500 bail to appear before Judge Baumgarten July 29.

Injured in Collision

A Palenville man was injured Tuesday afternoon when his car was in collision with a tractor-trailer truck in Catskill, Leeds State Police report.

Police said Robert Louis, 43, Blue Mountain Road, Saugerties, was driving south on Route 9W when he saw a vehicle stopped to make a left-hand turn. Louis reportedly applied his brakes, causing his tractor-trailer to jackknife. The driver of a northbound vehicle, James Lucas, 24, Palenville, was unable to stop and his car struck the side of the trailer.

Lucas was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital by Mohawk Ambulance of Schenectady. He was treated and released. Louis was ticketed for driving while his license was expired and Lucas for following too close, according to state police.

Pot Polls High in Survey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A poll underway in flower shops across the country shows the rose to be the favorite choice as national flower by many Americans.

But the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, which is conducting the survey, said Tuesday the leading write-in candidate is marijuana.

Americans spend $3.34 billion on cut and potted flowers every year — about $50 per family per year — not counting, of course, cannabis blossoms.

The organization said it is conducting the poll to help Congress decide which flower should officially represent the nation.

The rose so far has 39 per cent, followed by the daisy with 13 per cent, the carnation with 10 per cent and the dogwood and apple blossom with 7 per cent and 5 per cent repsectively.

Heading up the write-in tally were the petite flowers of the cannabis sativa, otherwise known as marijuana, with 12 votes. There was one write in for skunk cabbage.

Women's Lib

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sentiment among Americans for women's lib has made tremendous strides in recent years, according to the Institute of Life Insurance. An institute survey found that the percentage of Americans in favor of women's lib rose from 49 per cent in 1972 to 61 per cent last year.

CU Reverses Stand On Canning...But

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers Union is reversing itself on some widely distributed and controversial home canning advice that two government agencies said was faulty if not dangerous.

But it predicts in the long run it will be proved correct.

The organization, which tests and evaluates products and publishes the magazine "Consumer Reports," carried the advice in the June issue of the magazine in an article about pressure canners.

Basically it suggested that using a higher pressure — 15 pounds per square inch, for example, instead of 10 — would allow the cooking time for home canned foods to be reduced, resulting in less mushy food.

It also said the standard 10 psi results in cooking temperatures "just barely high enough to kill botulism spores."

Both the Agriculture Department and the Food and Drug Administration told CU last month "no rule of thumb changes in processing schedules such as you suggest are satisfactory." The two agencies demanded to see the data on which CU reached its conclusions.

The National Canners Association said if CU's advice was followed for cream-style corn, for instance, the temperature and cooking time combination would not be sufficient to kill the spores, which can cause botulism poisoning. One official of that organization said the advice was "hazardous."

CU now says it will publish a statement in the August issue of "Consumer Reports" noting that Americans have been canning food at home by the millions without incident, presumably with the aid of standard recipes.

"Given that history, we now believe we should not have given advice that might lead home canners away from familiar methods and into experimentation that could result in error," it said.

In a press release accompanying the retraction, however, the organization said it is submitting data to FDA and Agriculture to back up its earlier recommendation.

"After they have had an opportunity to review the data, we expect the USDA and FDA will acknowledge that our recommended method works even when applied to foods about which questions were raised, such as cream-style corn and pumpkin," it said.

It also attacked the National Canners Association criticism saying "tests showed that our higher pressure reduced time method, when applied to cream-style corn, resulted in a 30 per cent increase in the sterilizing value, as compared with the usual home canning method."

Lawmakers May Face Court Reform Extra

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Although there is still no solution to the partisan impasse over court reform, Gov. Hugh Carey has proposed a special session of the legislature to deal with the issue.

Carey broached the possibility with leaders of the Democratic majority in the Assembly and representatives of the Republican Senate majority at a meeting in his New York City offices Tuesday.

The legislature, when it recessed June 30, scheduled a brief "mini-session" for July 28-30 to wrap up unfinished business — mainly, court reform.

If Carey's proposed special session were to replace the mini-session, it would occur at about the same time but would have the advantage of a limited agenda.

However, without any agreement on court reform, no type of session — special, mini or otherwise — was anticipated, sources said.

In a statement issued after Tuesday's meeting Carey called the talks "productive." However, partisan differences over three proposed constitutional amendments and a statewide court funding bill appeared unchanged.

Carey met first with Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut and other top-ranking Democrats and then conferred with Bernard Gordon, Republican chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"I felt somewhat chagrined," Gordon said after waiting in Carey's outer office for more than two hours and then being unable to meet face-to-face with the Democrats.

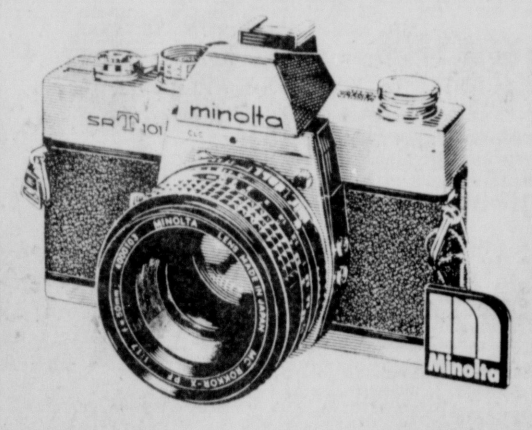

Gordon said Chief Judge Charles Breitel also spent a great deal of time outside, although he was called in several times for brief conferences with the Democrats.

"It was very strange," said the Peekskill Republican, who went to the meeting because Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson was unable to attend. "I can't honestly say a great deal of progress was made."

The state constitution requires that proposed amendments to the state constitution receive first passage three months before the Nov. 2 election. Thus, any special session would have to come by early August.

Tax Bite

NEW YORK (UPI) — The largest source of state tax revenue is the levy on sales. According to the Tax Foundation, sales taxes provide more than 30 per cent of all state tax revenues, while income taxes are second, constituting almost 24 per cent of such revenues.

Cannery Strike Could Hit Pocketbooks Across U.S.

(By UPI)

Northern California farmers fear a strike by thousands of cannery workers, which began Tuesday, could cause heavy crop losses that would be "felt in every household in America in the form of higher prices."

Elsewhere, Westinghouse Electric Corp. employes began a return to work ending the company's first nationwide strike in 20 years, but wildcat walkouts plagued West Virginia coal mines.

Canning industry officials and farmers in northern California — producers of half the nation's canned fruits — warned a walkout by Teamster-covered cannery workers could lead to higher food prices for consumers.

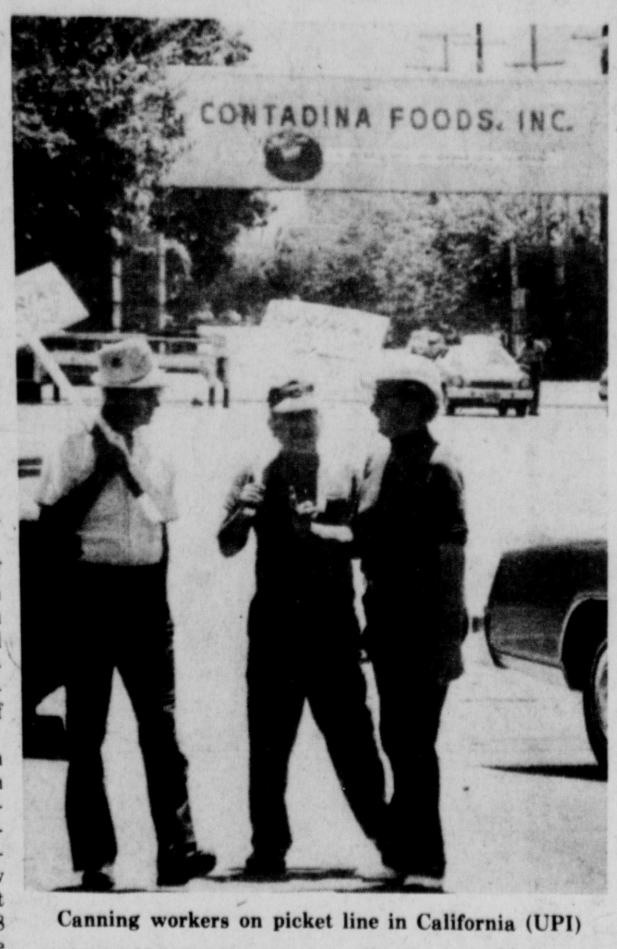

"Millions of dollars worth of fruit and tomatoes will rot on the ground," said California Farm Bureau President Fred Heringer. "The losses will ultimately be felt in every household in America in the form of higher prices."

Both sides agreed to meet in Washington Thursday with James F. Searce, national director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, in an effort to agree a new contract for 60,000 workers at 74 canning plants owned by 28 canning firms. He urged the strikers to return to work while continuing negotiations.

In Pittsburgh, Westinghouse announced Tuesday that it had reached agreements with the International Union of Electrical Workers, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the United Electrical Workers.

Strikes by 37,000 workers represented by the three unions had closed 90 of the company's 123 plants.

Pickets moving from mine to mine in a wildcat walkout to protest a $50,000 fine levied against a United Mine Workers' local for another work stoppage, idled about 5,000 miners in three West Virginia counties.

Canning workers on picket line in California (UPI)

Longshoremen refused to cross picket lines set up by 68 striking Oregon state grain inspectors Tuesday at the ports of Portland, Astoria and Pendleton. Most port activity continued uninterrupted.

In New York City, presidents of 53 postal unions met and voted to stage a nationwide job action by Aug. 20 unless the Postal Service declares a moratorium on service cutbacks.

A seven-week strike by some 2,500 Alameda County, Calif., employes ended Tuesday when the Service Employes International Union and the Oakland Board of Supervisors agreed to a new two-year contract.

A nurses' strike entered its ninth day at 15 Seattle area hospitals and most affected hospitals limited admissions. A strike by nonmedical personnel at two Cincinnati hospitals and the University of Cincinnati entered its eight day.

Town of Hempstead Objects To Being Fun City Bathroom

NEW YORK (UPI) — Officials of the town of Hempstead have accused New York City of dumping 250 million gallons of raw sewage daily into harbor waters and say they have obtained a court order to stop the alleged practice.

Hempstead Supervisor Alfonse M. D'Amato said an order was filed Tuesday in state Supreme Court in Mineola requiring the city and Emergency Financial Control Board to show by next Tuesday why the dumping should not be halted.

D'Amato charged the dumping was partly responsible for the recent wave of pollution that swept over Long Island's south shore beaches last month. Many were declared health hazard areas and temporarily closed. The town asked the court to order New York to pay $10 million in damages.

"The city can find $100 million to refurbish Yankee Stadium, but not $6 million to build a treatment plant for this sewage," D'Amato said. He referred to the planned construction of the Red Hook treatment plant in Brooklyn.

"When the city talks about treatment plants, it's little more than a myth," D'Amato said.

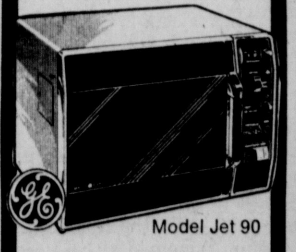

He claimed all Long Island sewage was treated and disinfected before discharge into waters, and called on the city to do the same.

Lefkowitz Supports Power Users

Dear Editor:

The Concerned Consumers of the Mid-Hudson Area Inc. welcomes Atty. Gen. Lefkowitz's petition to the Public Service Commission in respect the advertising expenses and charitable contributions.

Our organization has long maintained in our publicity and before the Public Service Commission that charitable contributions should be made at the expense of the stockholders and not that of the customers.

We are on record also, against advertising to promote the utility's image or to further a controversial campaign, such as investing in nuclear plants.

Our community was especially incensed when "our" utility spent our money to print a large Christmas advertisement proclaiming, "We bring you tidings of joy." On the next page they anounced a 24 per cent increase in rates!

We appreciate the attorney general's support of the consumer cause and look forward to a change in the Public Service Commission's traditional tilt towards the utilities at the expense of the rate payers.

Nothing But The Truth, SHMG

Dear Editor:

There was a time when reporters and editors could be depended upon to ascertain the facts before setting pen to paper, but quite evidently that is no longer true, as can be seen by frequent items of misinformation which appear in the Freeman. I will mention two items.

One, June 17 in an article entitled "Tear Down Old City Hall," the editor described the building as "Richardsonian Romanesque," whereas the designer had in mind Italian Gothic. My comment on this would have been, if the editor is going to set himself up as an architectural critic he should at least be informed on the subject matter.

The second item is that twice in recent issues of the paper the large rock which is to set as a memorial in front of the court house has been described as being "granite." The rock is not granite. It is "Shawangunk Grit" — a massive quartzitic conglomerate of the Silurian age, most of it occurring in Ulster County and once the basis of a thriving millstone industry. It deserves better recognition than being classed as "granite" — a rather common stone found in Westchester, Vermont, and other outlandish places.

ALBERT E. MILLIKEN
Architect Kingston

(Roy E. Graham, AIA Resident Architect at Williamsburg, Va., has written that old city hall is the "only building in the Richardsonian Romanesque style of any signficance in Ulster County. He notes that later renovations added "some ofthe finest interior details of the Colonial Revival." Which leads US to the conclusion that city hall is actually a massive Richardsonian conglomerate of the Victorian age while the rock, in fact, is Shawangunk Gothic. —Editor)

Visitor Had Chip on Shoulder

Dear Editor:

It's regrettable that a Mr. Tom Stuart found it necessary to use the letter to the editor as a means of expressing himself. It is regrettable also that, since Mr. Stuart refused to wait five minutes for a personal conversation and did not leave a home address or phone number, I, too, must use this means to reply.

We must first flatly and without qualification refute Mr. Stuart's statement that he was treeated discourteously. The chip on Mr. Stuart's should was apparent as soon as he entered the office. He had tried to gain entrance during our lunch hour (12:30 — 1:30) when, on Mondays and Fridays, the Chamber office is closed. He gave the Chamber receptionist little room for response. He was never refused a complaint form. He refused to take it because it does go through a definite procedure beginning in the Chamber office. It's still his if he wants it.

He was asked if he would care to talk to the "boss." The "boss" agreed but asked if Mr. Stuart could wait five minutes so that an ongoing meeting could be recessed for Mr. Stuart. Again a refusal from Mr. Stuart, and when the meeting was indeed recessed... well within the stated five minutes ... he was gone. Prior to his leaving, I might add, he did take the opportunity to acquire, at no charge, several of the area brochures available in the office for that purpose. He, and anyone else, is welcome to these items.

We spend too much time working with and for people to display a lack of courtesy. We still don't know what the purpose of Mr. Stuart's visit was. We would still like to be of service if we can.

I feel I must comment on the Freeman lead in to the letter. "Chamber Ignored Visitor." Nowhere in Mr. Stuart's letter does it say he was ignored. No one bothered to question his facts as stated. No one took the time to check with the Chamber to find out if there was another side to the story. Perhaps it's time we stopped rubbing our hands in glee when a negative issue, real or imagined, appears. Perhaps it's finally time we all accentuated the positive. I hope so.

Members Should Back CSEA

Dear Editor:

In response to the letter July 12 by Ruth Williams, Ulster County Infirmary, Re: Job Study. Mrs. Williams' letter was well written up to a point.

1. The county legislature hired and paid for this job study done by Mr. Kingsley.

2. C.S.E.A. hired and paid for a job study a few years ago — the county legislature voted it down.

3. Infirmary-Annex section of C.S.E.A. held regular and special meetings to discuss the job study and to make clear C.S.E.A.'s position. It is unfortunate that the employes that scream the loudest are the ones that could not find the time to come to the meetings.

4. The finished job study project ran over 400 pages — the cost of making copies of this ran $35 a set.

5. C.S.E.A. had six copies made — one for each section, which was available to the employes. Special meetings were set up so the study could be explained and questions answered.

It is indeed unfortunate that the Ulster County Legislature has the ability to make us all look like morons. This would not be possible if the employes would stand behind their union and not be content to sit back and let a few do for the all.

Saugerties Story Overblown

Dear Editor:

"Downtown Saugerties," Tim Schuster's wistful euphemism for what the locals used to call the Gut of Saugerties, may be in need of repair (it usually is), but it scarcely presents an image of bad taste such as that provided in the pages of the Daily Freeman on July 12 and 13.

Like any other small town, Saugerties changes with the patterns of her people, but she is firm and proud, and doesn't like being called a slum on the front page of her daily newspaper.

It is occasionally necessary to poke the powers-that-be, wake them up and give them brooms, and that, I believe, is what Schuster tried to do. As a native, I thank him.

On the inside, low-keyed, that story could have gotten results. But by displaying it on the front page and following the next day with that preposterous editorial, the Freeman has overblown the story, creating an issue where one did not exist, and unfairly maligning the reputation of the reporter.

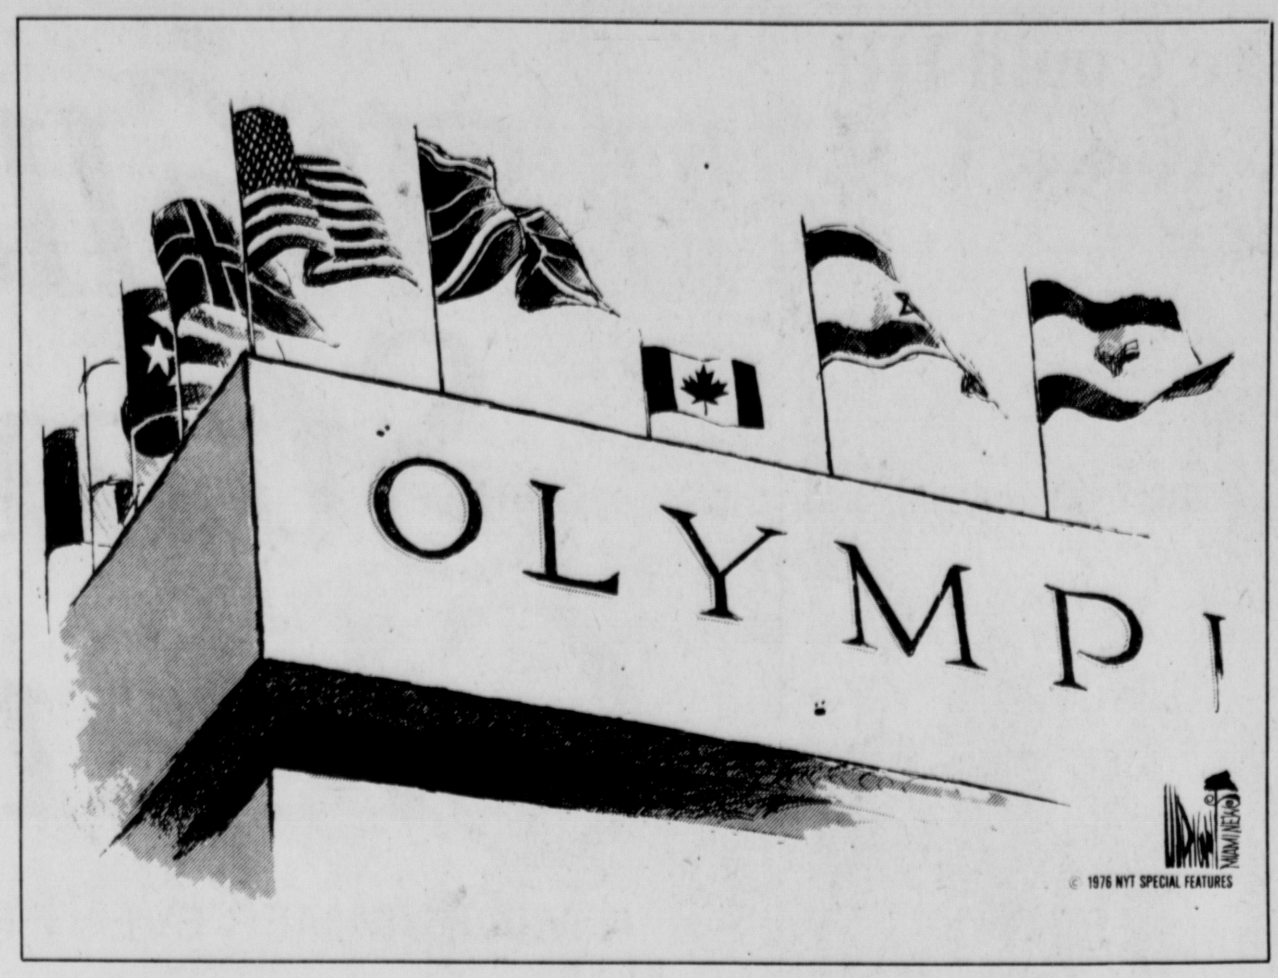

I sincerely hope you will offer a retraction. After all, this ain't Nob Hill, it's just Partition Street, but contrary to the innuendoes in your editorial, it's a damned decent place to live. (Otherwise, I think the Freeman has been doing a good job.)

A License to Terrorize

WASHINGTON - Dr. Kissinger is hoping to use the UN as a means for getting an international agreement outlawing "terrorism." Anybody in his right mind should be in favor of that, but in reality what he wants to do is license terrorism, not eradicate it.

The proposal on the table is an agreement between all the national states to cooperate in the suppression of terrorism by unauthorized or unrecognized political or nationalist groupings. No one is suggesting that national states take the smallest steps toward limiting the terrorism they habitually employ against their own citizens or the citizens of weaker nations. The occasional murderous adventures of groups like the Palestine Liberation Organization are as nothing compared to the killing carried on by many members of the United Nations.

The anti-terrorist proposal hasn't been put forth out of concern for human life. It legitimates terrorism and reinforces the idea that the national state is justified in using terror to achieve its political goals.

It does this by suggesting that it is only the terrorist who threatens the lives of innocent people by such acts as the recent African plane kidnapping. There's no doubt the passengers on the plane are innocent, but so are most victims of war. The United States, which is upset by the slaughtering of civilian airplane passengers, bases its atomic strategy on threatening to annihilate the entire civilian populations of its putative enemies, who are prepared to reply in kind. Warfare by national states is primarily directed against civilian populations. It was so in Vietnam where we attempted to destroy the enemies' "infrastructure," i.e., its civilian society, and it was true in our Civil War which was brought to a close by Sherman's March to the Sea - when he destroyed the South's capacity to sustain war by wrecking its agriculture, industry and transportation, and switched the aim of his guns from Confederate soldiers to Confederate civilians.

At the same time the U.S. had been working to protect innocent victims against terrorism, it was pleading with the government of Angola to spare the lives of the mercenaries who fought on the losing side in the recent civil war. By modern thinking, "mercenary" is as much pejorative as it is descriptive, since we hold that to kill for money is wrong but to kill for nationalistic fanaticism is right.

Mercenaries suffer their bad reputations somewhat unjustly. In history they've been known to commit the most barbaric outrages on innocent populations, but they rarely do it as a matter of policy, only out of rapine and lust. After they've pillaged, robbed, murdered and raped to the limits of their appetites, they tend to go comatose and sleep it off. When national governments wage war there is no end to their crimes and excesses. It would never occur to a mercenary army to commit genocide; there's no profit in it.

The least lethal and the most civilized wars in Europe, those of the 18th century, were conducted by mercenary armies. Our own revolution would have been a lot bloodier if we'd had to face an army of English patriots instead of a bunch of hired Germans. Soldiers who work for pay, rather than for the fatherland, usually prefer posturing and bluster to killing and blood. If you're fighting for money the general idea is to hang around long enough to spend your paycheck.

With mercenary soldiers there is some hope that when you run out of money the killing will stop; with nationalism there is none because, as we have discovered, there are far more nationalisms than there are national states to accommodate them. Vide that obscure group of Indonesian separatists who hijacked a Dutch railroad train not so many months ago to press the claims of some nationalism that almost no one had ever heard of.

The peoples of the western world have brought this on themselves. We're the ones who've propagated the natio salist ideal, the conviction that the members of every cultural, religious or linguistic group can only hope to live as they wish if they are the proprietors of their own, petit national state. Any other kind of arrangement is so alien to us, we can't even imagine what it might be like, unless it is world government, and that is nothing more than trying to make the entire globe a national state.

We're irritated with Mr. Idi Amin and Uganda at the moment. He is the result of the nationalist heritage we've bequested to Africa, a heritage which has entrapped Africans into starting their own arms race, into buying bombers and cannons like the older homicidal societies they emulate.

Now on to the Olympics where sport and fraternal competition, like everything else in this world, will be used as the symbols and tools of nationalism. If the terrorists come as they did four years ago at Munich, we can be horrified but hardly surprised.

Reagan May 'Steal' Ford Votes

WASHINGTON — The epic struggle for the Republican presidential nomination is so close that Ronald Reagan's aides may resort to stealing delegates away from President Ford.

Some delegates are bound by law to support the President at least on the first ballot. Their votes belong to Ford, but their hearts belong to Reagan.

In secret strategy sessions, Reagan aides have toyed with the idea of asking these delegates to abstain as long as their state laws require them to honor the primary verdicts. This would prevent the President from ringing up an early-ballot victory. Then, in subsequent ballots, they could legally switch to Reagan.

For example, Ford won 25 delegates in North Carolina and 19 in Kentucky. In both states, they are obliged to vote for Ford only on the first ballot. The President's five Nevada delegates must vote for him on the first two ballots.

The Reagan strategists believe they could pirate several Ford delegates from these three states. If the delegates would sit out the first ballot or two, Reagan could wind up with their votes.

We discussed this plot with the President's political aides, who seemed concerned that it might succeed. They conceded that most of the Kentucky, Nevada and North Carolina delegates, who are legally committed to Ford, are really "Reagan men."

They might hold out on Ford and cast their ballots later for Reagan, the presidential aides acknowledged. The plot is an "immoral attempt to disenfranchise the voters," declared one Ford official.

To counter the move, the President's forces may ask the Republican National Committee to adopt a convention resolution compelling each state delegation to honor the primary results. The committee, since it is stacked with friends of Ford, might be able to block the Reagan strategy.

Sources inside the Reagan camp, meanwhile, acknowledged that the delegate-stealing scheme hasn't been abandoned.

OVER-THE-COUNTER POT: In the paneled board rooms of some large corporations, the executives are casting covetous eyes on the multibillion-dollar marijuana market.

The secret estimates indicate marijuana users are now smoking $4 billion worth of pot per year. If marijuana were legalized, the market could soar to $10 billion annually.

This is enough pot to tempt the biggest of businesses. In anticipation of the day pot will be made legal, some alcohol and tobacco companies already are making production plans.

Government-sponsored tests at the University of Mississippi have produced an experimental marijuana five or six time stronger than the pot now sold on the streets. Tobacco companies, therefore, have set aside choice Southern land for future marijuana harvests, competent sources report.

Some firms have even registered trademarks on brand names, lifted straight from marijuana street lingo. Since trademarks cannot be issued for illegal products, the companies are using them temporarily on other obscure tobacco items.

Once marijuana is legalized, the firms can switch the trademarks, say, from cigars to pot.

The corporate executives are closely watching the status of legislation that would make marijuana legal to market. One corporate representative made a quiet trip to Washington recently to consult with experts on the law. He wanted to know what could be done to speed the legislation along.

Eight states have already decriminalized marijuana use; another 27 are considering similar legislation. There are also bills before the Senate and House which would decriminalize pot possession on the federal level. They will probably be taken up, according to our sources, after the presidential election.

Meanwhile, the marijuana question may become an issue in the election. Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter has already taken a stand in favor of decriminalization.

President Ford has stated his opposition to the idea but has indicated privately he has an open mind on the subject. Ronald Reagan is staunchly against decriminalization. If he gets the GOP nomination, he reportedly plans to attack Carter on the issue.

Poe Epitomized Tragic Genius

Edgar Allen Poe lived an eternity of agony in 40 years. He was a great poet, a superb mystery writer, but life as he lived it was a dark cellar of ravenous rats. It is astonishing that he attempted suicide only once.

He was born January 19, 1809, the son of David and Elizabeth Poe. The father died when Edgar was 10 months of age. His mother died of pneumonia when he was less than three years old.

Poe was raised by John Allan, a merchant of Richmond, Va. Mrs. Allan was childless, and lavished love on the baby. This caused Allan to depise the infant. The merchant would not adopt Poe, nor would he permit the boy to wander far from wrath and punishment.

In his teens, Edgar Allan Poe caught his foster father in infidelities. The youngster said nothing, but John Allan wrote letters to Poe relatives stating that Edgar's mother had been unfaithful, and no one could be certain of her children's legitimacy.

The boy began to write poetry. In the summer, he swam six miles on the James River. He was short and pale, a youth with huge dark eyes and a high forehead. Women were attracted by a deep sorrow in those eyes.

In school he excelled in ancient and modern languages. At the University of Virginia, John Allan refused to pay Poe's bills. The poet began to drink and play cards. He left in shame, owing $2,5000.

He fell in love with Elmira Royster, a young neighbor. Watching him drink, she reminded Poe that in his case a little bit was too much. He made mountains of promises, and kept none.

Edgar Poe quarrelled with Allan, and took a ship to Boston. He published a volume called "Tamerlane and Other Poems" at age 18. It did not sell; no critic reviewed it.

The young man was broke. He enlisted in the army, and was later appointed to West Point. He was 20 when John Allan invited him home the night after his stepmother's funeral.

The fires of imagery consumed Poe. "Tamerlane" contained some poems about his unhappy love affair with Elmira Royster, who married a merchant. He staggered and lurched from one melancholy triumph to another. Allan disowned him publicly. West Point dismissed him for "gross neglect of duty."

He wrote a second and third book of poetry. In 1833, Poe won a prize of $50 for a short story called, "Ms. Found in a Bottle."

Three years later, he married his cousin, Virginia Clemm of Baltimore. She was 13. Her mother, Maria, was part of the marriage. He had published 83 reviews, six poems, four essays, three short stories, four books and was bankrupt.

Poe became famous in literary circles, and infamous for long sodden bouts with whiskey. His loyal friend was his mother-in-law. She nursed him to sobriety, nodded agreeably to his hundredth promise, and never left his side.

For $20 he wrote a preface to a book which had been plagiarized. Mrs. Clemm got a job to support his nocturnal writings. Her daughter was dying of tuberculosis. Poe perfected the modern mystery story with "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" and "The Mystery of Marie Roget." A great story skidded from under his pen, "The Gold Bug."

In Fordham, New York, the great writer penned the first drafts of "The Raven." He drank, fell into a stupor. It was winter, there was no heat, no food. Mrs. Clemm begged. Virginia Clemm Poe huddled in a corner under rags. Poe taught a cat to doze on her chest to keep his wife warm.

She died Jan. 30, 1847, the first to be free. Maria Clemm remained at his side. He suffered a chronic psychological impotence, and sought sympathy and comfort from several women.

He fell in love and fell drunk with increasing frequency. As he approached age 40, Edgar Allen Poe was a celebrity in despair. He drank laudanum, but survived.

Back in Richmond, he joined a lodge of teetotalers. Anger outstripped his talent. In prose and verse, he lashed at his peers. He ran toward Philadelphia - as though running would alter his doom - and was found semi-conscious in Cooth & Sergeant's Tavern in Baltimore.

The world had turned its back on the genius. But not Maria Clemm. He was sent to Washington Hospital. He survived four days in screaming delirium. Edgar Allan Poe died on Sunday Oct. 7, 1849.

He was 40. Burial was at Westminister Presbyterian churchyard. In time, Maria Clemm got her reward. His mother-in-law, his true friend, rests beside him...

Riding 73,280 Pounds Downhill

That first morning I showed up for work to haul cement by the light of the moon, I met Gypsy Jack. He had earned that nickname. It meant he would drive any truck anywhere at anytime. That doesn't mean he's careless; accidents are against his religion.

The company knew they had a wide-eyed greenhorn on its hands.

"Today and tomorrow," said the safety man, "I'm assigning you to one of our top men. You'll make his runs with him and he'll show you the ropes. You won't get paid, of course."

"Of course," I said. No need to antagonize the man.

We got rolling at 3.30 a.m., heading for Plainville, Conn., 190 miles round trip through the Berkshires.

"This load grosses 73,000 pounds, right?" I asked.

"Yeah, 73,280 to be exact. The 280 is what the law allows for error. But we've got accurate scales, so they load us right up against the limit."

We stopped at a diner near Claverack. Good, I thought, I can get some breakfast. Jack hit the "maxi" brake valve and shut down the engine. "If we don't get back early, all the good runs'll be gone. I stop here for ten minutes. Just a quick cup of coffee."

I got the message. Better not order anything but coffee. "Can't make no money sittin' in a diner," Jack said.

I was halfway through my coffee when Jack stood up. "Let's go." Back in the tractor the clock showed me the engine had been shut down for exactly ten minutes.

As we rolled into the Berkshires, the load began to hold us back. Pulling the Norfolk hill we were in third gear, doing a steady seven miles an hour, as dawn lightened the sky ahead of us.

Beyond Norfolk, at the foot of a steep cut in the hills, innocently sits the town of Winsted. At the top, before the hill is visible, there is a small rustic sign designating a conservation area.

"See that sign?" said Jack, as he shifted down to ninth, then eighth, for no apparent reason.

"That little wooden one?" I said.

"Yeah. When you hit that, make sure you come down a couple of gears." We were starting downhill then, the airbrakes hissing periodically. "You can't see it from here, but right around that corner up ahead there's a blinker light and a town. Sometimes cars are streaming out of there and their drivers are still asleep. If you can't stop, you'll make a helluva mess."

"You won't have any problems in this rig," he went on, "but the brakes on some of the old ones you'll be driving next week ain't the best. So don't forget that sign." I felt my eyebrows rise.

"What if it's dark?" I asked.

"You'll learn to see it ...And don't hit the brakes too often. You don't want to lose your air."

(I feel an urge to state that since that time those problems have been corrected through technology and new road signs.)

In Plainville we unloaded in 45 minutes, Jack showing me how to pressurize and use the valves, and we roared back empty, arriving at the company's fuel pumps at 9:30. Every time we passed a diner I salivated and whined like Pavlov's dog, but to no avail.

Jack got a Bronx this time, Thruway all the way. I doubt the editor will let me tell you what they call that kind of run, but it means "easy" in this sense, "delightful sustenance" in another.

We loaded up again, and roared off again for the Bronx at about 10:15. Now! I thought. We'll stop at Modena for lunch. But no. I watched wistfully as that service area sailed uncaring past the window.

The next area did the same, as well as a Howard Johnson's. We unloaded in the Bronx, where we drank water from a hose.

Jack let me drive on the way back. He decided I was all right, so he took a nap sitting on the jouncing toolbox. "Where do you want to stop?" I asked nonchalantly.

"Let's get back," he replied. "I don't want to use up any more hours." Drivers are limited to ten hours of driving a day, 60 a week. He wouldn't get a good run on Saturday if he didn't have enough hours.

Just before Kingston, Jack opened his eyes and said, "Watch out for the bumps about a mile ahead."

"Okay," I said. He went back to sleep. They can't be that bad, I thought. But when we hit them, Jack flew off the toolbox and hit the roof with his head. I wanted it to be my revenge for starvation, but he just laughed.

We got back to the fuel pumps at 4:30, and Jack handed in his paper work. I trying to figure out how this man who fasted every day could nonetheless weigh about 230 pounds, until he said, "C'mon, let's go have a beer." We did, and I had two sandwiches besides. He didn't eat a morsel.

The next day was exactly the same, but I had bacon, eggs, three pieces of toast, and a hamburger before I left home.

My first day on my own they gave me a Plainville. At the top of the Winsted hill a little wooden sign caught my eye as it flashed by. What was I supposed to remember about that?

The rig was slowing gradually, but too gradually...

I remembered just as the rig was starting downhill, all 73,280 pounds of it. I hit the brakes three times, and the air pressure dropped. I managed to get into ninth gear, but was moving too fast for eighth, so I just stood on the brakes. The rig was slowing gradually, but too gradually.

As I rounded the curve the sharp smell of something burning reached my nostrils. Oh God! I was barbecuing the brakes! Soon there would be nothing but metal screeching against metal.

Luckily there were no cars pulling out at the blinker. But there was still the town, with a 30-mph speed limit. . As I approached the blinker I noticed a factory on the right. Something-Or-Other Wire Mfg. It simply stuck in my mind.

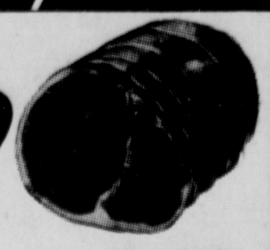

For some reason the brakes didn't evaporate, but the burning smell was stronger than ever. I entered Winstead at 35 mph, and slowed to a stop at a diner. I noticed the burning smell had disappeared, which was strange. It should still have been there.

In the diner I mentioned this to the counter man. "That wasn't your brakes," he said. "That's the wire factory. It smells like that all the time."

Jack certainly was right about that sign. I learned to pick out the little wooden thing long before I was anywhere near it. In fact, I can see it right now.

Ford Ponders His VP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is taking his own good time is selecting a vice presidential running mate.

Nothing is certain regarding his own political fortunes but Ford is exuding confidence that he has the nomination sewed up against rival Ronald Reagan, tough as the going has been in this up-and-down campaign.

And it is not expected that he will reveal his vice presidential choice until after he gets to Kansas City next month and gets the GOP presidential nomination at the National Convention.

But the betting around the White House is that former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, 59, will get the nod from Ford when the time comes for the President to indicate his choice for the No.2 spot.

Observers see Connally as probably the best vote getter for Ford with his appeal to the South and his eloquence on the hustings. They believe he would be a match for Jimmy Carter in the political free-for-all with Ford taking the high "presidential road."

Ford has seen Connally privately several times and talked to him on the phone. His spokesmen say he has told no one of his preference for vice president and probably won't until the last minute. Like all of his predecessors, Ford likes to keep a secret and to make a big announcement at the dramatic moment.

The possibility of tapping Reagan for the job is not remote. In fact, to many political pros, the former California governor would be the logical choice and such a move would help to heal the wounds of a belligerent campaign for the nomination. Reagan also would be expected to have potent drawing power amomg the ultra-conservatives.

Ford's advisers believe that Connally would be able to deliver the Texas vote for Ford and perhaps some of the other Southern states.

Connally is sitting in the cat bird's seat. Reagan also has mentioned him as a running mate. So it appears he can't lose.

But Connally laughs off all inquiries about his political future. "I'm not running for anything," he told reporters when confronted at a reception given by Queen Elizabeth at the British Embassy last week.

Connally has had his eye on the presidency — and while chances are slim to impossible this time around. He is making points with the Republican leaders and apparently his setting 1900 as a deadline for running. Ford cannot run again because he will have served more than two years in the White House in the unexpired term of his predecessor, Richard M. Nixon.

Connally is comfortable with conservatives. He has long been a favorite of Nixon and would have been named to the vice presidential post succeeding Spiro T. Agnew but Nixon was warned he could not be confirmed.

Connally has done some political flipflops that did not endear him to the Democrats on Capitol Hill. He switched parties, from Democrat to Republican, in 1973. The quips at the time were that he was the only man "to jump on a sinking ship" in view of the inexorable momentum of Watergate and the obvious impending fate of Nixon.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, RAriz.. has called Connally one of the best qualified men to serve in the presidency.

Connally served three terms in the governership in Austin. He also served as secretary of the Navy in the Kennedy administration and was shot and wounded in the Dallas assassination of John Kennedy. He was also a protege of Lyndon B. Johnson and also served as secretary of Treasury in the Nixon Cabinet.

He was acquitted of bribery charges in a Watergate-related criminal case involving payments by the milk industry to Nixon's campaign during the 1972 election.

Whether Watergate would militate against Connally's selection as vice presidential nominee remains to be seen. White House observers seem too think not and Ford believes that Watergate is behind him and will not figure in the November election.

Whether Democratic opponents would bring it up was not clear. Jimmy Carter has said he does not expect it to be an issue.

Right now Connally is not saying a thing. He told reporters he is going to his ranch at Flogesvillz, Tex., to sit for a couple of weeks. After that he will be going to the Kansas City convention — and may be getting the all important call from Ford.

The Lighter Side — Dick West

Earthy Sophistication Reigns

Among the many subcultures that have sprung up in American society is one that might be classified as "Hick Chic."

I don't know how widespread it is because I don't get around that much any more. But in these parts, pseudo-hayseedism is rampant.

Go to a Georgetown cocktail party and half the people there will be dressed like they just came in from plowing the north 40. These are people, you understand, lawyers, bureaucrats and such, whose closest contact with the land is potting soil.

The de rigueur fabric of Hick Chic is denim. Your basic Hick Chic outfit is a pair of hand-faded blue jeans, a dungaree jacket, a coarse blue work shirt and heavy shoes of the style once known as clodhoppers.

At least, that's the way the women dress.

Men dress much the same except that some wear sunbonnets.

If any of these people ever actually showed up on a farm, the farmer would sic the dogs on them.

Next to countrified haute couture, the main element of Hick Chic is bluegrass music. It says something that Jack Fogd, the President's middle son, took tennis star Chris Evert to a bluegrass place when she was playing a tournament here.

But Hick Chic bluegrass is to the stuff played in the backwoods of Kentucky as Old Grandad is to white lightning.

Hick Chic bluegrass is contrived and slick, performed, most likely, by architects and brain surgeons who have taken up the banjo and mandolin for relaxation.

The question that obviously arises is why these barnyard garments and diversions have become fashionable in met ropolitan environments.

One sociologist with whom I discussed the matter told me Hick Chic was a spinoff from the general back-to-the-farm movement that has come about in the 1970s.

"During the sixties, the Army took thousands of city boys off the streets and sent them to Southeast Asia, which is largely an agrarian region," he explained.

"It was their first exposure to pastoral life and it left many of them determined to have a fling at rusticating when they go back home.

"And sure enough, the withdrawal of American troops was the start of a new urban-torural population trend that has replaced this country's traditional rural-to-urban migration.

"Even young veterans who remained in the city adopted bucolic trappings. Thus a whole new school of fashion was born."

I said, "Are you blaming Hick Chic on the Vietnam War?"

"Exactly. How you gonna keep 'em urbanized after they've seen rice paddies?"

STONE ROLLING

By Rich Wiseman

BY THE TIME you read this, maybe — just maybe — STEVIE WONDER has turned in his album to Motown. Yes, the very same album he started work on in January of 1975, the album that was supposed to be out last fall. After taking four days off to nurse an abscessed tooth, Wonder returned to Hollywood's Crystal Sound Studios the week of July 5th to work on the final mixes of "Songs in the Key of Life." He said the LP should finally be presented to Motown by mid-July, which means it could be on the stands by August.

CALVIN HARDAWAY, one of Wonder's three brothers and a near-constant companion, said Stevie wasn't exactly dogging it during those 18 months: "Same time he's writing a song he's come up with an idea for another. Then he'll go back and find something he wrote three years ago. He changes songs every day. He's a perfectionist.

"His livelihood is in the studio, his life is in the studio. You want to come to his living room? Then come to the studio."

Wonder will stay in his "living room" to produce an album for WONDERLOVE, his backup group. Then, there are plans for a European tour, to be followed by a swing through the U.S.

TWO PEOPLE WHO can't wait to hear WONDER's new LP are PETER FRAMPTON and CARLOS SANTANA. Frampton told us a while back that he never goes on the road without his Wonder tapes and hopes to meet his "idol" some day. One reason for the bond, perhaps: "We're both Tauruses." This is how Santana summed up his regard for Wonder: "I have very few people who I call heroes and Stevie is one of them. I look towards him as I look towards Martin Luther King."

FIVE SONGS into the BEACH BOYS' show at sold-out Oakland Stadium July 2nd, the rotund figure walked on the stage, tapped piano player BILLY HINSCHE on the shoulder and sat down himself. It was the first time in 11 years that the ultra-shy BRIAN WILSON — the driving force behind the Beach Boys — had performed with the group. He stayed for the rest of the Boys' 90-minute set, even handling the lead vocals on 'In My Room.' As he left the stage afterwards, Wilson was heard to ask the group, "Was I OK?"

The next night at Anaheim Stadium, Brian walked on with the rest of the Beach Boys and stayed the entire set. He even left his seat once — at MIKE LOVE's coaxing — to wave to some fans who'd hoisted a "Welcome Back Brian" banner. Brian's opinion of the shows: "I loved it, especially seeing all the kids." Both performances were filmed by NBC for inclusion in the group's August TV special.

IT RAINED ON WILLIE NELSON's Fourth Annual Texas Picnic, July 2nd-4th, driving away a crowd of 100,000. The rain, though, was one of the lesser of the day's problems: some 15 stabbings and several rapes were reported, and there was one drowning. Only a reported half of the concertgoers paid for tickets before the fences were torn down. WAYLON JENNINGS never took the stage, and Willie appeared only briefly with DOUG SAHM and LEON RUSSELL. The promoters claimed losses of $100,000, but Nelson's manager, Neil Reshen, said it wouldn't be the last picnic: "We'll keep doing it till we get it down perfect."

★★★

THE OHIO PLAYERS, never a big hit in England, walked off the "Top of the Pops" TV show recently, complaining of poor sound quality. They also walked out of a London Phonogram Records reception after exchanging words with record execs. One of their dressing rooms was burglarized and they changed hotels two times, complaining of bad service and poor accommodations. And they're still not a hit in England.

Job Openings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Job openings in the front offices of the country's banks jumped 25 per cent during the first quarter from the year earlier period, according to Knight and Zabriskie, an executive recruiter. A survey by the firm showed jobs were particularly plentiful in the fields of marketing, international banking, retail and mortgage production starting at $25,000.

Traditional Family Reunion In Honor of 'Nanny' Bracht Sparked by Colonial Garb

Hot dog vender for the Bracht family gala was Robert McQueen of the Bronx. "Colonial" customers included Suzy and Marjorie O'Brien of Delmar.

ROSENDALE—Descendants of the late Agnes "Nanny" Bracht gathered this past weekend in a family reunion that has become known as "Bracht's Cousin Club". The get-together was held this year at the home of Barbara and Thomas J. McInerney, LeFever Falls Road, with 89 of the 101 relatives in attendance, most of whom were from the New York area, with some from Pittsburgh, Pa., and Miami, Fla.

The reunions have become a tradition during the last 10 years and have been held in honor of "Nanny" Bracht who lived in Floral Park, L.I. and the Bronx. She spent her life working for various charity projects with the nuns of her church. In the family she always took care of the infants, and the children felt especially close to her. She had six children of her own; also surviving are 22 grandchildren and 47 great grandchildren.

In keeping with the Bicentennial year, many of the children and parents at the get-together came in colonial costumes for the two days of good food, good fun, and reunion. Every one attended the 9 o'clock Mass in honor of "Nanny" at St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, Sunday morning.

"The pause that refreshes" is appreciated by one of the younger family members, Joseph O'Brien of Delmar.

Life

"Umm-umm, good," says Suzy O'Brien of Delmar.

Slide-Lecture on Olana Set for Historical Group

HUNTER—Olana, one of the most interesting historic landmarks in the area, will be the subject of a slide-lecture presented by Linda MacLean, acting site director, when the Mountain Top Historical Society holds its monthly meeting at the Hunter School, Thursday, July 22 at 8 p.m.

Olana is on a high hill overlooking the Hudson River and can be seen clearly from the Rip Van Winkle Bridge. The 37-room mansion was the home of Frederick Church, a successful landscape painter of the Hudson River School. It was built between 1870 and 1874 and furnished with art works of the Old World, especially from Greece and Syria. New York State designated it as an historical site and it was opened to the public in June of 1967.

Linda MacLean has been acting site director at Olana for two years. She received her M.A. degree under a New York State Historical Society and the State University of New York. She graduated from Russell Sage College and was assistant curator of the Rensselaer County Historical Society in Troy.

Commemorative Services Held at Local Church

KINGSTON—As part of the Bicentennial Celebration Year at Immaculate Conception Church, Delaware Avenue, members of the parish held special commemorative services Sunday afternoon, July 18, in honor of those from the church who have served in the wars. The parish was formed in 1896 and men have served in both World Wars, Korean and Vietna conflicts.

Part of the services were held at the World War II monument Sunday afternoon. Altogether 288 men from the church served in this war and seven were killed in action.

Paul Sepesy, president of the Parish Council and chairman of the event, was master of ceremonies. Guest speakers were Mayor Francis Koenig; Eugene Perry, county legislator; Philip DeCicco, alderman of the ward; and Joseph Bujak, president of the White Eagle Benevolent Association.

The National Anthem was sung both in American by the choir and in Polish by Eileen Reis. Wreaths were presented by Edward Janasiewicz representing the parish and Joseph Bujak from the White Eagle Association. A delegation from the Veterans of Foreign Wars provided the color guard and firing squad. Taps were played by Robert Szymanski.

The Rev. Joseph Kozlowski pronounced the invocation and benediction and also conducted the religious services in the church preceding the ceremonies at the monument. The church choir led in singing the patriotic music.

The United States is the home of the best surviving souvenir of the storming and wrecking of the Bastille on July 14, 1789, the incident that started the French Revolution. The Marquis de Layfayette on a return trip to the United States in 1824, gave the key to the Bastille to his friend George Washington. Washington hung the key in Mount Vernon where it remains today, The World Almanac notes.

Talk of the Town

Fair and Supper Planned

KATSBAAN—The Katsbaan Ladies Aid will hold a church fair and ham supper Wednesday, July 28, on the church grounds starting at 2 p.m. Features of the fair will be an antique flea market with dealers present to sell and display; a bicentennial booth; fancy article table, food table, miscellaneous articles and refreshments.

At 5, 6 and 7 p.m., a baked ham supper will be served. The menu will consist of baked ham, boiled parsley potatoes, buttered corn, cabbage salad, sliced cucumbers and tomatoes, rolls and butter, lemon or cherry pie, ice tea or coffeee. Reservations may be made with Mrs. William Fiero or Mrs. Fred Eiveleit, both of Saugerties.

The old stone church which was built in 1732 will be open to the public. On display will be the Saugerties Bicentennial Quilt and the Old Katsbaan Church quilt.

Historic Group Will See Slides

ROSENDALE—Rosendale Historic Group will meet Tuesday, July 27, 8 p.m. at the Rosendale Town Clerk's Office. Special slide presentation of the town will be given. Members and the general public are invited.

Firemen's Fair Set

GARDINER—The Gardiner volunteers will hold their annual Firemen's Fair Friday and Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon, July 23, 24 and 25 at the firehouse, Rte. 44-55 in Gardiner. Admission is free.

This year's fair will feature new carnival rides, live entertainment and awards. All kinds of refreshments and baked goods will be for sale.

Sunday afternoon a nationally-known theatre company will present the play "Yankee Peddler" for the benefit of the Gardiner Rescue Squad. The Gardiner firemen will also make an award of a 10-speed bicycle.

Proceeds will help to support the Gardiner volunteer fire department.

Events Marked for Lyonsville

LYONSVILLE—Lyonsville Bicentennial Exhibition will be held Saturday, July 31, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Lyonsville Community Club House and adjoining grounds located on the Bone Hollow Road. Many exhibits are l planned including handicrafts, antiques and blacksmithing. There will be a refreshment counter and food table.

A flag raising ceremony will take place at 10 a.m. The event has been planned by the Lyonsville Community Club. If rainy, the exhibition will be held the following day, Aug. 1.

Laura Epstein Is Camper

ELMER, N.J.—Lauren Epstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Epstein of Marbletown is one of 160 campers spending four weeks this summer at Appel Farm, Elmer, N.J., an arts and music center in the southern part of New Jersey near Delaware Bay. A student at the Campus School in New Paltz, she will be entering the fifth grade this fall. A talented young artist, she writes amusing and observant stories which she illustrates with her own drawings.

Tenants Have Services

KINGSTON—Tenants of the Seven Greens apartments, Lawrenceville Street, attended services conducted by Rabbi Basil Herring Wednesday night, July 14. Rabbi Herring spoke to the group upon the invitation of Frances Gossett, a resident at the apartments.

Plans have also been made for blood pressure readings to be taken the third Wednesday of each month.

DEAR ABBY

A Letter to Girls in Love with Married Men

DEAR ABBY: You once printed a letter telling girls who were in love with married men what to expect. You titled it "Never On Sunday." Please try to find it and run it again. I want to send it to my daughter. Thank you.—TEARING MY HAIR IN TULSA

DEAR TEARING: Here's the letter. I hope it helps:

DEAR ABBY: May I give your readers the benefit of my very valuable experience? I address this to any woman who is in love with a narried man:

Never expect to see him on Sundays or holidays. Never call him at home. Don't ever expect him to take you out in public, but be prepared to entertain him at your place. He may bring a bottle or the steaks occasionally, but in actual dollars and cents, you will spend more on him than he'll spend on you.

Never depend on him in times of personal crisis. Don't believe him when he tells you that his wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin), and she hasn't slept with him in 10 years.

Don't expect his wife to divorce him if she catches him. She knows that you aren't his first affair and won't be his last. Also, she's not about to give up her social status, financial security and retirement income because of you. However, her discovery will probably terminate his affair with you, so be prepared to get some new clothes, circulate and find another man whose wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin), and hasn't slept with him for 10 years. Sign me. . .—HIS WIFE

DEAR ABBY: This may be the most unusual letter you've ever received. You may even toss it into the wastebasket thinking it's a put-on, but I assure you it is not.

I am a 42-year-old man who is marrying a 38-year-old woman. It's my first marriage and her second.

Please don't faint, Abby, but I am a virgin—if one refers to a man who has never had any sexual relations in in his life as a virgin.

I know absolutely nothing about sex, and I'm scared to death that I will mess up on my honeymoon.

I am too ashamed to ask any of my close friends what to do. One day I tried to get some information from a casual acquaintance at work and he looked at me like I was nuts and said, "Just do what comes natural, man, do what comes natural." Then he walked away.

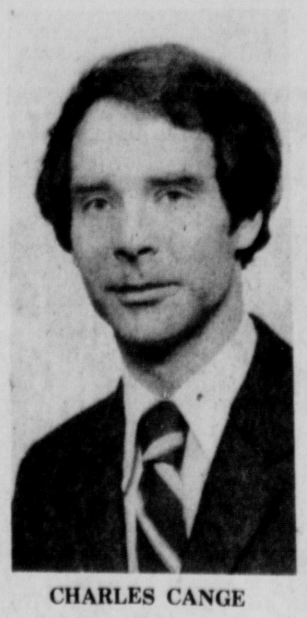

If I knew what was going to come natural I wouldn't be so worried. Can you help me?—NERVOUS IN LOUISIANA

DEAR NERVOUS: Your family doctor, or any physician, will instruct you in the basics. Don't be ashamed and don't worry. Your bride has been married before, so if you forget your instructions, she'll be able to cue you.

DEAR ABBY: Please explain in easy pool-hall language just what people mean when they say they are "born again"— —or "twice-born." Thank you.—B. H.: CLAY CITY, ILL.

DEAR B. H.: They mean that they have accepted Jesus Christ as their personal savior, and have put their faith and trust in Him.

For Abby's booklet, ."How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

TRUDY KAWAMI, PhD. candidate in Ancient Near Eastern Art, and husband, David, were two students in the metalworking workshop conducted by New Paltz professors Kurt Matzdorf (apron) and Robert Ebendorf (far right.) Lower photo - Professor Matzdorf demonstrates the modern method of making wire.

Professors Barter Labor for Knowledge

NEW PALTZ—Two professors, Kurt Matzdorf and Robert Ebendorf, at State University College at New Paltz have found the ancient system of barter can be used to foster dissemination of knowledge.

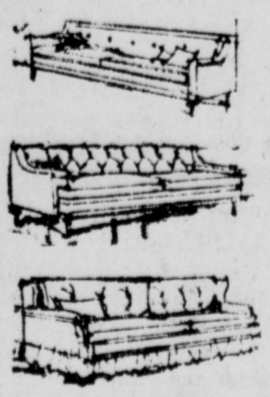

The professors who teach the ancient art of gold and silversmithing, have just completed a one week workshop in metalworking for a group which included five persons from the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. The two teachers received no pay for their work having instead bartered their labor for a series of lectures to be given by museum personnel to New Paltz graduate students during the coming academic year.

The workshop provided the students, who also included faculty members and graduate students from Columbia University and a staff member from the New York University Institute of Fine Arts, with practical knowledge in metalworking techniques including the sinking, raising and stretching of holloware; embossing; flat chasing; rolling and drawing of wire; niello; and repousse.

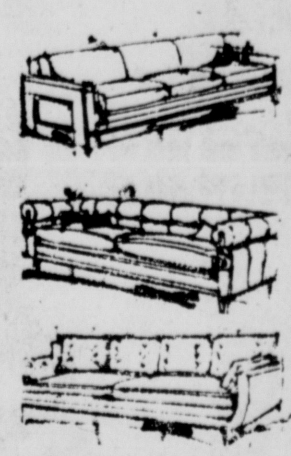

"This experience of working with metal," Matzdorf said, "will enable them to better understand the construction of the historical pieces they deal with as curators and art historians."

The Metropolitan people included Prudence O. Harper, curator of Ancient Near Eastern Art, and her assistant, Holly Pittman; Katherine Brown, associate curator of Medieval Art and Pieter Meyers, research chemist. The Columbia University contingent was led by Edith Porada, professor of art history. The NYU Institute of Fine Arts was represented by Trudy Helms.

Book Deliveries on Thursdays

KINGSTON—In response to requests at the Brigham School Playground Recreation Center, the Kingston Children's Library will be stopping with books every Thursday, 3.15 p.m. beginning this week. Taking books out to loan this summer to the various park centers was started two weeks ago by Sharon Elswit, librarian.

In addition to the new park program, regular summer activities are being conducted at the library, 110 Prince St., second floor, opposite the YMCA square.

Comedy Slated

FISHKILL—This week through July 25, The Cecilwood Theatre presents TV star Maeve McGuire in "My Fat Friend."

"My Fat Friend" is the story of overweight Vicky struggling to shed her excess poundage for the new man in her life, played by William Tost. She is aided in her struggle by her cynical, homosexual lodger (John Benson), and the boy who works in her shop (Lawrence O'Connell). This delightful play is directed by James Glass, producer of the Cecilwood Theatre.

Charlie Chaplin Film Festival Underway

NEW PALTZ—A Charlie Chaplin Film Festival is currently underway each Thursday evening in New Paltz and it is free. The festival is part of the program for the summer at the Student Christian Center, a united Protestant campus ministry to the State University College. The films begin at 9 p.m. and are shown by the Rev. Paul Walley, student Christian center director and campus minister, on the outdoor patio of Gage Hall dormitory at the college.

This Thursday, July 22, the movie will be "A Night Out," starring Chaplin, Ben Turpin, Leo White Bud Jamison and Edna Purveiance. This was the first movie for Miss Purveiance, who was to go on starring with Chaplin for some time. Two short films are shown with the main film and this week will be "Thank You, Mask Man" (a Lenny Bruce spoof); and "Brand New Day" (an animated short of a young woman greeting the beauty of the morning.)

The following week, July 29, "One A.M." will be the main movie.

Other programs being offered by the Student Christian Center this summer term are: Tuesday evening supper followed by volleyball and Bible Study. The supper is also free, held outdoors in the picnic area next to the center. The Bible study focuses on words and phrases in the Bible dealing with bodily postures and gestures relating to the Gospel. Led by the Rev. Mr. Walley, the study theme is "Body Language and the Bible." Supper is at 6 and study at 7:30 p.m.

On Wednesdays there is a summer coffee house at the Cave Inn, 143 Main St., next to the Trailways Bus Station and the Methodist Church education building. Student musicians play, admission is free although there is a small carge to cover refreshments. The program begins at 8:30 p.m. and continues to midnight. Artists scheduled tonight include two folk guitarists, Nelson Meyer and Rob Bass.

Information regarding the Student Christian Center may be obtained at the center, 62 Plattekill Ave., New Paltz. The center is funded by the Episcopal, Lutheran, Methodist and Reformed Churches in New Paltz.

The Rev. Mr. Walley is also conducting two field trips to Christian communities for 67 senior citizens attending a two week program at the college. They will visit the Society of Brothers in Rifton and the Holy Cross Monastery in West Park, an Episcopalian order.

Meat Prices Unchanged

KINGSTON—Retail meat prices will continue about unchanged this week with a fair number of beef, poultry and pork specials. These sale items are budget savers and are worth shopping around for, according to the Consumer and Market Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Like last week, it will pay to take a good look at beef features. Chuck roast and steak will be attractive purchases with prices ranging from 49¢ to 98¢, depending on cut and trim. Other economical purchases will be frankfurters from 84¢ to $1.15, ground chuck from 75¢ to 99¢, and beef liver, hamburger and bottom round roast in the vicinities of 49¢, 65¢ and $1.19 respectively. Other beef items prices attractively are sirloin steak from $1.37 to $1.59, round steak from $1.45 to $1.65, cubed steak beef chuck from $1.25 to $1.49, beef shoulder steak from $1.19 to $1.49, and beef top round roast from $1.49 to $1.59.

Poultry sales will highlight broilers and fryers from 48¢ to 49¢, cut-up 50¢ to 55¢, chicken parts from 59¢ to 99¢, and turkey breast from 89¢ to 99¢. In the eastern area, ducks will be on special in the vicinity of 89¢.

There will be some thrifty buys on pork which include smoked ham butt from 99¢ to $1.29, smoked ham shank from 85¢ to $1.19, smoked pork shoulder picnic from 68¢ to 99¢, and semi-boneless smoked ham as low as 95¢ in the central area. Other items on special, here and there,will be center cut pork chops from $1.85 to $1.88, pork spareribs from $1.38 to $1.49, bacon from $1.49 to $1.69, Polish sausage from 89¢ to $1.49, Italian sausage from $1.35 to $1.44 and rib pork chops in the area of $1.35.

Veal cuts — rib chops, loin chops, shoulder chops and leg of veal — will be on special in the western and eastern areas. Lamb sales should be nearly nil.

NUTRITION AND SURVIVAL

By J. SOLTANOFF, D.C.

Poisoned Power... A Grim Prediction

I have received a number of letters from confused readers asking me my opinion of nuclear power plants. This confusion reminds me of the controversy that raged during the 50's and 60's regarding the dangers of cigarette smoking.

At that time there was a deliberate attempt on the part of the cigarette manufacturers to confuse the American public regarding the harmful and dangerous effects of cigarettes.

So called "controversy" is now raging over the safety of nuclear power plants among atomic scientists. Many are seriously questioning the safety of the emergency core cooling systems (ECCS) in reactors, Science magazine reported recently.

If a nuclear power plant's ECCS did not function properly, clouds of radioactivity would be released into the atmosphere. Although it is suspected that one reason for the accident at the Robert F. Ginna reactor near Rochester several years ago was due to cracked fuel rods in a faulty batch manufactured by Westinghouse (shouldn't there be closer inspection of such vital materials?), many experts believe that more severe and stressful conditions are sure to occur in the new generation of higher capacity nuclear power plants.

Senator Mike Gravel has called for a Federal Trade Commission investigation of "deceptive" advertising in both Time and Newsweek magazines for nuclear power plants claiming that breeder reactors produce "essentially no radioactivity."

Said Senator Gravel : "The breeder power plant will necessarily be the greatest radioactivity-producing machine in all time. Ask any competent physicist...any kind of nuclear fission reactor produces radioactivity in direct proportion to the amount of energy it produces. A large nuclear electric plant of 3,000 thermal megawatts will produce as much radioactivity in one year of operation as the explosion of about 1,000 Hiroshima atom-bombs."

Residents of Ulster County in particular should be concerned, as we will be within range of three nuclear plants, including the one at Indian Point.

High Profits tend to breed mild suspicions Smoking and Your Reflexes

Athletic coaches and doctors who have long believed that smoking lowers muscle activity, received support for their theory recently from Drs. Edward F. Martin and Alma M. Von Baumgarten, both of the University of Michigan. Speaking to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, the doctors explained that smoking cigarettes can depress the patellar reflex (knee jerk) up to 67 per cent. This depression usually lasts 15 to 30 minutes after the first puffs are taken.

Further experiments showed no depression of the reflex for subjects who smoked nicotine-free (lettuce) cigarettes.

These two physicians believe that the nicotine effect would be the same for all skeletal muscles "since the nicotine inhibits nerve cells in the spinal cord." Discovering Potential Heart Victims

Colonel Loren F. Parmlay of Walter Reed Army Medical Center told a recent meeting of the American College of Physicians that an electrocardiogram taken after moderate exercise may be able to pinpoint potential heart victimes. Military physicians looked for electronic "scribbles" on the EKG chart as signs that the heart was not receiving enough oxygen; a malfunction called ischemia.

Medical tests have shown that people with ischemia have a high percentage of developing coronary artery disease. Exercise Clears Up Teenage Acne

A New York dermatologist (skin specialist) told a recent seminar on physical fitness that exercise and sports are often good for the skin and for skin conditions such as acne (pimples) so common with teenagers.

Dr. Louis Wexler, chief of dermatology at Beeckman-Douwntown Hospital, said that profuse perspiration loosens sebaceous plugs (blackheads or fatty plugs) and encourages a freer flow of sebum. This may result in a clearer complexion in those with skin problems.

Dr. Wexler also advised thorough washing with a mild soap and thorough drying with a moderately rough towel. Getting away from junk foods including sweets, cake, candy, ice cream, etc., should also be helpful. Dr. Soltanoff, a West Hurley chiropractor and nutritional advisor, does not prescribe or diagnose. He reports on various fields of health.

Soprano Helen Merritt To Star at Templemont's Inaugural Concert

TANNERSVILLE—Helen Merritt, who has many performances in oratorio, opera, concert, musical comedy and television to her credit, will be the artist to star at the inaugural concert on the new outdoor stage at Templemont in Tannersville this evening at 8:30 o'clock.The new stage is located in a green field with a rolling hill forming a natural ampitheatre.

Miss Merritt, "soprano extraordinary," was heard recently as guest soloist with the Catskill Glee Club. She has performed in Carnegie Hall, Philharmonic Hall, Town Hall, Carnegie Recital Hall, Broadway cast of "The King and I" and as "Julie" in Carousel.

Also appearing on the program will be Richard Bower, a talented pianist, who will accompany Miss Merritt and also play several solo selections. Folk singer, Lori Clinton will provide a change of pace with her warm style in folk music.

Templemont is located atop Clum Hill Road just off Rte. 23A in Tannersville. The program will begin promptly at 8:30 p.m. and the audience may bring folding chairs or blankets. Charge is $3. In the event of rain the concert will be at Tannersville High School.

Cecilwood Theatre Offering

'My Fat Friend' a Very Disjointed Tale

Editor's Note: John T. Sloper has been involved in the theatre for 18 years as stage manager and director. Since his move to Wappingers Falls in 1953, he has directed 24 productions locally. He now works freelance and has been writing theatre reviews for area publications since 1960.

FISHKILL--Not since "The Secret Affairs of Mildred Wild" has there been a production locally as tastelessly sophomoric as Charles Laurence's "My Fat Friend," currently at the Cecilwood Theatre in Fishkill. The British "comedy" will play through July 25.

The disjointed story hardly warrants telling. A girl who runs a bookstore finds instant love with a stranger who leaves the next day for four months in Iran. Her two lodgers conspire to make her lose weight so that she will be more appealing upon his return. He returns; she is thin; the romance is a shambles.

That's it! Nothing is said or done that could make us care one whit about the four unattractive people or their falsely humorous approach to life.

Maeve McGuire, with an obviously thin face and legs and a modicum of padding around the middle (in act I), is the fat friend of the title. Her lodgers are John Benson as a middleaged homosexual prankster and Lawrence O'Connell as a sour, sullen and petulant writer. William Tost has a thankless task as the easily unsuited suitor.

The performances, with the occasional exception of Ms. McGuire, do nothing to add any dimension to the tasteless and unincomprehensible script. Mildly naughty language that would be inoffensive if done with any kind of flair or style is dragged down to little-boy, bathroom-type humor that is unnecessary.

The speech patterns, sprinkled with stage British, are a confused mixture from all over, and the lines, though heard, are often not understood.

The script is as forced as the performances. Funnier (and more logical) conversation may be heard in any neighborhood bar. Attitudes that might have passed for sophistication in 1920 fall flat here, and by comparison to this author, Neil Simon attains (almost) the stature of Jonathan Swift.

If Laurence was reaching for laughs, these actors have overreached but have grasped only thin air. The play runs less than two and one-half hours.

It seems interminable.

KOed Nadjari Indictments Reinstated by the Court

NEW YORK (UPI) — Perjury indictments obtained by former Special Prosecutor Maurice Nadjari, but dismissed by the late Judge John M. Murtagh, have been reinstated by the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court.

The court, in a 4-1 decision Tuesday, overturned Murtagh's dismissal last December of the indictments against U.S. Customs Court Judge Paul P. Rao, his son, Paul Jr., and the son's law partner, Salvatore Nigrone because of "prosecutorial misconduct" in Nadjari's handling of the case.

The majority ruled on technical grounds that Murtagh promised but failed to give Nadjari 30 days in which to oppose motions for dismissal of the indictments.

Murtagh sharply criticized Nadjari for the use of undercover agents in seeking to have a robbery indictment "fixed" through Rao's office. His action paved the way for Gov. Hugh Carey's dismissal of Nadjari at the end of June.

In the dissenting opinion Tuesday, Justice Vito Titone said, "No prosecutor has a right to make a shambles and a mockery of a grand jury proceeding and no court should ignore such a travesty when it comes to its attention.

"This grand jury proceeding is so saturated with error that any indictment emanating therefrom should never again attain the status of a valid document," Titone wrote in listing instances of alleged misconduct by Nadjari.

Justice J. Erwin Shapiro said he voted for reinstatement "most reluctantly," and said he hoped the former prosecutor's newly-appointed successor, John Keenan, would make a "courageous reevaluation" in determining whether to proceed with the case.

Such a reevaluation of transcripts of proceedings leading to the indictments, Shapiro said, "will indicate to him as they have to me that they were secured by means abhorrent to those of us who believe that the Constitution was meant to be obeyed, not only by ordinary citizens, but by prosecutors as well."

In initial appeals of the indictments, the Raos' attorney, Roy M. Cohn, argued that the indictments should be dismissed because the so-called robbery was faked by Nadjari's undercover agents. Cohn said Nadjari, in an effort to entrap the Raos, was responsible for 12 separate crimes, ranging from forging police records to the removal of court records from the files.

In his dissenting opinion, Judge Titone supported that contention. He said, transcripts of tape recordings were read to grand jury members without permitting them to hear the tapes and assistant prosecutors participated in the grand jury's deliberations.

"When viewed in aggregate," Titone wrote, "the cumulative mistakes herein ... are so pervasive and enormous that quashing the indictment practically was mandated."

Rain Crushes Crops

(By UPI)

Driving rains swept northern Illinois Tuesday night and early today, crushing crops, flooding roadways and knocking out power in some areas.

More than five inches of rain soaked portions of Chicago's South Side and southern suburbs.

Roads ran curb-deep with water in some areas. Scores of cars stalled along major expressways in the metropolitan area and many drivers pulled off the roadways as raid reduced visibility to near zero.

Commonwealth Edison Co. reported a nnumber of power blackouts and brownouts in the southwest suburbs.

Lightning struck a Commonwealth Edison Co. transformer in Joliet, Ill., southwest of Chicago, knocking out power to a third of the Will County city. Joliet reported more than four inches of rain Tuesday night and the storm continued early today.

Will County sheriff's police worked from a flooded headquarters office.

There were no injuries.

Rainfall in the Chicago area Tuesday ranged from one-tenth of an inch in the northern areas to 5.62 inches in south suburban Frankfurt.

A flash flood warning was in effect today for northeastern Illinois and a flash flood watch posted for much of west-central Illinois.

The rains beat down corn crops in numerous fields and authorities said some crop damage was expected, though no damage estimates were available.

A broad band of thunderstorms stretched from eastern New Mexico through western Kansas early today and other storms hit portions of Iowa, Indiana and spread from New York into New England.

Heavy rains also hit portions of Iowa and Nebraska.

Steamboat Rock, Iowa, reported nearly two and a half inches of rain in an hour and Eldora, Iowa, got nearly two inches in the same period.

Roca, Neb., reported nearly an inch an a half of rain in a half hour Tuesday night.

'BEST THEME'

Marianne Williams, a member of the church board and representative of the Ponckhockie Congregational Church youth group, received the trophy for "best theme" float in Kingston's Bicentennial Parade from Mayor Francis R. Koenig. Also present were Egon Schreiner, Steuben Society parade unit organizer, representing the Society's Schuhplattler folk dancing group whose float won the grand prize and Edward Levine, Bicentennial Commission chairman. Kingston Lodge 970, Loyal Order of Moose, received the award for the most original float.

City Buses Now Have Ad Space

KINGSTON — City operated buses now have interior advertising space available for lease to merchants and other advertisers, according to a contract signed by Mayor Francis R. Koenig.

Advertising card racks in each of the city's three minibuses will be leased through Signs & Designs, an area design studio and advertising agency which submitted a low bid on the ad leasing.

Howard Slotnick, operator of Signs & Designs, will pay the city $250 and will in turn lease the space to advertisers.

The municipal busing program was begun in April under a federal transportation grant, starting with one minibus and later expanding to three.

Alderman James F. Howard, chairman of the Kingston Common Council's railroad and bus committee, said the advertising program should appeal to passengers and local businesses as well as provide revenue to the city.

Slotnick can be reached by telephone in Rosendale or through the Kingston Planning Office in city hall.

Adult Clinic Set for Woodstock

WOODSTOCK — The Ulster County Health Department will hold an adult acreening clinic at the Woodstock Health Center, 8 Maple Lane on Monday, July 26. The clinic will be open from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., but an appointment is necessary.

The clinic, which will serve anyone age 50 and older, will provide screening for blood pressure, hemoglobin, diabetes and other conditions, with counseling on related problems. This will be the final clinic for 1976.

Appointments can be made by calling the Woodstock Health Center Monday through Friday from 9 to 10 a.m. and from 4 to 5 p.m.

There will also be a clinic for immunization against polio, whooping cough, diptheria, tetanus, measles, german measles, and mumps held at the Woodstock Health Center on Wednesday, July 21 from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. It is recommended that immunizations be started at three months of age. The immunization service is available for those age 3 months to 21 years.

Another Strong Tuneup for Kingston

SAUGERTIES—If Tuesday night's game was any indication, the Legion county baseball championship will be a wild affair this weekend.

Kingston and Saugerties, the two combatants who are scheduled to meet in a best two-of-three series Friday, Saturday and Sunday, slugged it out at Cantine Field, with Kingston Post 150 prevailing, 8-6.

Kingston coach Ron Secreto utilized four pitchers: Joe Augustine, Dave Loeffler, John Acker and Marco Tiano, with Tiano picking up the win. Nick Malgeri suffered the loss for Saugerties.

Loeffler and Paul Runge keyed the win with two hits each and Loeffler drove in two runs and Runge three.

Kingston scored in the first as Rich Bell and John Grogan walked, a wild pitch scored Bell and Runge's single scored Grogan. It added solo runs in the second and fourth and two each in the fifth and sixth.

In the fifth, Kingston scored its pair when Augustine walked, advanced to second on a wild pitch and came home on Jay Foust's single. Foust scored when Loeffler doubled. In the sizth, Tom Slattery singled, Kevin Jordan pinch-ran and stole second, Grogan singled Jordan home and Runge doubled home Grogan for the final run by Kingston.

Saugerties got two in the first as Jay Harris and Steve Martin singled, Harris scored on an error and Tim Cole singled home Martin.

A three-run third came for Saugerties when Cliff Benjamin cleared the bases with a triple. The final run came in the sixth as Harris scored as Kingston failed to complete a double play.

The first game of the championship series is on Friday at 8:30 p.m. at Dietz Stadium. The second game will be Saturday at Saugerties(5 p.m.) and the third game, if necessary, Sunday at Dietz, (2 p.m.).

U.S. Men Near Swimming Sweep

MONTREAL (UPI) — Chauvinistic in their success, smug in their attitude and brash in their outlook, America's men swimmers are splashing their way toward an unprecedented clean sweep of every event on the Olympic program.

Except for the fact that they've been warned not to speak of it any longer—or risk a "kick in the teeth" from their coach —the star-studded Yanks are proving that silence is just as golden as their old openmouth policy when it comes to winning medals and showing up the rest of the world.

They made it 5-for-5 Tuesday night with two more victories, both in world record times, and they'll be big favorites in six of the remaining eight events.

Brian Goodell, who said that for the first part of his race he felt like he was in bed dreaming, outduelled teammate Bobby Hackett to win the 1,500 meters in 15:02.40, and John Hencken then captured the 100-meter breaststroke in 1:03.11.

Unfortunately, there is nothing gallant about the men's success in relation to their female teammates, who are being shown up by their inability to break through the gold barrier.

It was almost a day of disaster for the U.S. on another front, though, as Puerto Rico, led by guard Butch Lee of Marquette with 35 points, came within a basket of producing the biggest upset in Olympic basketball history. The Yanks managed to pull out a 95-94 squeaker, and it took two questionable calls by the officials to secure the victory.

Lee, a sophomore, wasn't even invited for the U.S. Trials although three of his Marquette teammates were, and as Quinn Buckner of the winners said, "I'm sure Butch Lee felt he had something to prove and he played like the great player he is."

Whether the close call to Puerto Rico was a fluke, or merely a letdown as Coach Dean Smith suggested, will be determined this afternoon when the Americans play against a strong Yugoslavian team which crushed P.R. by 21 points on Sunday.

By contrast to the invincible men swimmers, the American women have been unable to break through the superiority of their East German counterparts, and lost out on the one gold they thought they had in the bag Tuesday night when Pietra Thumer barely edged out Shirley Babashoff in the 400-meter freestyle.

It was Babashoff's second silver of the Games, and although her time of 4:10.46 broke the former world record by more than a second, she was disappointed at losing the gold.

It was the fourth triumph in as many races for the East Germans, and they very possibly will go on to capture every event.

The U.S. girls did manage a breakthrough in the water, though, when Jenny Chandler of Lincoln, Ala., won the three-meter springboard dive with a backward 2-½ somersault in the tuck position.

"That was probably the best one of that particular dive I've done in a year because it's been stinking up the pool," said Chandler, a 17-year-old, dark-haired high school senior.

Along with the two in swimming and one in diving, America earned a fourth gold medal Tuesday when Don Haldeman of Souderton, Pa., won the trapshooting with a score of 190.

This enabled the United States to overtake East Germany in the medal standings with seven gold, six silver and three bronze. The East Germans are next with 6-4-4 while the Soviet Union, with four, is the only other country with more than one gold medal.

Hencken, who also had won a gold in the 1972 Games at Munich, said the continuing success of the swimmers serves as a hype to the others who follow.

"It keeps everybody all psyched up," said the 22-year-old Stanford student, who tied his world record once and broke it twice during the preliminaries and final. "It's like a log, it just keeps rolling on."

Goodell, at 17 the baby of the team and still a high school senior, said he talks to himself a lot while swimming the marathon 1,500 meters. He recently completed a course called "Let Go of the Cookie," and explained, "It means to get your head together."

The 5-8, 150-pound Californian said that for the first 600 meters of his race, he felt he was in bed dreaming about it. "Then I said, 'This is the Olympics. Wake up. Keep going.'"

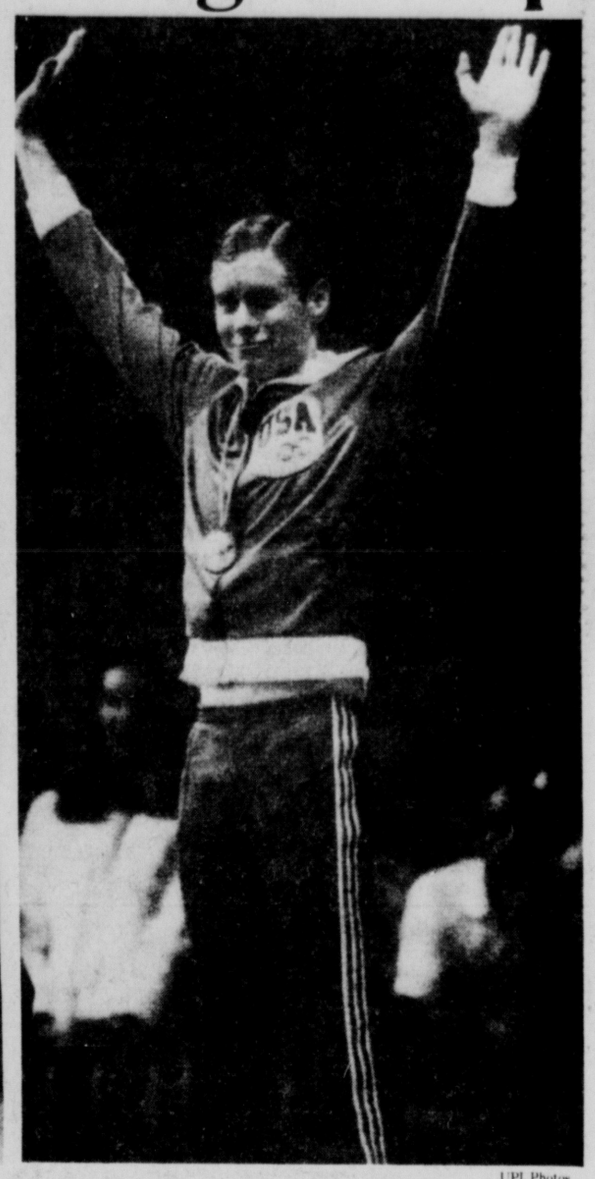

On a more serious note, there seemed a possibility of another political storm hitting these already troubled Games when it was learned that American gymnasts are planning a tour of South Africa next month.

Jackie Fie, U.S. representative to the International Gymnastics Federation, said she saw no conflict in the tour inasmuch as it doesn't involve members of the Olympic team.

"As far as we're concerned," she said, "there's nothing that comes under the jurisdiction of the IOC (International Olympic Committee) and I'm sure they're going to continue to go."

Even before this became a possible issue, Egypt and Morocco pulled out of the Olympics, adding Arab support to the boycott by Black Africa in protest of a New Zealand rugby tour of apartheid South Africa.

In other developments Tuesday, the U.S. women's basketball team evened its record at 1-1 by beating Bulgaria, 95-79; U.S. Greco-Roman wrestlers, a sport in which the Americans never have won a medal, scored two upsets as middleweight Dan Chandler of Minneapolis decisioned Csaba Hegedus of Hungary, the 1972 gold medalist, and superheavyweight Willie Lee of Muncie, Ind., pinned four-time world champion Alexander Tomov of Bulgaria; and in boxing bantamweight Charles Mooney outpointed former European champion Juad Rodriguez of Spain and flyweight Leo Randolph advanced on a forfeit.

TUNISIA (UPI) — Tunisia announced today that it has withdrawn from the Summer Olympic Games.

A statement issued by the Foreign Ministry here said that the inability of the International Olympic Committee and the Organization of African Unity to reach agreement on the question of New Zealand's participation in the games led to the Tunisian decision to withdraw.

The OAU has objected to New Zealand's participation in the Olympics because of a New Zealand rugby team presently touring apartheid South Africa.

"Tunisia, loyal to its policy of conciliation, has waited until the end in the hope that a decision it could support would be reached," the statement said.

The communique said Tunisia was now obliged to take its stand alongside its Arab and African brothers.

Four in Amateur Tie; A.J. in the Running

GROSSINGER — The New York State Golf Association's annual Amateur Championship began here Tuesday, but it did not have what anyone would call a rousing start. The best number any of the 137 starters could carve out of the unforgiving Big G links was a one-over-par 73.

Steve Cruse, Mike O'Connor, Dan Steltz and Peter Young all hit that figure to virtually assure themselves of making the 36-hole cut today which could climb as high as 160. In another foursome one shot behind the leaders' pace was hometown favorite Rad Yaun.

Two previous winners of the tournament, defending champ Dr. Alan Foster of Bellevue CC in Syracuse, and five-time state king Don Allen of the Country Club of Rochester, where among the masses who struggled with the huge greens and difficult pin placements. Foster blew to an 83, and Allen, who took a nine on one par five, came home in 79.

Of the Ulster County entries, Wiltwyck's A.J. Maneen led the way with one of the 15 rounds of 77. Frank Muller of Shawangunk was a shot behind that with 78, and his clubmate Jon Berger posted an 80.

The leaders all played steadily. None were worse than 38 on either nine. Cruse, of Ontario, had 37-36, O'Connor, of Blutt Point, fired 38-35, Steltz , of Holiday Valley, shot 36-37, and Young, from the Westchester CC, posted 38-35.

Yaun is a former New York State high school champ and a member of the Jacksonville University team, but the credential that made him a favorite was his affiliation with the host club. He went around his home trek in a run-of-the-mill 38-36 to finish in a group that included Bill Tyron of Elmira, Bob Chalanick of Highland and Dave Martin of Park.

Maneen, Muller and Berger qualified in the Mid-Hudson Sectional, one of a dozen qualifiers held across the state. The best Mid-Hudson start came from Bob Dockerty of Dutchess who managed a 76.

Albany's Charles Murphy and the state junior champ, James Gridley of Bellevue also came in in 76.

Berger played better than his score indicated and could have been well up among the leaders but for the final hole.

"I didn't know there were trees on the left," he said after he walked off the 18th green. The lesson he learned there cost him three strokes to par.

Barring a massive improvement in the scoring today, an unlikely possibility, Maneen and Muller need only to remain steady to win themselves places in the remainder of the 72-hole tournament. Berger is in a more precarious position and will have to battle for one of the 30 spots under the cut.

CHIP SHOTS...This was the first time the state tourney has visited Grossingers though the resort has hosted two LPGA events and a major pro-am...Conditions were almost perfect with swirling afternoon winds the only outside factor in the scoring... On the 13th, the hole where Allen took his nine, Muller faced a 100-foot putt. "It had to be at least a hundred feet," he said. He didn't make it...Catskill's John DeForest, who has played the local junior circuit, shot a respectable 78...Tad Boyce of Red Hook took an 81...Ray Billows of Dutchess, a multi-winner of the championship in his heyday, settled for 83...

Jim York Was Surprised

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jim York was "awfully surprised" when he was called upon to relieve Ken Holtzman for the New York Yankees in the first inning against the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night.

But it turned out to be a masterful selection by Yankees Manager Billy Martin as York pitched seven innings to get his first win since New York called him up from Syracuse.

The Yankees, with 16 hits, won 14-9 in a game stopped by rain with one out in the Chicago eighth inning.

The White Sox batted 11 men in the first inning, highlighted by Bill Stein's three-run homer, to grab a 7-0 lead. But that was meaningless as the Yankees knocked out starter Ken Brett in the second inning when 12 men went to the plate and New York scored seven runs to tie the game.

The decisive inning came early—in the Yankees' fourth— when Roy White walked, Thurman Munson and Chris Chambliss each singled, Greg Nettles doubled and, after a walk to Oscar Gamble, Carlos May delivered a pinch-single to score two runs and put the Yankees ahead to stay.

"I was just out to win," May said. "It was good and satisfying to get a hit. I have no greater incentive against Chicago than anybody else."

May was traded by the White Sox to the Yankees earlier this year, with Brett among the Sox' acquisitions in the deal.

Munson was the leader as the Yanks won for the 11th time in 12 games with the White Sox this season, driving in four runs with three hits.

For the Boston Red Sox, a disappointing fifth place in the American League East, it is a time for fresh starts and positive thinking.

"I'm not even concerned about the pennant race," said Boston's interim manager Don Zimmer, who acquired his first victory at the helm Tuesday night with a 4-2 win over the Texas Rangers.

"I just want to catch the clubs above us. We need to get above .500 before we can even begin to think about the Yankees." said Zimmer, who replaced the fired Darrell Johnson Monday afternoon.

Even with the win, the Red Sox stayed 14 games behind New York, a 14-9 winner over Chicago in a rain-shortened game. Elsewhere, Baltimore whipped Kansas City 10-3, Detroit, behind rookie sensation Mark "Bird" Fidrych, beat Minnesota 8-3, Milwaukee topped California 6-2 and Oakland downed Cleveland 7-4.

"They (the Yankees) are sitting pretty good right now," said Boston designated hitter Cecil Cooper, who drove in two runs. "But maybe we can apply a little pressure to them. It's happened before. Who knows? They may fall apart."

Orioles 10, Royals 3

Baltimore's Wayne Garland, 12-1, scattered seven hits and Bob Grich and Lee May contributed an impressive offensive show. Grich drove in five runs with a homer, a triple and a bases-loaded walk and May smashed two homers, bringing his season total to 17.

Tigers 8, Twins 3

Detroit's Fidrych boosted his record to 11-2 by scattering 10 hits before a season-high crowd of 30,425 at Minnesota. Rusty Staub drove in four runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly and Ron LeFlore knocked home two more with another homer as the Tigers spotted the Twins a 3-0 lead and rebounded to win. A's 7, Indians 4

Phil Garner's bases-loaded triple keyed a four-run ninth inning that broke a 3-3 tie and gave A's reliever Rollie Fingers his sixth win against six losses. Sal Bando's single off Dave LaRoche, 0-3, scored Don Baylor, then Gene Tenace walked and Garner greeted Jim Kern with his 10th triple. Billy Williams also contributed a homer for Oakland.

Brewers 6, Angels 2

Koosman Earns Plaudits From Both Sides of the Field

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Jerry Koosman has one of those "now you see it, now you don't" curves.

"It looks good to hit when it's coming towards the plate but just when you're ready to swing, the ball seems to disappear," said Joe Morgan Tuesday night after the 32-year-old Koosman pitched the New York Mets to a 2-1 victory over the Reds.

The veteran left-hander restricted the Reds to five hits, struck out eight and walked three in reeling off his fifth straight victory to boost his record to 11-6.

"I don't feel bad about losing that game," said Reds' manager Sparky Anderson. "I take my hat off to Koosman. When a man pitches a game like that, you've got to give him his dues."

"Koosman's curve breaks a lot even though he throws it slow," said Morgan. "Juan Marichal was the only other pitcher I've ever faced who threw the same kind of curve."

"I threw more curves than I normally do because I had a good one tonight," said Koosman, a Minnesota native who likes cool weather and pitches best at the beginning and end of each season.

"Since I've found this little friend," said the smiling Koosman, nodding toward the cup of Gatorade he held in his hand, "the heat doesn't bother me as much as it used to."

Koosman downed a half cup of the soft drink between each inning. He also changed uniforms twice.

"The last time I pitching, I changed uniforms four times I perspired so much."

The Mets bunched singles by Felix Millan, John Milner and Ed Kranepool with a sacrifice fly by Mike Vail to score both of their runs in the first inning.

Gary Nolan, 8-5, took the loss.

The Philadelphia Phillies on the menu are a pitcher's nightmare but Randy Jones eats them for appetizers.

Jones won his 17th game and shut out the heavy-hitting Phils for the third time this season in a quick one hour, 32-minute workout Tuesday night when he pitched the San Diego Padres to a 3-0 win over the Eastern Division leaders.

"It's just a team I can handle," Jones said. "I don't know why. That changes from year to year but I just hope it continues."

Jones, who has lost four, continues to solidify his chance to become the National League's first 30-game winner since Dizzy Dean turned the trick in 1934. Denny McLain won 31 for Detroit in 1971.

Dean picked up eight victories in relief, however, while McLain came out of the bullpen several times in September, something Jones says he'll never do.

"I'd do anything to help this club but I'd never come in to relieve just for a couple of wins on my record," Jones said. "Yes, I'd like to win 40 but not that way. That's cheap. I'd rather win 29 of my own. Who needs 30 that bad? Anyhow, I keep telling you, I'm just looking for 18."

The complete game was Jones' 17th in 23 starts and the shutout was his four this season and 12th in his career.

Steve Carlton saw his personal five-game winning streak snapped as he dropped to 10-4.

In other games, Pittsburgh beat Houston 9-5 before losing 4-3, Chicago edged San Francisco 3-2, Los Angeles downed St. Louis 3-2 and Montreal took Atlanta 4-3.

Pirates 9-3, Astros 5-4

Manny Sanguillen laced a bases-loaded triple to cap a six-run first-inning Pittsburgh outburst and help John Candelaria boost his record to 10-4.

In the nightcap, Enos Cabell tripled and scored on a ninth-inning sacrifice fly by Ed Herrmann to give the Astros a split of the doubleheader.

Giants 3, Cubs 2

Chicago's Rick Reuschel was coasting along on a two-hitter until the ninth when he developed tenderness on his pitching hand and was taken out. Joe Coleman relieved, walked Marty Perez, allowed a double to Gary Matthews and Bobby Murcer's run-scoring groundout. Darold Knowles came in to squelch the uprising and record his ninth save.

Dodgers 3, Cards 2

Davey Lopes hit his first home run of the season in the second inning to lead Los Angeles and left-hander Doug Rau over St. Louis. The Cardinals' Lynn McGlothen saw his record dip to 8-9.

Expos 4, Braves 3

Montreal, which had won only three games in July, halted a five-game losing streak as Barry Foote singled home a run and Pepe Frias drove home another run with a sacrifice fly in the third inning to beat Atlanta in a rain-delayed two-hour contest.

Unser, Garrett To Expos

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos Tuesday night traded outfielders Jim Dwyer and Pepe Mangual to the New York Mets in exchange for infielder Wayne Garrett and outfielder Del Unser.

The announcement was made during Tuesday night's rain-delayed game between the Expos and the Atlanta Braves by Montreal President John McHale.

Dwyer, who has been used primarily as a pinch-hitter, was batting only .185. He appeared in 50 games, had 92 at-bats, seven runs, 17 hits three doubles, one triple, no home runs and five RBI's.

Mangual, who had nailed down a regular outfield job with Montreal, was batting .260 in 67 games. He had 215 at-bats, 34 runs, 56 hits, nine doubles, one triple, three home runs and 16 RBI's.

"We've been working on this deal for the past six weeks," said McHale. "But I guess the injury to (Dave) Kingman Monday night pretty much allowed the Mets to make up their minds. Both Garrett and Unser are left-handed batters and that's what we need because we face so many righthanded pitchers.

"In the deal, we're giving away quite a bit in age because Dwyer and Mangual are younger." Dwyer is 26 and Mangual is 24.

Garrett, 29, has been with the Mets since 1969 and entered this season with a lifetime batting average of .238. A utility player who has played second, shortstop and third base, he played in two World Series with the Mets and hit two home runs in the 1973 classic against Oakland.

Lowe Paces County Women

KINGSTON—Nancy Lowe was the low qualifier with an 87 to lead 22 women into the Ulster County Women's Golf Azsociation golf tournament which will be played Aug. 3 and 4 at Woodstock and Wiltwyck Country Clubs.

Tuesday's qualifying round at Twaafskill Country Club brought the total field to 45. Twenty-three of the exempt 25 (low finishers in last year's tourney) have accepted invitations.

Lowe also led a group of 11 Wiltwyck GC golfers into the tournament, the largest contingent from any club in Tuesday's round. Woodstock CC will be represented by three golfers, Twaafskill by one, Shawangunk by two, Rondout by one, Huguenot Manor by two and the Granite by one. One woman was unattached.

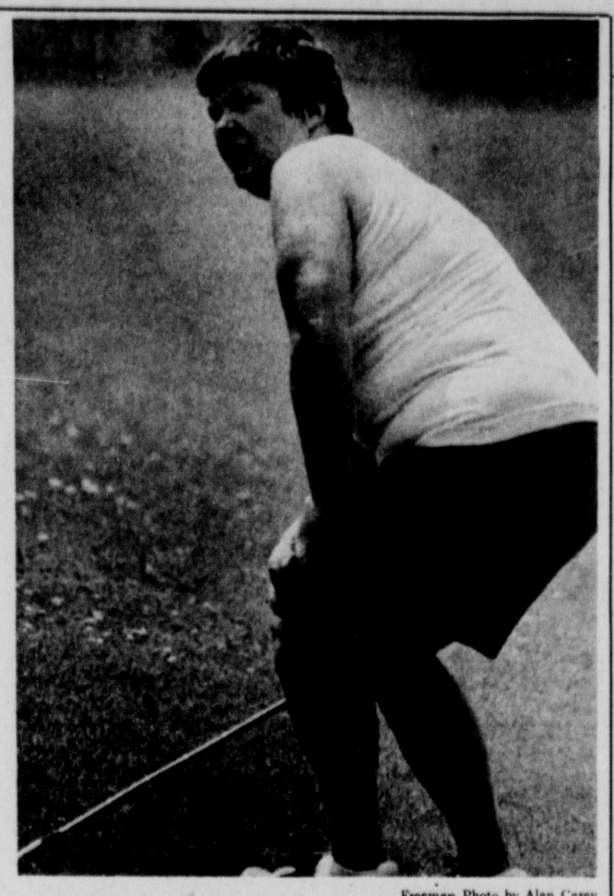

Behind Lowe in qualifying was Carol Roever (Huguenot Manor) with an 89, Boots Overbaugh (Wiltwyck) at 90, and tied at 93, Sylvia Randall (Wiltwyck), Grace Pugliese (Wiltwyck) and Pat Sullivan (Woodstock).

Rounding out the top 10 were Pat Davenport (Wiltwyck), Dotty Rifenbary (Wiltwyck), Charlotte Merritt (Wiltwyck) and Ellie Christenson (Wiltwyck), all at 94, and Edith DeWitt (Wiltwyck) and Mitzi Hoffman (Twaafskill) at 95.

The representatives of the clubs of the Ulster County Women's Golf Association will meet to set pairings and starting times for the tournament. The meeting is July 26, 10 a.m. at Woodstock CC.

The qualifiers:

Qualifiers: Nancy Lowe (Wiltwyck) 87; Carol Roever (Huguenot Manor) 89; Boots Overbaugh (Wiltwyck) 90; Sylvia Randall (Wiltwyck) 93; Grace Pugliese (Wiltwyck) 93; Pat Sullivan (Woodstock) 93; Pat Davenport (Wiltwyck) 94; Dotty Rifenbary (Wiltwyck) 94; Charlotte Merritt (Wiltwyck) 94; Ellie Christenson (Wiltwyck) 94; Edith DeWitt (Wiltwyck) 95; Mitzi Hoffman (Twaafskill) 95; Peter Turnbull (Woodstock) 96; Muriel Miller (Shawangunk) 97; Phyllis Jackson (Rondout) 99; Ada Mass (Wiltwyck) 100; Rusty Tennenbaum (Shawangunk) 101; Barbara Ronder (Wiltwyck) 102; Lois Charlton (Granite) 102; Heidi Jewett (Huguenot Manor) 103; Ruth Bechtel (unattached) 104; Peg Sharpe (Woodstock) 104.

SIDELINES

Steve Kane

Steve Dropkin, the quiet guy who almost messed up Monday's Woodstock Open by threatening to run away with the title, is a worthier winner than most of his victims realized. Back when the NJCAA's Region XV had some good golfers, players like Joe Bostic and Tom Monticello, Dropkin was among the best of the lot.

He took the Rockland Community College banner all the way to the national JUCO tournament in Roswell, New Mexico, and he was well up among the medalists in that rugged competition.

He went to Florida after his two years at Rockland were over, but he decided to leave college after only about a month in the south. Since that time he's been working and playing golf, much of the latter with his former RCC coach, Howie Pierson.

Both Dropkin and Pierson play out of Riverdale. In team events, like the Ike, they are a dynamic duo, physically not unlike Batman and Robin. Dropkin thinks they should have won the Ike team title this year, but "I let Howie down."

The pair also joined a New York club, Blue Hills, in order to be eligible for tournaments in this state, but that venture backfired. The club squashed their eligibility because they didn't show up too often at Blue Hills.

Mil Radler kept the excitement alive at Woodstock with a fine performance that equalled Dropkin's. The five-under-par totals of those two overshadowed the fact that the Open field as a whole played better than ever. The median score was 74—it's never been that low before—and only a dozen of the 99 players failed to break 80.

Next year promises to be even better. The increased purse brought the pros out of the woodwork, a trend which should continue. That will enable the hard-pressed tournament committee to be a little firmer with borderline players and Johnnies-come-lately.

About the only negative feedback heard from the contestants had to do with getting lunch. The small Woodstock facilities just couldn't get the goodies out fast enough.

That should be improved by the time the 42nd Open rolls around, and there is one other change in the works, the date. Conflicts have plagued the tourney in recent seasons. This year it was pro-ams at Winged Foot and Niagara Falls.

Instead of the third Monday in July, the standard time slot for the tournament in recent years, the contest will most likely be switched back to its original date, the second Friday in August. Tournament officials are hoping such a change will cut down on the number of conflicting events that draw good players away from the field as well as give a boost to the size of the gallery.

There's another open golf tournament in the works, the Grossinger Open. It'll be played August 30 and offer a total purse of $5,000 with $1,300 to the winner.

The first 80 pros and 40 amateurs to file will get spots. Amateurs need an eight handicap or better to file.

Mark Etess of Grossingers reports he's already got his first entry. It's from an amateur named Mary Diana. She'll be hitting from the same tees as the men.

Grossingers also landed the State Amateur this year, and it's currently in progress, but host Paul Grossinger won't be around to watch how it ends. He'll be playing in the New York Seniors Tournament.

He's looking forward to it, but he's making no predictions.

"I used to be a pretty good player, " he said. "I shot a 73 at Knollwood once, and I've broken 80 at Baltusrol."

Grossinger was watching the amateurs struggle with his course Tuesday when he had an unusual experience he later recounted.

"Ever hear of a guy losing his bag on the course?" he asked, "Ever hear of a guy losing all his clubs...his caddy... his cart?"

Seems on a tour of the links he ran into a lost miss driving a player's bag and clubs down a service road.

"It's a good thing I was there. She was headed for the 13th, and her player was on the seventh," he chuckled.

★★★

Another tournament is going to be held in Albany later this month, an American Legion baseball tournament. It will involve all-star county teams from Albany, Rensselaer and Columbia, among others. It would be interesting to see what an Ulster County squad could do against such competition.

Marco Tiano and Tim Cole on the same side for a change? How about interchangeable double play combinations of Val Galm and Paul Runge and Jay Harris and Nick Malgieri?

You can't help but think that with such a combination of forces Ulster would raise some eyebrows, some of which would belong to a scout or two.

Six Teams Advance in District 16 Girls' Softball

KINGSTON—Lopsided scores were the rule Tuesday as play began in the District 16 Little League Girls Softball tournaments. Four of the six contests were one-sided affairs.

In the senior division, Esopus crushed Rondout Valley 11-3, Kingston Nationals slapped Jaycees 13-7, and Hurley topped Ulster 5-3.

In the junior division, the Americans slammed Jaycees 12-5, Hurley dominated Esopus 9-1 and Rondout Valley edged the Nationals 6-4.

Play resumes Thursday night in the senior division with Esopus meeting National at Americans Field and Hurley vs. the Americans at Rondout Valley field. In the junior division, the Americans meet Hurley at National field and Rondout Valley takes on Town of Ulster at Jaycees field.

Cheryl Turck pitched Esopus to the 11-3 win over Rondout Valley and Kathy Moxham doubled, had two hits and drove home three runs to aid the win. Kate Smith also doubled for Esopus. Their big inning was the fourth, with four runs.

Kingston National pushed across eight runs in the fit th in beating the Kingston Jaycees 13-7. Terri Bell was the winning pitcher and Dawn Bouton took the loss.

Hurley scored four in the first on its way to the 5-3 win over Ulster as Mary Tentnowski was the winning pitcher. Pat Fusaro took the loss. Leslie Warren and Nadine Fischer keyed the first inning rally.

Lisa DiBernardo got hits hits and scored three runs and Dawn Downs was the winning hurler as Hurley beat Esopus 9-1. Lisa Mitchell took the loss. Joanne Johnson drove in two runs.

Rondout Valley scored five in the second as it beat Kingston National 6-4. Jill Brown won the game and Yolanda Turini took the loss. Barbara Caddington , Dori Cesserato, Tammy Krom and Bonnie McMillan each got two hits.

The Americans scored seven in the fifth and in four of five innings in beating the Jaycees 12-5. Dena Perry was the winner, Dorothy Hembold took the loss. Kelly Dahl had a triple and two hits for the Americans.

Quarterfinal Stage for Boys' LL Tournament

KINGSTON — Play in the District 16 Little League baseball tournament reaches the quarter-final stage tonight at 6 p.m. with four games around the county.

Five of the eight teams in action this evening will be making their first tournament appearances. They include Hurley and Rondout Valley, who'll meet at the American LL field; the Indians and Esopus, who'll tangle at Highland; and Highland, which meets the Ellenville squad at Esopus.

The other second round game tonight pits the Americans against the Jaycees at Rondout Valley.

The Americans advanced Monday with an 8-1 win over the Nationals. Jaycees beat Ulster, 9-1, and Ellenville trimmed Onteora, 5-2.

Tonight's winners meet Friday at Highland and Ulster. The championship game is set for Saturday at a field and time to determined.

Mike Dittus drove in three runs, John Riester knocked home two and George Uhl tossed a six-hitter as the Jaycees beat Ulster in Monday's tournament opener. Paul Brink had a pair of hits for Ulster.

Rich Gillette and Ray Weston each cracked two hits to spark Ellenville over Onteora. Edwin Ramos and Andy Konca combined on a three-hitter to keep the losers at bay.

Huguenot Juniors In Classic Lead

ACCORD — Defending champion Huguenot Manor moved into first place in the Mid-Hudson Junior Golf Classic standings Tuesday at Rondout Pool, Golf and Tennis Club by capturing the circuit's weekly stop by a whopping 30 strokes over runnerup Catskill.

Wiltwyck, which had been the aggregate leader but which was missing one of its top players Tuesday, finished third, 35 shots behind.

Huguenot Manor now has a three-match total of 1,038 to Wiltwyck's 1,054. Catskill remains in striking distance with 1,070.

Medalist for Tuesday's round was Bryan Smith, Jr., of Wiltwyck with 40-37—77. Steve Van Tassel of Sawyercrest and Todd Krieg of Huguenot Manor tied for second with 79s.

The circuit stops at Shawangunk next Monday.

Record $1.5 Million Sale For Secretariat Offspring

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — A chestnut colt sired by 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat brought a world record price of $1.5 million Tuesday night at the concluding session of the Keeneland Race Course Summer Yearling Sale.

The colt, out of Charming Alibi, was purchased by a Canadian syndicate from the consignment of Texas millionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt's Bluegrass Farm.

Baeza, Ruffian Named to Hall of Fame

SARATOGA SPRINGS (UPI) — Jockey Braulio Baeza and the late filly Ruffian were among nine racing figures named Tuesday to the Saratoga Racing Hall of Fame.

Ruffian, who broke down during a nationally-televised match race in 1975 at Belmont against Foolish Pleasure and had to be destroyed, was named in the "female horses — modern" category. Baeza was chosen in the active jockey category.

Also named to the Hall of Fame was Susan's Girl in the modern female horse division; Northern Dancer in modern male horse category; Alsab as old-timer male horse; Bon Nouvel as a steelechase horse; Bed O'Roses as old-timer female horse; Woody Stephens as active trainer, and Robert Smith as old-time trainer.

Ruffian won 10 of her 11 starts and was both two-year-old and three-year-old filly champion, in 1974 and 1975 respectively. Susan's Girl is one of three race mares to earn more than 1 million dollars. Bed O'Roses, racing in the early 50s, was both a two-year-old champion and a four-year-old champion.

Braves Are Home Tonight To Face Wappingers Ions

KINGSTON — The Kingston Braves continue their battle for the Hudson Valley Rookie League championship tonight at 8 p.m. when they host the Wappingers Falls Ions at Dietz Stadium.

The New Paltz Falcons also are in action this evening with a 6 p.m. game at Marlboro.

The Braves go on the road Sunday for games in Newburgh against the New Windsor Rockets and the Newburgh Atoms. They then return to Dietz Monday night to entertain Marlboro.

Panella's 16 runs batted in tops the squad. Gallo has 16 runs scored.

Tim Cole 's 4-0 record and 0.00 ERA with 35 strikeouts in 21⅓ innings pitched heads the mound corps. Bob Marz, Kevin Coughlin and Tom Whitaker each have won three without a loss.

Kingston Sport Club Eyes International Tournament

KINGSTON — The Kingston Sport Club has been invited to send a team to an international soccer tournament in Montreal over the Labor Day weekend.

The club is now in the process of soliciting community support to help finance the venture.

Further information may be obtained from club members Doug Renaud, Kurt Schock or Joel Tomson.

Ulster Swimmers Win Five Races

KINGSTON—The Ulster County Swim Club recently participated in both the Adirondack Association Junior Olympics Long Course championships and the Lake Placid Annual Long Course Invitational swim meet.

The club, coached by New Paltz State's Art Stockin and Kingston High's Floyd McCormick, saw Rex Herman capture a total of five first places in the two meets.

At the Adirondack meet, Herman was first (ages 9-10) in the 200 meter Individual Medley in 3:02.8. Donna Durkin (13-14) was first in the 100 meter backstroke in 1:19.0, Kathy Sheren (13-14) was first in the 200 meter IM in 2:46.0, and Bob Winrow (15-18) was first in the 100 meter butterfly in 1:03.1. Herman and Winrow were runners-up for high point awards in their age divisions.

Swimmers to make the final six in their events included Joy Herman, Carole Murphy, Tracy Lasher, Kyle McCormick, Larry Jordan, Steve Rubin, Donna Durkin, Eileen Sullivan, Kevin McCormick, John Hickey, Patti Durkin, Barb Buck, and Paul Hansen.

At the Lake Placid meet, Herman captured four first places and one second to win the high point award in the 10-andunder division. He won the 50 meter free (33.9), 100 meter free (1:15.3), 50 meter breaststroke (45.6) and 50 meter butterfly (39.5).

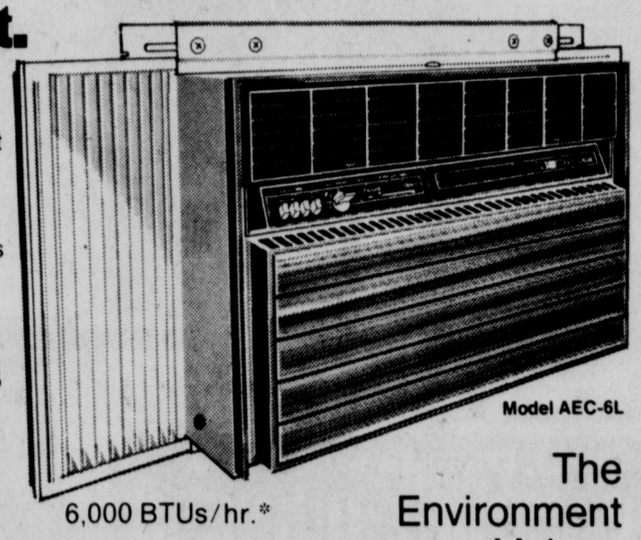

Barb Buck won the only other first place for Ulster, taking the 100 meter backstroke in 1:19.3. Thirteen other Ulster swimmers made the final six in their eventa.

Aerodynamics

With a helping hand from helicopter and crew from the New York Air Force National Guard, this once proud "king of the road" cruises along for its last journey. The trip will end at West Point's artillery impact area where the car will become a "target" for Military Academy cadet summer training artillery practice.

Area Service News

Back from Europe

KINGSTON—Major Mel Moss, U.S. Army, has returned from his second European three-year tour of duty.

He was attached to Headquarters Company of the First Armored Division in Germany. In December, 1974, he was assigned to the Inspector General's staff.

The major has been in service since January, 1965. He spent three years in Germany, one year in Vietnam, a year at Fort Knox, three years as instructor at Kansas State College, Pittsburg, Ka., where he graduated and now his second tour in Germany.

He will visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Moss of 89 Southfield St., Kingston before going to his next assignment. He is to attend General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Ka.

100th Plans Reunion

HYDE PARK—The 100th Infantry Division Association is planning its 29th annual reunion at Pocono Manor Inn and Golf Club, Pocono Manor, Pa., Sept. 9 through 12.

The association is made up of former 100th Infantry Division members who served in World War II.Frank G. Andros of PO Box 55, Hyde Park, 12538, may be contacted for further information and reser-

Reserve Due Home

KINGSTON—The Kingston units of the Army Reserve are into their second week of training at Fort Drum, Watertown.

Major Joseph Paes, Battalion commander, has announced that the first week of training was outstanding and the units of the Hudson Valley are ahead of their work schedules and programs. The weather at Drum has been favorable for the many construction programs. There are several large road construction projects, several bridges and buildings renovations on the post.

The Kingston Units are known at Drum as the "builders." The 854th Battalion is one of the few in the state to have the mission to build or renovate as quickly as possible so the facility may be used.

The Army Reserve will return from training July 24.

Advice For Vets

KINGSTON—Many veterans allow their GI Insurance policies to lapse because of neglect rather than intent, according to Donald Moore, counselor, New York State Division of Veterans Affairs.

A number of them, he said, develop the habit of riding the grace period for premium payments. Then, they forget to mail their payments before the deadline, unkowingly allowing their policies to lapse.

Moore urged area veterans to bring premium payments up to date and make future payments before the grace period.

Assigned To 101st

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky.—Army Private Jack W. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sengelton of Modena, recently was assigned to the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Pvt. Thomas is a member of Company C, First Battalion of the division's 327th Infantry. He entered the Army in 1974.

Bank Opens Electronic System

Shop Rite Manager Lee Lussier tries new system

KINGSTON — Electronic banking has been introduced by Kingston Trust Co., which installed its first electronic transfer system, or EFTS, at a terminal in the Shop Rite Supermarket, Boices Lane, Monday.

The service, known as "The Bank Key" has already been installed at about 60 merchants in the upstate area by First Commercial Banks Inc., through its member banks in Syracuse and Albany.

William H. Stevens, president of Kingston Trust, said his bank has received approval from the State Banking Department to operate subsequent installations at Miron Home Center, Route 9W, Lake Katrine, scheduled for Aug. 2 and at Gov. Clinton Market, 777 Broadway, scheduled for Aug. 16. A fourth location, Rosendale Food Center is pending approval and many more locations should be forthcoming, he said.

The Bank Key service will operate through electronic terminals at store locations connected to the bank's computer center. Bank Key customers will be able to make deposits or withdrawals from their checking accounts and pay for goods without writing checks.

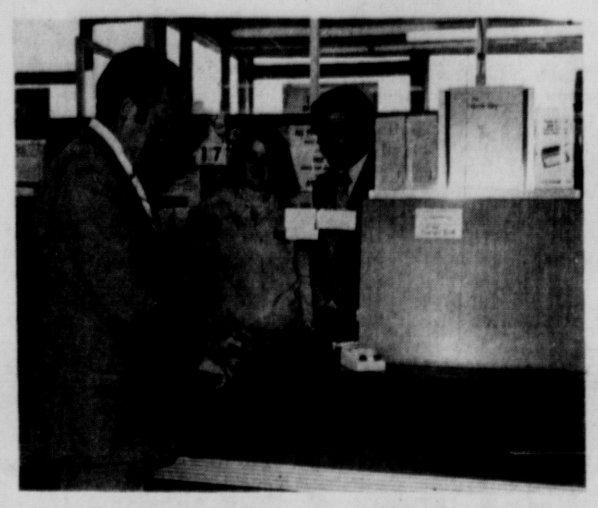

The Bank Key customer fills out a form describing what he wants — cash, payment of a purchase, or a deposit. He then gives the slip to the terminal attendant, who inserts the slip and a plastic bank key into the banking terminal.

Then the customer spells out his own personal password on a palm-size electronic pad, resembling a touch-telephone keyboard. Only when the customer enters his correct, secret password does the transaction take place.

The transaction takes place instantly and the customer's checking account is charged or credited. As a safeguard to privacy, the balance of the checking account is not available to the store clerk.

Stevens said the Bank Key will eliminate the need for stores to verify the customer's identification, saving both the store and customer inconvenience and delays. All Bank Key transactions are guaranteed to the store by The Bank.

Rondout National Stock Sale Done

KINGSTON — Rondout National Bank has completed the sale of its recent stock offering of 30,360 new shares, increasing the bank's stockholders from 225 to 424 and adding $516,120 to its capital.

The additional capital will permit further growth of the bank, including construction of a new permanent branch on Hurley Avenue in Kingston and an additional office in Saugerties, according to a joint statement by Chairman Lawrence A. Quilty and President James F. Dwyer.

"Rondout National is one of the few banks in the country to successfully market a new issue of stock in the past few years," Dwyer said. "It clearly demonstrates the confidence people have in independent banking in the Ulster County area."

Quilty commended "all who helped and participated in the sale, including stockholders, officers and employes of the bank."

Cafe Gets a 'Second'

KINGSTON — Having just toasted Schneller's Upstairs for being awarded the state's first tavern wine license, Kingston will now raise its glass again, this time to Cafe Downtown, which will have the distinction of being the second restaurant in the state with the new license.

"I might be second best but I'm trying harder," Bob Johnson, Cafe Downtown proprietor, quipped Monday when he received notification from the state to pick up his license on July 23. Schneller, of 63 John St., has license number TW-1 and Johnson's restaurant on West Strand will have TW-2.

Coming from behind is nothing new to Johnson, whose efforts to establish revitalized downtown in the West Strand area are well-known. He began the building of his restaurant business in an 1870 structure on the Strand in 1973 and was hit by disaster in April of this year when an alleged arsonist set fire to the building.

Fund raising affairs were held to help Johnson carry on his one-man crusade to restablish the restaurant which is scheduled to reopen this week or next.

There'll Be Some Changes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A clinic that diagnosed men as pregnant was ordered to improve its procedures.

Superior Court Judge Norman Dowds ordered the Phoenix Family Medical Clinic of Long Beach Tuesday to stop telling women they are pregnant unless the test was supervised by a physician or registered nurse.

The investigation began after seven students and an instructor at the California State University at Long Beach went to clinic and were diagnosed as as pregnant, though none was.

Eight female undercover agents then went to the clinic, investigators said, including four who substituted male urine for their own and two who had undergone hysterectomies and could not possibly be pregnant.

Two of the four male urine samples were diagnosed as coming from pregnant women, and both the hysterectomy cases were told they were pregnant, the complaint said.

The women said they were then offered abortions for $150.

Gay Gets Liberal Nod

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Earl Colvin, a gay activist, has won the Onondaga County Liberal Party's endorsement to run for the 32nd district congressional seat held by Democrat James Hanley.

The party gave its endorsement to the 43-year-old Colvin Monday. He is a political newcomer who said the National Gay Task Force told him he is the first openly gay person to see a seat in Congress.

Colvin, a graphic artist, said his inexperience in politics and government make him the best qualified candidate for the job.

"I can approach the job with an open mind, fresh ideas and an unjaded attitude, ready and willing to work and fight for those who elect me."

Congress Data Via Satellite

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time, Congress has received testimony by way of a communications satellite.

The cable television industry arranged to have the testimony relayed Tuesday from a satellite orbiting 22,300 miles above the equator. The House Communications subcommittee, which heard the testimony, has been studying the industry several weeks.

Donald Williams, president of a San Diego cable TV firm, argued by satellite that cable TV should be released "from the tangled web of burdensome regulation" under current provisions of the Federal Communications Commission.

Williams sat in a cable television studio in Santa Monica, Calif., and was questioned from Washington by Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., a former San Diego broadcaster. Committee members watched Williams on four color TV sets.

Members of the subcommittee questioned Williams after the testimony. Although they could see and hear him, Williams could only hear the congressmen.

A cable TV spokesman said the satellite rental cost about $625.

Arty Shelling Shatters Partial Beirut Truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A shelling attack on Arab League peace-keeping troops entering Beirut's no-man's land today shattered a partial truce and renewed fighting around a besieged Palestinian camp delayed the evacuation of 100 seriously wounded persons inside.

Gunners firing from Beirut's Christian sector shelled the city's "green line" dividing Christian and Moslem militias just as an armored column of Arab League forces was arriving.

Reporters said leftist gunmen manning roadblocks began cheering and clapping as the first of the peace-keeping troops arrived. Moments later heavy sniper fire from the Christian side sent them scattering.

A five-minute barrage of artillery fire landed in the midst of the column of 15 armored cars and 10 jeeps and personnel carriers and touched off panic among several hundred persons, who had assembled to watch them move in.

About 10 shells slammed into the street, wounding several persons. A Lebanese photographer was shot in the neck by a sniper and one shell blasted the road ahead of a car carrying several reporters, including UPI correspondent Michael Ross, shattering their windshield.

The white-helmeted Arab Leabue troops ducked inside their armored cars and quickly shut the latches. They took up positions along the side of the road but did not fire back.

Heavy fighting also broke out around the Palestinian camp of Tal Zaatar in southeast Beirut, forcing the International Red Cross to postpone its third attempt to send in a relief convoy to evacuate the 100 worst cases among the estimated 1,000 wounded languishing in the camp during the month-long Christian siege.

But a Red Cross spokesman said no immediate decision was made to cancel the convoy. He said he would wait until noon for the fighting to stop.

"If it doesn't, then the convoy is canceled," he said.

Trouble in Finding Partners, Too

Coast Woman, 83, Has Quite a Racket

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Peg South, 83, said she turned to tennis at the age of 66 to avoid becoming "a tea and toast old lady."

After playing a couple years she realized "I wasn't getting any better" so she tracked down a tennis pro, told him, "I don't mind spending the time and the money if you have the patience" and spent four years perfecting her game.

Now she claims to be the nation's oldest competitive tennis player, and says she has trouble finding partners in her age group. She resorts to playing with those in their 40s and 50s.

Miss South, who lives in the Emerald Bay area of Laguna Beach, will seek her sixth straight victory this weekend in the International Senior Olympics at San Diego Country Estates, a resort community 44 miles northeast of San Diego.

She plays tennis at least five days a week, Miss South says, "and I haven't a complaint on earth." As for her age, she claims "numbers don't make so much difference — it's how you feel."

She played tennis while attending Oregon State College in 1915, but says she didn't play again until her retirement at the age 66. "My mother died, and I didn't have any responsibilities," she said, "I didn't want to be a tea and toast old lady or a bridge player."

Lobs One

Lightning Strikes

According to scientists with the National Weather Service, the distribution of electricity in a thunderstorm cloud is usually a concentration of positive charge in the frozen upper layers, and a large negative charge around a positive area in the lower portions of the clouds.

The earth is normally negatively charged with respect to the atmosphere. It is estimated that some 1,800 thunderstorms are in progress over the earth's surface at any given moment, and that lightning strikes the earth 100 times each second.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

STUCK: (Q.) I am 18 and the only one in my family who doesn't have a job. I have an older sister and two older brothers who work but live at home. And my mother and father work.

So guess who gets stuck with all the house work? Me! I'm sick of it. I don't have any time of my own. Or money either.

When my parents tell me to do something, should I say, "No, I've got things of my own to do?" Or should I say, "Since I do all the work around here, like a maid, I should get a weekly pay check."? — Slave Girl in Texas

(A.) You should have time of your own to spend personally and socially. This time should be scheduled for you, and not just grabbed when there are no dishes to wash or beds to make. You should also have a weekly allowance.

Your family appears to take you for granted. Have a conference with all of them. Explain all the things you do for them. Explain your need for time and money of your own. Ask them to make arrangements for an allowance and free time for you. I believe if you will put it to them straight and in strictly business fashion, they will cooperate.

FRECKLES: (Q.) I have this problem of being ugly. It's my face. I have no pimples but I have a million dark freckles. Boys say, "Ugh, look at her ugly face." Don't tell me to go to the doctor, because I don't have that much money. I'm 14. — Spotted in Pennsylvania

(A.) Freckles are easily subdued with the correct makeup base. That is what you need, plus mascara, blush and pale lipstick. When yau are older you may want to add other things.

Go to an expert at a department store and ask her to show you how to use this base and blend it at your neckline. Learn to apply it correctly and it will do wonders for those freckles.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, JULY 22

Your birthday today: The Sun changes sign, enters Leo at 1:19 p.m. EDT. For both today's thoughtful Cancer and more forceful Leo natives this year involves many changes of viewpoint. Wide-ranging personal opportunities begin with disturbing insight into present limitations. Relationships are less important than efforts to fulfill potentials. You attract what you need at the last moment; the achievement is to recognize breaks soon enough to grab them. Today's natives are natural leaders.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Complexities arise at work, require exacting decisions. Overtime is justified. Devote evening to pursuit of personal happiness. Children clamor for attention.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Figure your budget to the penny step by step, check for last-minute changes, and you've got a financially successful day. Tonight romance sparkles.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Take the initiative to get people together to reconcile differences. Barring that, hie yourself out of the picture. Be careful on the road and in public places.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Stay within reasonable rules. Try to recover scattered belongings. Ask a qood question in the right spot, with emphasis on an informative answer.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Plans advance quickly. Get moving early with people who are all revved up to go. Stragglers soon hurry to catch up. Home life is easier. A gift says it nicely.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In seeking precise sums and measurements, you encounter people who insist on quibbling. Keep your wits about you or you end up with a fight on your hands.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Expand: explore your surroundings again. Even in accustomed routines something is different. Unusual opportunities are available, but subtly disguised

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Wishful thinking can leave you out in left field. Stick to a familiar approach. Your sales skills are sharp. Sell any white elephants cluttering up space.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You're largely on your own resources, yet better off: you won't have to explain. Get in touch with distant contacts for perspective on your field of action.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Ability to organize work puts you in line for higher pay and more responsibility. Quit early. Tonight's ambiance lends itself to emotional satisfaction.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You needn't go to great expense to express your feelings. A good airing of your opinions is all that's necessary. Blithely avoid recrimination.

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar ch 20): Continued tact turns the tide for the better. Personal matters interrupt even serious business. Leave communication channels open for unexpected messages.

Sometimes it pays to go after overtricks in match-point play. On other occasions declarer should give the hand the same play that he would in rubber bridge. The test is to compare the possible results at your contract with those that will be attained by other declarers.

South saw that if the heart finesse was on he would make six diamonds. He would win the first trick with the queen of hearts, knock out the ace of trumps, draw trumps, discard two of dummy's spades on the long clubs and eventually ruff his jack of spaes in dummy.

South also saw that irrespective of where the heart and spade kings were located, North could make at least four notrump.

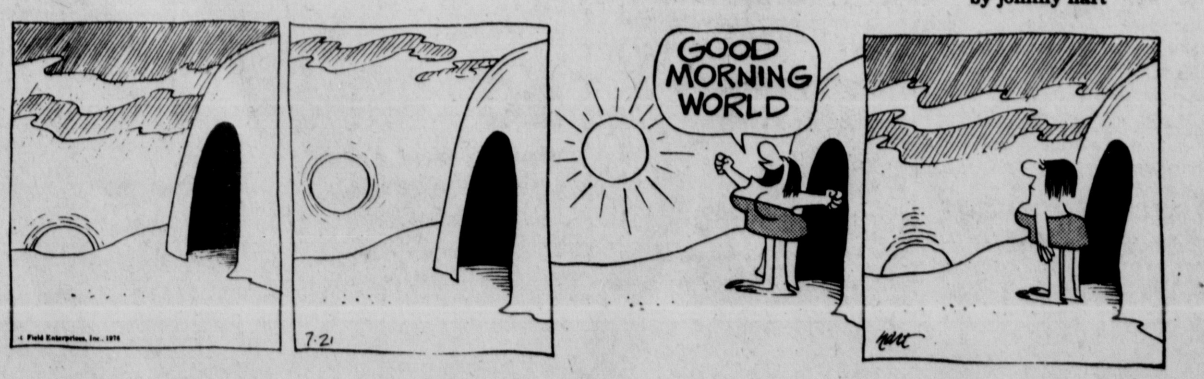

Therefore, South reasoned that his only chance for any match points at all would be to play safe for five diamonds and beat anyone who reached six and found the heart finesse wrong.

So South called for dummy's ace of hearts, went after trumps and made his contract right on the nose. It didn't do him much good, but at least it worked out better than finessing the heart, losing the spade finesse if East shifted to a spade and winding up in the ash can.

Nine Little Words Make Up a Sleeper in the Democratic Rules

By Arnold Sawislak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This observer usually is the last to notice those "little noticed but highly significant" items that are the stock and trade of punditry. But this time we've got one of those prize sleepers by the ear. To wit:Section 12 of the report of the Committee On Rules of the 1976 Democratic national convention adopted with not much argument last week in Madison Square Garden. The section adds nine new words to Article X of the Demovratic Charter. The practical effect of these words could be to revive the party's famous quota system feud, a controversy that for several years had Democrats spending more energy arguing with each other than campaigning against the Republicans. The background is as follows: Through 1960, the delegates chosen for Democratic national conventions were mostly white, middle-aged male Anglo-Saxons. Party reformers managed to get the rules changed for 1972 to require state parties to give delegate seats to "traditionally under-represented" groups. Many states did this by using census data to determine what percentage of seats should go to women, blacks and young people. This method of distributing delegate seats became known as "quotas," and after the Democrats absorbed a momumental whipping, took at least part of the rap for the party's troubles. After 1972, the party excorcised "quotas" and substituted "affirmative action." This required state parties to conduct active recruiting campaigns for women, black and youth delegates, but imposed no tests of numbers. This seemed to satisfy everyone until the returns came in from delegate selection for the 1976 national convention. Women, who make up more than half of the population, got only 34 per cent of the delegates, down 4 per cent from 1972. Blacks dropped from 15 to 11 per cent, youths from 21 to 14 per cent.

Led by the blacks, the "traditionally under-represented groups" came back for redress. They knew that quotas, now specifically banned in party law, could not be reinstated. So they went for changes in affirmative action. The nine words added to the Democratic Charter's affirmative action section would require plans "with specific goals and timetables for achieving results."

The sponsors of the change in Article X assured the Rules Committee that the new words in no way would bring back quotas. The committee responded with a unanimous vote of approval for the change.

In practical terms, the sponsors will be right only if the Democrats retain their unity through the campaign and regain the presidency. Even though the change in the Charter could have no effect on the campaign this year nor on delegate selection until the mid-term convention of 1978, it doubtless will be discovered to be "hidden quotas" and share the blame if the party fares badly in 1976. That may not make sense, but particularly in politics, logic is the orphan of defeat.

Commentary

Window On Asia

Carter Studied

TOKYO (UPI)— Japanese government leaders, already preoccupied with political uncertainty resulting from the Lockheed scandal, will have even more homework now that Jimmy Carter has been nominated as the Democratic presidential candidate.

The former Georgia governor was virtually unknown until news reports about him began pouring into Japan in recent months.

Now, however, foreign ministry officials are reported to be busy collecting information on Carter and one subject they are no doubt vigorously dwelling upon is Carter's foreign policy, especially relating to U.S-Japan relations. Carter has expressed a desire to have closer relations between the two nations but officials here are not sure what "closer relations" will mean. Presumably, they are hoping he will elaborate on the subject before the November elections.

Talks Stalled

MANILA (UPI)— Negotiations between the United States and the Philippines on a new treaty to govern the last two major military bases used by the United States in post-Vietnam Southeast Asia are not progressing as fast as expected.

The main issues under discussion include Philippine demands for full sovereignty over the bases, appointment of a Filipino base commander, sole criminal jurisdiction over GI's, reduction of the lease period from 25 to five years and a billion-dollar rent-aid package for continued use of the installations similar to concessions given to Spain and Turkey.

After three weeks of closed-door talks, both sides are reported still far from their hoped-for timetable of concluding a common draft by the end of July so it can be ready for signing during Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's expected Manila visit in early August.

Nixes Jets

SINGAPORE (UPI)— The Singapore government has quietly given up plans to buy a squadron of supersonic jet interceptors because of the estimated $100 million price

For the past year Singapore had been weighing the merits of the American F4 Phantom. the British Jaguar and the French Mirage.

Instead, Singapore is now expected to buy a squadron of American-made helicopters for lifting troops and artilltery at an estimated cost of $20 million.

Cost of Living Went Up in June

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of living, pushed by spiraling fuel prices, climbed 0.5 per cent in June, the government reported today.

Although June's consumer price rise was slightly less than the 0.6 per cent increase recorded in May, it still represents the second highest one-month increase this year.

The annual rate increase works out to 6 per cent. And despite today's Labor Department report, administration economists stood by predictions that inflation will ease in coming months and average about 5.7 per cent for the year.

Guerillas May Hit Rhodesia's Cities

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Military sources say Tuesday's two grenade attacks in the heart of Salisbury could signal the start of urban guerrilla warfare against Rhodesia's white minority government.

Police said the two Chinese-style grenades exploded within two minutes of each other, blowing a hole in the floor of a restaurant, destroying a car outside a nightclub and wounding at least two persons.

Military sources said the attacks raised the possibility of guerrilla warfare in cities across Rhodesia.

New Cheat Boards Convene at Point

WEST POINT (UPI) — Officials at the U.S. Military Academy say new boards of officers are expected to convene today to begin reviewing the cases of 28 cadets accused of cheating.

Tuesday, other boards convicted two more junior cadets of cheating and deliberated the fates of 12 others. In addition, officials said cheating charges had been brought against 12 more juniors.

The total number of 184 cadets have now accused of collaborating on a March electrical engineering takehome examination. Officer boards have sustained cheating charges against 29 of 37 cadets whose cases have been reviewed.

This panoramic view of the Martian surface is a 360-degree composite made of the pictures sent back to Earth by Viking I

Viking Bolstering Martian Life Theories

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 1 radioed back a narrow picture of the rocky Martian surface today to add to results that already suggest Mars had the stuff necessary for life to have developed on the planet at some earlier age.

Earth control resumed radio contact with the nuclear-powered spacecraft, now a surface observatory, after Viking had weathered its first night in the cold desolation of the Martian desert called Chryse.

Whether or not there is any life on Mars now, is a question biologists hope Viking will answer. The first results from its three biology instruments are expected in three weeks. The initial two photos Tuesday and the new one today did not shed any light on the ages-old question.

Today's black and white picture was much narrower than the first two because the spacecraft transmitted the image directly to Earth for the first time. This meant less data could be sent than when Viking was using its orbiting mothercraft as a relay satellite.

Viking began its scientific observations as it descended into the thin Martian atmosphere. That information was analyzed during the night and scientists reported early today the discovery that Mars' atmosphere has about three per cent nitrogen and 1.5 per cent argon.

These findings have important implications for Mars' early history and the possibility that life may have evolved at some earlier age on the planet.

Dr. Michael McElroy, an atmospheric scientist from Harvard University, said the data suggest that Mars had a nitrogen-rich atmosphere billions of years ago. Nitrogen is a key to the origin and support of Earth-type life.

Although there is only three per cent nitrogen in the Mars atmosphere now, according to the preliminary date, McElroy said it is more easily broken

Light Asked for Hospital Helicopters

150-Foot Tower Planned

KINGSTON — A request to erect a microwave tower 150 feet above ground at the New York Telephone Co. building on Broadway was heard by the Kingston Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA) Tuesday night, prompting an alderman's call for a safety light to protect hospital-bound helicopters.

ZBA Chairman James C. Plunket agreed with Alderman Titus B. Sims, R-13th Ward, that the telephone company should arrange with the proper federal authorities to mark the tower for aircraft using the emergency heliport at Benedictine Hospital, less than 2,000 feet away.

"I have to have some assurances," said Sims, getting a promise from the company that it would supply him copies of all correspondence with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) and Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

The tower itself would be only 75 feet high, but it would be erected atop the building, another 75 feet high, to hold a shrouded parabolic dish connecting Kingston to a new statewide microwave network for toll and long distance phone service.

If approved by all the agencies involved, the strutted steel tower could be ready by next summer, when the company is predicting "real problems" if no new service capacity is added, engineer Daniel Hagadorn said.

In its line-of-sight connection with Poughkeepsie to the south, the tower's beamed signal would clear all natural and manmade objects by at least 80 feet, engineer John Sullivan said.

Eventually, the network will be beaming signals north, he said

"Is this higher than the steeple on the Old Dutch Church?" asked board clerk Ella Clausi, more from curiosity than anything else. No one knew for sure, but the Freeman later learned that the historic steeple is at least 50 feet higher than the tower would be.

More than a dozen blocks uptown from the telephone building, the church is protected in its immediate area by an ordinance prohibiting any construction higher than the base of its steeple, some 65 feet

The microwave tower would use a frequency of 1 100 megahertz, about 100 times higher than standard and public safety broadcast, but its energy level would be less than two watts, harmless at all but the immediate face of the unidirectional dish, Sullivan said.

Microwave is environmentally better and less costly than the alternatives, overhead or underground cables, Hagadorn said.

"I just worry about those helicopters," Sims said. "They come from all directions, and there are the schools right there."

The telephone building sits across West O'Reilly Street from Kingston High School. Between there and Benedictine Hospital are the Myron J. Michaels Junior High School and the Sophie Finn Elementary School

Library Survey Shows Most City Patrons Favor A Move to Uptown

KINGSTON — The Kingston Area Library today released a survey showing most users are in favor of relocating the library uptown to an urban renewal site on Converse Street.

However, the matter still hinges on the opinions of those controlling the site and the municipal purse strings — the urban renewal commissioners and the city aldermen.

"We could begin construction within two months, if we had the site," said Carolyn M. Short, library trustee and chairman of the four-month survey covering 471 household heads in Kingston, about 5 per cent of the city's families, plus 115 non-resident family-heads.

The survey, based on families who contributed to the library from November to April, showed 53 per cent of residents interviewed and 51 per cent non-residents were in favor of the Converse Street move.

Some 28 per cent resident and 23 per cent non-resident opinion favored rebuilding or renovating on the present site at 399 Broadway. Others favored another central rather than uptown location.

One surveyee even suggested relocating in the former post office building on Broadway, a building that was torn down several years ago.

Others want the library to stay near the high school.

The uptown plan would be first to rebuild the children's library, burned out last year, then follow with the main library's two other sections on the urban renewal site, as funds permit.

Clouding this simple plan, however, are prospects that the city may want to build a new uptown fire station on the same two-acre site and that the Kingston Common Council or the library trustees may not want to join there in a shared municipal structure.

Further, while the council gives final approval to the sale of the site, the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency (KURA) must attach a price tag set by a federally approved appraisal.

Urban Renewal Director James G. Connors said recent urban renewal sales have run nearly $1.50 per square foot, which would price the proposed library site at more than $100,000.

Library trustees have amassed only $185,000 so far in their building fund, which would just about cover the children's library.

Adding to the complexity is the library's funding structure — only about half from the municipal government, with other operating revenue from the school district and some from the county.

Anti-OTBers Give Up

KINGSTON — Anti-Off Track Betting (OTB) forces have abandoned their drive to put the issue on the November ballot, leaving the way clear for the proposal to become law on July 25.

"The effort seems to have expired" according to Rev. Gary Mehl of Immanuel Lutheran Church, who along with other church officials has been gathering signatures for a petition to put OTB up for referendum.

"The whole thing just died when Harry Thayer took sick," he Rev Mehl said Tuesday.

Thayer, a local radio executive, launched the county-wide fight in June stating his belief that the betting parlors would bring financial and moral ruin to residents, especially women.

The Council of Churches backed the Thayer drive and began circulating the petitions throughout their parishes.

Thayer has been hospitalized since a June 24th automobile accident.

"Nobody picked up the ball after his illness," the Rev. Mahl said "Petitions were being delivered to Walter Maxwell (Thayer's stepson) at station WGHQ and he called me up and asked me what to do with them, so I picked them up."

The Rev. Mahl believes he has between two and three thousand signatures in his possession, far short of the 5,760 needed.

Local legislators both publically and privately expressed disappointment at the news .

"I would have welcomed a public referendum," said legislative Majority Leader Ernest Gardner "That way we could have settled the whole thing." Gardner is a member of the tax base study committee which proposed OTB for the county.

Richard D. Nace, also a member of that committee, echoed those sentiments, commenting that he feels the voters would have voted overwhelmingly in favor of off-track betting.

Privately, another legislator said he had hoped the matter would come to public vote "because it would get the issue off our backs People would have gone for the proposal 10-to-one and no one could question the decision afterward "

What happens after the June 25 will be mostly routine, says committee chairman C. Freeman Lasher.

"The set-up and operation of OTB will be done by Donald Groth, executive director of Catskill OTB, and I guess things will just follow their natural course."

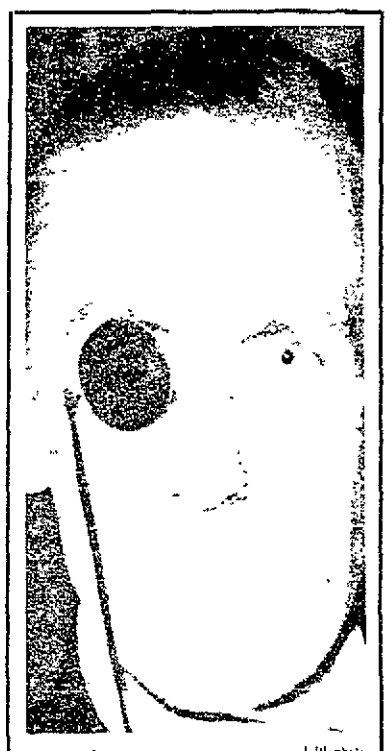

The only function left for the legislature will be to appoint a county representative to the state OTB Advisory Committee.

None of the committee member contacted cared to speculate on who that person might be.

"That will have to be a choice made by the entire legislature," said Lasher, who added that the Tax Base Committee had no recommendations to make at this time.

Decisions on where and when the first betting parlors will open in Ulster will be based on population surveys and other criteria developed by Catskill OTB. The regional corporation will also supervise the hiring and training of betting parlor personnel.

The first parlors are expected to be operating sometime in early September

BLOWN UP — Christopher Ewart-Biggs, Britain's ambassador to Ireland, was killed in a landmine explosion near Dublin today. Also killed in the blast, which ripped apart Ewart-Biggs' official car, was an embassy secretary, and two other embassy personnel were injured. The flamboyant ambassador was a war hero, who wore a black monocle to cover the eye he lost at the Battle of Alamein in World War II.

Real Estate Sales Are Slow and Prices Are Dropping

By Lynn Mulvaney
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — Real estate prices have begun to drop as only one in 20 of the 500 properties on the market in Ulster County are selling. Two years ago, the county's Multiple Listing Service reported only about half that many houses for sale.

Land and farm sales have also dropped dramatically with no major land purchases recorded here during the past year. The general price level is about 20 per cent below 1974, according to real estate economist Walter Donnaruma.

The City of Kingston's 2.5 per cent decrease in population in 1973-73 is one reason for dropping real estate prices, Donnaruma believes, saying, "People make the value. The only place real estate value stays up is where there is a high and increasing incidence of population."

IBM's recent announcement that it is transferring its manufacturing division out of Kingston has begun to add more homes to the market with the resulting supply of homes exceeding the demand, according to some area realtors.

Prices are dropping at all levels of the market — for example: a substanti l reduction on a $137,000 house, cut to $112,000; a $70,000 house reduced to $66,000 and other homes cut from $42,000 to $39,400 and from $38,000 to $33,000.

"Some people are misguided and some of the houses are terribly overpriced," Donnaruma said.

George Rodriguez, president of Ulster County Board of Realtors, feels the seller has a right to ask whatever price he feels the property can bring. But, he said, through no fault of their own, sellers have been generally uninformed of what the market will bring.

Those homes most vulnerable to softening of prices here are in the $35,000 to $65,000 range.

While prices are coming down, "the real estate market is not collapsing," Rodriguez emphasizes."We have more listings of better quality..... good properties at market value prices. But prices do fall when supply exceeds demand."

The drop in sales amd more homes on the market is partially due to IBM, which in the immediate past has been a significant contributor to real estate transactions in the greater Kingston community.

Several realtors have indicated they felt that IBM's move may be contributing to the destroying of buyer confidence in the area but Rodriguez believes the fault lies with general economic conditions.

It is generally agreed, however, that the softening of real estate prices is real but what seems perhaps more significant is the inflationary trend seems to have ended. Prices simply are not going up anymore and they are dropping where there is an urgency to sell.

People in low income brackets have been practically frozen out of the real estate market and new home building has come to a virtual standstill.

People who buy a house at a comfortable price have been able to keep up with inflationary trends in home maintenance. Taxes, insurance, fuel, utilities and other home costs have all soared. But many people who purchased homes in the middle to upper brackets, and were living close to the dollar, have suffered, with a record-breaking number of foreclosures in the past few years the result.

Rodriguez would like to see new industry in the area so that no one industry can upset the economic balance of the community.

Donnaruma too, would intensify the effort to attract industry to the City of Kingston. At least 2,000 jobs have been lost here since 1950, he claims, pointing to the loss of Island Dock, Manhattan Shirt Co., Gant and other industries, as well as reductions in ship and boat building.

He sees opportunity to invite the retired to come to the Kingston area. Donnaruma believes they could find reasonable homes

Urban Renewal Director James G Connors said recent urban renewal sales have run nearly $1.50 per square foot, which would price the proposed library site at more than $100,000.

Library trustees have amassed only $185,000 so far in their building fund, which would just about cover the children's library.

Adding to the complexity is the library's funding structure — only about half from the municipal government, with other operating revenue from the school district and some from the county.

Anti-OTBers Give Up

KINGSTON — Anti-Off Track Betting (OTB) forces have abandoned their drive to put the issue on the November ballot, leaving the way clear for the proposal to become law on July 25.

"The effort seems to have expired" according to Rev. Gary Mehl of Immanuel Lutheran Church, who along with other church officials has been gathering signatures for a petition to put OTB up for referendum.

"The whole thing just died when Harry Thayer took sick." he Rev. Mehl said Tuesday.

Thayer, a local radio executive, launched the county-wide fight in June stating his belief that the betting parlors would bring financial and moral ruin to residents, especially women.

The Council of Churches backed the Thayer drive and began circulating the petitions throughout their parishes.

Thayer has been hospitalized since a June 24th automobile accident.

"Nobody picked up the ball after his illness," the Rev. Mahl said. "Petitions were being delivered to Walter Maxwell (Thayer's stepson) at station WGHQ and he called me up and asked me what to do with them, so I picked them up."

The Rev. Mahl believes he has between two and three thousand signatures in his possession, far short of the 5,760 needed.

Local legislators both publically and privately expressed disappointment at the news.

"I would have welcomed a public referendum," said legislative Majority Leader Ernest Gardner "That way we could have settled the whole thing." Gardner is a member of the tax base study committee which proposed OTB for the county

Richard D. Nace, also a member of that committee, echoed those sentiments, commenting that he feels the voters would have voted overwhelmingly in favor of off-track betting.

Privately, another legislator said he had hoped the matter would come to public vote "because it would get the issue off our backs. People would have gone for the proposal 10-to-one and no one could question the decision afterward."

What happens after the June 25 will be mostly routine, says committee chairman C. Freeman Lasher.

"The set-up and operation of OTB will be done by Donald Groth, executive director of Catskill OTB, and I guess things will just follow their natural course."

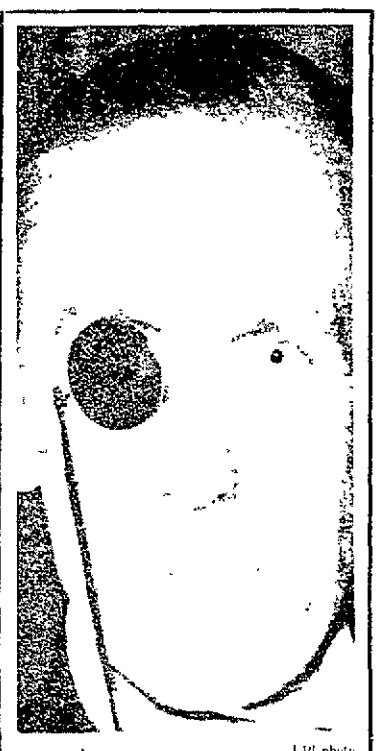

The only function left for the legislature will be to appoint a county representative to the state OTB Advisory Committee

None of the committee member contacted cared to speculate on who that person might be.

"That will have to be a choice made by the entire legislature," said Lasher, who added that the Tax Base Committee had no recommendations to make at this time.

Decisions on where and when the first betting parlors will open in Ulster will be based on population surveys and other criteria developed by Catskill OTB The regional corporation will also supervise the hiring and training of betting parlor personnel.

The first parlors are expected to be operating sometime in early September.

BLOWN UP — Christopher Ewart-Biggs, Britain's ambassador to Ireland, was killed in a landmine explosion near Dublin today. Also killed in the blast, which ripped apart Ewart-Biggs' official car, was an embassy secretary, and two other embassy personnel were injured. The flamboyant ambassador was a war hero, who wore a black monocle to cover the eye he lost at the Battle of Alamein in World War II.

Real Estate Sales Are Slow and Prices Are Dropping

By Lynn Mulvaney
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — Real estate prices have begun to drop as only one in 20 of the 500 properties on the market in Ulster County are selling. Two years ago, the county's Multiple Listing Service reported only about half that many houses for sale.

Land and farm sales have also dropped dramatically with no major land purchases recorded here during the past year. The general price level is about 20 per cent below 1974, according to real estate economist Walter Donnaruma.

The City of Kingston's 2.5 per cent decrease in population in 1973-73 is one reason for dropping real estate prices, Donnaruma believes, saying, "People make the value. The only place real estate value stays up is where there is a high and increasing incidence of population."

IBM's recent announcement that it is transferring its manufacturing division out of Kingston has begun to add more homes to the market with the resulting supply of homes exceeding the demand, according to some area realtors.

Prices are dropping at all levels of the market — for example: a substanti l reduction on a $137,000 house, cut to $112,000; a $70,000 house reduced to $66,000 and other homes cut from $42,000 to $39,400 and from $38,000 to $33,000.

"Some people are misguided and some of the houses are terribly overpriced," Donnaruma said.

George Rodriguez, president of Ulster County Board of Realtors, feels the seller has a right to ask whatever price he feels the property can bring. But, he said, through no fault of their own, sellers have been generally uninformed of what the market will bring.

Those homes most vulnerable to softening of prices here are in the $35,000 to $65,000 range.

While prices are coming down, "the real estate market is not collapsing," Rodriguez emphasizes."We have more listings of better quality..... good properties at market value prices. But prices do fall when supply exceeds demand."

The drop in sales amd more homes on the market is partially due to IBM, which in the immediate past has been a significant contributor to real estate transactions in the greater Kingston community.

Several realtors have indicated they felt that IBM's move may be contributing to the destroying of buyer confidence in the area but Rodriguez believes the fault lies with general economic conditions.

It is generally agreed, however, that the softening of real estate prices is real but what seems perhaps more significant is the inflationary trend seems to have ended. Prices simply are not going up anymore and they are dropping where there is an urgency to sell.

People in low income brackets have been practically frozen out of the real estate market and new home building has come to a virtual standstill.

People who buy a house at a comfortable price have been able to keep up with inflationary trends in home maintenance. Taxes, insurance, fuel, utilities and other home costs have all soared. But many people who purchased homes in the middle to upper brackets, and were living close to the dollar, have suffered, with a record-breaking number of foreclosures in the past few years the result

Rodriguez would like to see new industry in the area so that no one industry can upset the economic balance of the community.

Donnaruma too, would intensify the effort to attract industry to the City of Kingston. At least 2,000 jobs have been lost here since 1950, he claims, pointing to the loss of Island Dock, Manhattan Shirt Co., Gant and other industries, as well as reductions in ship and boat building.

He sees opportunity to invite the retired to come to the Kingston area. Donnaruma believes they could find reasonable homes

Urges Opponent To Act

LRIL, Pa (UPI) — Patricia Crawford of Chester County, the Republican nominee for state treasurer expressed concern Tuesday over the lack of campaigning by her November opponent

Robert P Casey of Johnstown won the Democratic nomination because those who voted for him apparently misunderstood for state Auditor General Robert P Casey who is not seeking reelection

I'm quite concerned about this because people have to know that he is not what he had people think he was she said I hope he starts campaigning soon though I have seen no evidence of it

Casey said virtually not campaigning for the primary

She says she has visited 50 of the state's counties since the primary

TLC Order For The Elephants

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Two Asian elephants seized after local authorities said they were mistreated will be leaving Buffalo — with their owner under orders to treat them with "tender loving care

State Supreme Court Justice Frank J Kronenberg Tuesday granted William Morris the elephants' owner, permission to take his animals out of the Buffalo Zoo, after an agreement was worked out between Morris and Assistant State Attorney General Maryann S Freedman

The elephants, "Cora," and Jewel were taken from Morris July 9 after the Erie County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals found them housed in deplorable' conditions and inadequately fed at a local carnival

The SPCA charged that the elephants were apparently fed nothing more than grass for 12 hours and that the floor of the trailer they were kept in was covered with up to three feet of manure

Freedman said the court agreement should result in the conditions being cleaned up and the elephants treated with tender loving care,' while they are in New York State

PSC Plans Look Into Yellow Pages

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The Public Service Commission will hold a hearing Aug 3 to look into the methods the New York Telephone Co uses in soliciting and placing Yellow Pages advertisements

The commission said Tuesday the hearing was prompted by a complaint by Suffolk County Consumer Affairs Commissioner James Lack

Lack claimed that a change in the maximum size of Yellow Pages advertisements would disadvantage advertisers who had gained preferential placement through long use of the previous maximum size advertisement

The commission said the hearing, at which witnesses for the general public will be heard, would be extended for a second day if necessary Later hearings will be held to obtain New York Telephone and other testimony, the PSC said

Examiner David Schecter will preside over the hearing at State Office Building A in Hauppauge, Suffolk County

Named To No. 2 FBI Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard G Held, head of the FBI office in Chicago, has been named to direct the FBI's day-to day operations as associate director of the agency

FBI Director Clarence M Kelley selected Held Tuesday to succeed Nicholas P Callahan, who was fired by Kelley Friday from the number two post

Held, 66, has worked for the FBI for 35 years Two years ago he won the Attorney General's distinguished service award

The Justice Department refused to comment on a New York Times report suggesting that Callahan had been fired because of his connection with an FBI recreation fund

The Times quoted a 'well-informed' government official as saying the FBI recreation fund had been misused while the late J Edgar Hoover was the agency's director

The report said the fund was controlled for several years by Callahan

Dentists Holding The Line

CHICAGO (UPI) — The American Dental Association says dentists use technology to increase their "productivity" but have kept fees generally in line with other consumer costs

In a document presented Tuesday to a hearing before the -President's Council on Wage and Price Stability, the ADA said a 10 year review showed average dentists' fees for 1975 was 61 9 per cent above the Consumer Price Index s of 100 in 1967

The comparable index for all goods and services in 1975 was 61 2 per cent above the CPI, indicating dentists' fees "have not significantly outpaced increases in other consumer service prices

The report said dental expenditures as a percentage of total health expenditures have decreased, from 8 4 per cent of the total health dollar in 1955, to 6 3 per cent in 1975

The report said that in 1962, the average dentists in general practice had 1,164 patients and handled 3 119 visits By 1972, the average dentist had 1 663 patients and 3,692 visits

It has been estimated that the development of the high-speed handpiece alone has increased dentists' productivity to the equivalent of adding 1 174 dentists to dental manpower' the report said

Ulster County Going to Court For N.Y.C. Tab on a Snow Job

KINGSTON — Ulster County will go to court next week in an effort to collect $250,000 in unpaid snow-plowing bills from New York City.

The county claims it has spent $288,298.85 since 1960 to plow the roads around the Ashokan Reservoir. The city has paid the annual bill only once—$15,816.04 in 1974, leaving a debt of $272,482.81.

The reservoir, and the two rods surrounding it, Routes 28 and 28A, are undoubtedly owned by the New York City Board of Water Resources, county officials say.

"Within the next week, we will file a complaint and summons in New York County Supreme Court," said John J. Lynch, assistant county attorney.

"Last August, we filed a notice of claim, which we had to file before we could bring suit, and they just didn't pay," Lynch added.

New York City officials admitted that Ulster County's claim was valid. "You have a perfect right to be paid. The responsibility for snow-plowing is ours," said Marian Oppenheimer, a spokesman for the city Department of Water Resources.

The city has a long history of not picking up the tab, although the law suggests they have to pay or plow it themselves. "Under the Watershed Act of 1905, the city was required to to maintain the reservoir's roadways and that included plowing and sanding," said Maurice Rosenstock, Republican-Conservative candidate for 101st District Assemblyman.

"The city just never made any payments in the forties and fifties," Lynch said. "In 1960, a court case said the city is responsible for the roads, so we will try to collect from that date," he added.

The city and the county entered into a written contract in 1973. The county was paid for the first year of the contract, but has received nothing for 1975 and 1976.

"You should certainly file with the comptroller's office for the years 1960 to 1973. I haven't the slightest idea why the bills haven't been paid in 1975 and 1976," Ms. Oppenheimer said

Lynch does not expect the city to just hand over the money. "They may claim that maintaining the roads doesn't include plowing them. When the summons and complaint are issued, they will have to respond. Otherwise, we can get a judgment of default against them," he said.

"Of course, we have to plow those roads for the people who live up there whether we get paid or not," he commented.

Ms. Oppenheimer didn't know who in the comptroller's office handled bills incurred by the Department of Water Resources. She said, "Things just don't get paid by the city as fast they do in private industry."

'OBVIOUS AS HELL'

LIVERMORE, Calif. (UPI) — The kidnapers of 26 children apparently buried in broad daylight a moving van which was used last Thursday to entomb their victims.

Newsmen Tuesday went to the rock quarry where the kidnapers took the children and the school bus driver they abducted 100 miles away at Chowchilla. Investigators dug up the van, which bore a sticker reading: "Find us first in the yellow pages."

The kidnap victims were forced to enter a tiny hole and descend a ladder into the van from which driver Ed Ray and some of the older youngsters clawed their way out 16 hours later.

Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates, who held a joint news conference with Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins, said the kidnapers used heavy equipment, such as a bulldozer, to bury the 30-foot-long van.

"I always say if you are going to commit the crime, be obvious as hell," said Bates. "If they had snuck around here with shovels at night, they would have been caught."

Bates said he still had no idea of the motive for the crime. "Whoever did it put a great deal of planning, effort and even money into it," he said.

The kidnapers prepared the van by cutting a hole in the top for an entryway and bored two five-inch holes that held exhaust fans. A 4-inch flexible hose 35 feet long extended from one of the holes into tree branches where it could not be seen. The van also was equipped with mattresses, a small amount of food and water and an improvised toilet.

The vehicle was originally owned by the Palo Alto Van and Storage Co., which sold it last November. The sheriffs declined further comment.

For New Paltz Students... Earn While They Also Learn

NEW PALTZ — Students at SUNY-New Paltz will get a chance to earn while they learn next year through the college's new federally-financed cooperative education program.

Next winter, about 25 upperclassmen will spend a semester receiving academic credit and a salary for working at a job related to the student's scholarly and career interests.

The $24,000 one-year grant, renewable for at least three years, will be used first to hire a director of cooperative education this summer. This person will arrange co-op jobs in the fall in cooperation with Ulster County Community College, which also is developing a co-op program.

"I hope the program can begin with at least one placement each in the areas of education, physical sciences, social sciences, the humanities and the fine arts," said Pamela Tate, director of innovative studies and field experience education.

She hopes to provide up to 80 students with one-semester job placements by 1978. When the program is fully underway, a student may expect up to three one-semester jobs in four years.

"The job is to be primarily a learning experience, and a place of employment secondarily," Ms. Tate said. "However, in many cases, it could serve as a trial for a student who might subsequently go to work full-time for his co-op employer."

Three-fifths of the college's 1,100 incoming students have indicated a strong interest in the co-op program, she noted.

"Co-op education will particularly help the high number of disadvantaged students we have," she added.

"Many are the first in their families to attend college and many have found that their degress are not enough to assure getting a good job. We believe that we can substantially increase these students' chances in the job market, as well as make the liberal arts experience more meaningful to them," she concluded.

City Gets $ for Sewer Plan

KINGSTON — The city has been awarded a $143,437 federal grant toward development of a comprehensive sewer facilities plan, Mayor Francis R. Koenig has announced. The grant covers three quarters of the plan's projected cost.

The one-eighth local cost share, $23,906, will come from another federal source, the city's 1976 entitlement under the community development program. The remaining one-eighth will be sought from the state.

A comprehensive sewer facilities plan involves a three-phase review and analysis of the city's existing facilities to collect and treat sewage and storm water, then a preliminary design and cost estimate on what is further needed to meet federal sanitary requirements.

Some sources have estimated Kingston could spend another $5 million and more on waste water facilities, but City Planner Robert E. Pritchard said only the comprehensive study could answer those questions.

Although nearly all the city proper is sewered into the Kingston Point treatment plant, the study will cover, among other things, the 175 residential and commercial users now discharging some 32,000 gallons of waste water per day into the Rondout Creek with only partial or no treatment.

The study also will cover Spring Lake and the East Kingston area of the Town of Ulster.

The Kingston Point treatment plant, built in 1947 for primary treatment and then rebuilt in the 1970's for secondary or more refined treatment, has a capacity to handle 4.8 million gallons per day and room for expansion to 6 million gallons per day.

The comprehensive study, estimated to take 12 to 18 months, will go out to contract after financial and legal work is completed, Mayor Koenig said.

down in Mars' upper atmosphere into nitrogen atoms than it is on Earth. Atomic nitrogen is the form that organisms need.

He said there is now enough nitrogen in Mars' atmosphere "to allow biology to go well if other conditions are right."

"The ionosphere is producing a shower of fertilizer for Mars," he said at a news briefing.

The presence of argon in the atmosphere, although far less abundant that some earlier data indicated, means Mars must have expelled gases from its hot interior at a rate about 25 times less than that which occurred on Earth. This, McElroy said, would suggest that Mars lost about 25 times less water than Earth.

But since Earth has so much water, McElroy said this means Mars still must have large amounts of water in a subsurface reservoir, probably in the form of ice.

Asked what this all means about the possibility that Viking might find some kind of life on Mars, McElroy said:

"If you look at what you need for life as we understand it, you need energy, that we have (in form of sunlight), you need water, that we have, you need nitogen, that we have, you need carbon, and we've got lots of that and you need phosphorus and phosphate which almost certainly are present in the rocks.

"I see no reason, from anything that we know, to exclude the possibility of the evolution of life."

in a good community, known for its physical attractiveness.

Small industries could also be attracted by making the facilities and what we have in the way of living amenities known.

But most of all, Donnaruma calls for "realistic" prices in what he describes as buyer's market but a "difficult" market.

He and other realtors also place importance on the number of people leaving the area, whether they seek the sun belts of Arizona and Florida or they go in search of employment.

Only in New Paltz, Lloyd and Marlboro is there any increased real estate activity, with a number of second-home buyers located there as well as IBM employes working in Dutchess County.

And if Ulster County having its problems, so too are nearby Orange County where three private land speculators are filing a $50 million bankruptcy suit after having purchased land surrounding Stewart Airport and in Goshen and Newburgh. The cases of Investors Funding of New York City, Kanaje Corp. of Spring Valley and Bon Air Industries of Rockland County are all pending in Federal Bankruptcy Court, according to Donnaruma.

There is light at the end of the tunnel however. Real estate cycles of the past 200 years show that we are moving into an improved cycle which is not due to top until 1980.

"In this coming up-cycle, not everyone in the U. S. will prosper," Donnaruma said, " but the wild speculation is gone. People in the next 20 years will be more cautious in their real estate investments and as a result they will probably get better value for their money."

Youth Arrested For Break-In

Patrolmen James Wallace and Richard Krom reportedly arrested Joseph T. Smith, 17, 87 Franklin St., Kingston at the Boys' Club at 139 Greenkill Avenue.

Smith was confined to the Ulster County jail to appear in City Court where he will be charged with burglary in the third degree today.

Admits Taking Money

Olive Constable Joseph Bernholz reports that a 13-year -old boy Tuesday night admitted taking $300 from an open safe at Davis' Store in West Shokan.

Lester Davis, the owner of the store, reported the money missing to Bernholz at 6 p.m. Tuesday night. After a five-hour investigation, the two reportedly found the alleged thief, whose name is being withheld.

The teenager reportedly led Davis and Bernholz to the foot of Watson Hollow Bridge in West Shokan where much of the money was buried.

Davis, who has been robbed several times before by juveniles, will petition the youth to Family Court in Jamaica, Long Island.

Woodstock Burglary

Woodstock Police arrested a Maryland man Tuesday for criminal possession of stolen property in connection with a burglary in Woodstock Tuesday morning.

Police said they received a call at 5:20 a.m. Tuesday morning from witnesses who said they saw two men carrying a stereo set and other items from the residence of Judy Moss on Calomar Lane to a Volkswagen van.

Police say they located the van with the stereo inside and arrested Mark Brady, 19, Rockville, Md., in a house nearby. Witnesses were unable to positively identify Brady as one of the men seen at the Moss residence, according to police.

Brady was taken before Woodstock Justice Rudolf Baumgarten and charged with criminal possession of stolen property. He was remanded to the Ulster County jail in lieu of $500 bail to appear before Judge Baumgarten July 29.

Injured in Collision

A Palenville man was injured Tuesday afternoon when his car was in collision with a tractor-trailer truck in Catskill, Leeds State Police report.

Police said Robert Louis, 43, Blue Mountain Road, Saugerties, was driving south on Route 9W when he saw a vehicle stopped to make a left-hand turn. Louis reportedly applied his brakes, causing his tractor-trailer to jackknife. The driver of a northbound vehicle, James Lucas, 24, Palenville, was unable to stop and his car struck the side of the trailer.

Lucas was taken to Greene County Memorial Hospital by Mohawk Ambulance of Schenectady. He was treated and released. Louis was ticketed for driving while his license was expired and Lucas for following too close, according to state police.

Pot Polls High in Survey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A poll underway in flower shops across the country shows the rose to be the favorite choice as national flower by many Americans.

But the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, which is conducting the survey, said Tuesday the leading write-in candidate is marijuana.

Americans spend $3 34 billion on cut and potted flowers every year — about $50 per family per year — not counting, of course, cannabis blossoms

The organization said it is conducting the poll to help Congress decide which flower should officially represent the nation.

The rose so far has 39 per cent, followed by the daisy with 13 per cent, the carnation with 10 per cent and the dogwood and apple blossom with 7 per cent and 5 per cent repsectively.

Heading up the write-in tally were the petite flowers of the cannabis sativa, otherwise known as marijuana, with 12 votes. There was one write in for skunk cabbage.

Women's Lib

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sentiment among Americans for women's lib has made tremendous strides in recent years, according to the Institute of Life Insurance. An institute survey found that the percentage of Americans in favor of women's lib rose from 49 per cent in 1972 to 61 per cent last year.

CU Reverses Stand On Canning...But

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers Union is reversing itself on some widely distributed and controversial home canning advice that two government agencies said was faulty if not dangerous

But it predicts in the long run it will be proved correct

The organization which tests and evaluates products and publishes the magazine Consumer Reports,' carried the advice in the June issue of the magazine in an article about pressure canners

Basically it suggested that using a higher pressure — 15 pounds per square inch for example, instead of 10 — would allow the cooking time for home canned foods to be reduced resulting in less mushy food

It also said the standard 10 psi results in cooking temperatures just barely high enough to kill botulism spores

Both the Agriculture Department and the Food and Drug Administration told CU last month 'no rule of thumb changes in processing schedules such as you suggest are satisfactory The two agencies demanded to see the data on which CU reached its conclusions

The National Canners Association said if CU s advice was followed for cream style corn for instance the temperature and cooking time combination would not be sufficient to kill the spores which can cause botulism poisoning One official of that organization said the advice was 'hazardous

CU now says it will publish a statement in the August issue of Consumer Reports noting that Americans have been canning food at home by the millions without incident presumably with the aid of standard recipes

Given that history we now believe we should not have given advice that might lead home canners away from familiar methods and into experimentation that could result in error it said

In a press release accompanying the retraction, however the organization said it is submitting data to FDA and Agriculture to back up its earlier recommendation

After they have had an opportunity to review the data we expect the USDA and FDA will acknowledge that our recommended method works even when applied to foods about which questions were raised such as cream style corn and pumpkin it said

It also attacked the National Canners Association criticism saying tests showed that our higher pressure reduced time method when applied to cream style corn resulted in a 30 per cent increase in the sterilizing value as compared with the usual home canning method

ALBANY NY (UPI) — Whether there is or is no solution to the partisan impasse over court reform Gov Hugh Carey has proposed a special session of the legislature to deal with the issue

Carey broached the possibility with leaders of the Democratic majority in the Assembly and representatives of the Republican Senate majority at a meeting in his New York City offices Tuesday

The legislature when it recessed June 30 scheduled a brief mini session for July 28 30 to wrap up unfinished business mainly court reform

If Careys proposed special session were to replace the mini session it would occur about the same time but would have the advantage of a limited agenda

However without any agreement on court reform no type of session special mini or otherwise was anticipated sources said

In a statement issued after Tuesdays meeting Carey called the talks productive However partisan differences over three proposed constitutional amendments and a statewide court funding bill appeared unchanged

Carey met first with Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut and other top ranking Democrats and then conferred with Bernard Gordon Republican chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee

I felt somewhat chagrined Gordon said after waiting in Careys outer office for more than two hours and then being unable to meet face to face with the Democrats

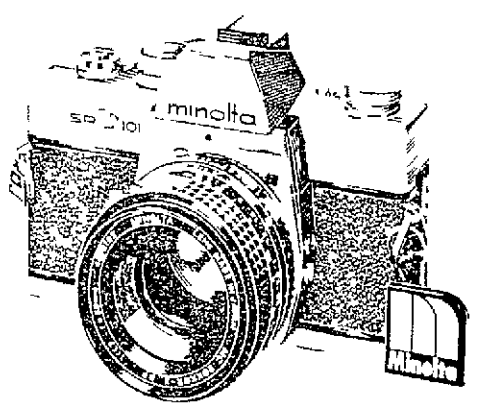

Gordon said Chief Judge Charles Breitel also spent a great deal of time outside although he was called in several times for brief conferences with the Democrats

It was very strange said the Peekskill Republican who went to the meeting because Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson was unable to attend I can t honestly say a great deal of progress was made

The state constitution requires that proposed amendments to the state constitution receive first passage three months before the Nov 2 election Thus any special session would have to come by early August

Cannery Strike Could Hit Pocketbooks Across U.S.

(By UPI)

Northern California farmers fear a strike by thousands of cannery workers, which began Tuesday, could cause heavy crop losses that would be "felt in every household in America in the form of higher prices."

Elsewhere, Westinghouse Electric Corp. employes began a return to work ending the company's first nationwide strike in 20 years, but wildcat walkouts plagued West Virginia coal mines.

Canning industry officials and farmers in northern California — producers of half the nation's canned fruits — warned a walkout by Teamster-covered cannery workers could lead to higher food prices for consumers.

"Millions of dollars worth of fruit and tomatoes will rot on the ground," said California Farm Bureau President Fred Heringer. "The losses will ultimately be felt in every household in America in the form of higher prices."

Both sides agreed to meet in Washington Thursday with James F. Searce, national director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, in an effort to agree a new contract for 60,000 workers at 74 canning plants owned by 28 canning firms. He urged the strikers to return to work while continuing negotiations.

In Pittsburgh, Westinghouse announced Tuesday that it had reached agreements with the International Union of Electrical Workers, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and the United Electrical Workers.

Strikes by 37,000 workers represented by the three unions had closed 90 of the company's 123 plants.

Pickets moving from mine to mine in a wildcat walkout to protest a $50,000 fine levied against a United Mine Workers' local for another work stoppage, idled about 5,000 miners in three West Virginia counties.

Canning workers on picket line in California (UPI)

Longshoremen refused to cross picket lines set up by 68 striking Oregon state grain inspectors Tuesday at the ports of Portland, Astoria and Pendleton. Most port activity continued uninterrupted.

In New York City, presidents of 53 postal unions met and voted to stage a nationwide job action by Aug. 20 unless the Postal Service declares a moratorium on service cutbacks.

A seven-week strike by some 2,500 Alameda County, Calif., employes ended Tuesday when the Service Employes International Union and the Oakland Board of Supervisors agreed to a new two-year contract.

A nurses' strike entered its ninth day at 15 Seattle area hospitals and most affected hospitals limited admissions. A strike by nonmedical personnel at two Cincinnati hospitals and the University of Cincinnati entered its eight day.

Town of Hempstead Objects To Being Fun City Bathroom

NEW YORK (UPI) — Officials of the town of Hempstead have accused New York City of dumping 250 million gallons of raw sewage daily into harbor waters and say they have obtained a court order to stop the alleged practice.

Hempstead Supervisor Alfonse M. D'Amato said an order was filed Tuesday in state Supreme Court in Mineola requiring the city and Emergency Financial Control Board to show by next Tuesday why the dumping should not be halted.

D'Amato charged the dumping was partly responsible for the recent wave of pollution that swept over Long Island's south shore beaches last month. Many were declared health hazard areas and temporarily closed. The town asked the court to order New York to pay $10 million in damages.

"The city can find $100 million to refurbish Yankee Stadium, but not $6 million to build a treatment plant for this sewage," D'Amato said. He referred to the planned construction of the Red Hook treatment plant in Brooklyn.

"When the city talks about treatment plants, it's little more than a myth," D'Amato said.

He claimed all Long Island sewage was treated and disinfected before discharge into waters, and called on the city to do the same.

Lefkowitz Supports Power Users

Dear Editor:

The Concerned Consumers of the Mid-Hudson Area Inc. welcomes Atty. Gen. Lefkowitz's petition to the Public Service Commission in respect the advertising expenses and charitable contributions.

Our organization has long maintained in our publicity and before the Public Service Commission that charitable contributions should be made at the expense of the stockholders and not that of the customers.

We are on record also, against advertising to promote the utility's image or to further a controversial campaign, such as investing in nuclear plants.

Our community was especially incensed when "our" utility spent our money to print a large Christmas advertisement proclaiming, "We bring you tidings of joy." On the next page they anounced a 24 per cent increase in rates!

We appreciate the attorney general's support of the consumer cause and look forward to a change in the Public Service Commission's traditional tilt towards the utilities at the expense of the rate payers.

BELLE SUNDEEN
President, Concerned Consumers
Of The Mid-Hudson Area Inc.

Nothing But The Truth, SHMG

Dear Editor:

There was a time when reporters and editors could be depended upon to ascertain the facts before setting pen to paper, but quite evidently that is no longer true, as can be seen by frequent items of misinformation which appear in the Freeman. I will mention two items.

One, June 17 in an article entitled "Tear Down Old City Hall," the editor described the building as "Richardsonian Romanesque," whereas the designer had in mind Italian Gothic. My comment on this would have been, if the editor is going to set himself up as an architectural critic he should at least be informed on the subject matter.

The second item is that twice in recent issues of the paper the large rock which is to set as a memorial in front of the court house has been described as being "granite." The rock is not granite. It is "Shawangunk Grit" — a massive quartzitic conglomerate of the Silurian age, most of it occurring in Ulster County and once the basis of a thriving millstone industry. It deserves better recognition than being classed as "granite" — a rather common stone found in Westchester, Vermont, and other outlandish places.

ALBERT E. MILLIKEN
Architect Kingston

(Roy E. Graham, AIA Resident Architect at Williamsburg, Va., has written that old city hall is the "only building in the Richardsonian Romanesque style of any signficance in Ulster County. He notes that later renovations added "some ofthe finest interior details of the Colonial Revival." Which leads US to the conclusion that city hall is actually a massive Richardsonian conglomerate of the Victorian age while the rock, in fact, is Shawangunk Gothic. —Editor)

Visitor Had Chip on Shoulder

Dear Editor:

It's regrettable that a Mr. Tom Stuart found it necessary to use the letter to the editor as a means of expressing himself. It is regrettable also that, since Mr. Stuart refused to wait five minutes for a personal conversation and did not leave a home address or phone number, I, too, must use this means to reply.

We must first flatly and without qualification refute Mr. Stuart's statement that he was treeated discourteously. The chip on Mr. Stuart's should was apparent as soon as he entered the office. He had tried to gain entrance during our lunch hour (12:30 — 1:30) when, on Mondays and Fridays, the Chamber office is closed. He gave the Chamber receptionist little room for response. He was never refused a complaint form. He refused to take it because it does go through a definite procedure beginning in the Chamber office. It's still his if he wants it.

He was asked if he would care to talk to the "boss." The "boss" agreed but asked if Mr. Stuart could wait five minutes so that an ongoing meeting could be recessed for Mr. Stuart. Again a refusal from Mr. Stuart, and when the meeting was indeed recessed... well within the stated five minutes ... he was gone. Prior to his leaving, I might add, he did take the opportunity to acquire, at no charge, several of the area brochures available in the office for that purpose. He, and anyone else, is welcome to these items.

We spend too much time working with and for people to display a lack of courtesy. We still don't know what the purpose of Mr. Stuart's visit was. We would still like to be of service if we can.

I feel I must comment on the Freeman lead in to the letter. "Chamber Ignored Visitor." Nowhere in Mr. Stuart's letter does it say he was ignored. No one bothered to question his facts as stated. No one took the time to check with the Chamber to find out if there was another side to the story. Perhaps it's time we stopped rubbing our hands in glee when a negative issue, real or imagined, appears. Perhaps it's finally time we all accentuated the positive. I hope so.

Members Should Back CSEA

Dear Editor:

In response to the letter July 12 by Ruth Williams, Ulster County Infirmary, Re: Job Study. Mrs. Williams' letter was well written up to a point.

1. The county legislature hired and paid for this job study done by Mr. Kingsley.

2. C.S.E.A. hired and paid for a job study a few years ago — the county legislature voted it down.

3. Infirmary-Annex section of C.S.E.A. held regular and special meetings to discuss the job study and to make clear C.S.E.A.'s position. It is unfortunate that the employes that scream the loudest are the ones that could not find the time to come to the meetings.

4. The finished job study project ran over 400 pages — the cost of making copies of this ran $35 a set.

5. C.S.E.A. had six copies made — one for each section, which was available to the employes. Special meetings were set up so the study could be explained and questions answered.

It is indeed unfortunate that the Ulster County Legislature has the ability to make us all look like morons. This would not be possible if the employes would stand behind their union and not be content to sit back and let a few do for the all.

BARBARA SCHWARTZMILLER
Ulster County Infirmary

Saugerties Story Overblown

Dear Editor:

"Downtown Saugerties," Tim Schuster's wistful euphemism for what the locals used to call the Gut of Saugerties, may be in need of repair (it usually is), but it scarcely presents an image of bad taste such as that provided in the pages of the Daily Freeman on July 12 and 13.

Like any other small town, Saugerties changes with the patterns of her people, but she is firm and proud, and doesn't like being called a slum on the front page of her daily newspaper.

It is occasionally necessary to poke the powers-that-be, wake them up and give them brooms, and that, I believe, is what Schuster tried to do. As a native, I thank him.

On the inside, low-keyed, that story could have gotten results. But by displaying it on the front page and following the next day with that preposterous editorial, the Freeman has overblown the story, creating an issue where one did not exist, and unfairly maligning the reputation of the reporter.

I sincerely hope you will offer a retraction. After all, this ain't Nob Hill, it's just Partition Street, but contrary to the innuendoes in your editorial, it's a damned decent place to live. (Otherwise, I think the Freeman has been doing a good job.)

A License to Terrorize

WASHINGTON - Dr. Kissinger is hoping to use the UN as a means for getting an international agreement outlawing "terrorism." Anybody in his right mind should be in favor of that, but in reality what he wants to do is license terrorism, not eradicate it.

The proposal on the table is an agreement between all the national states to cooperate in the suppression of terrorism by unauthorized or unrecognized political or nationalist groupings. No one is suggesting that national states take the smallest steps toward limiting the terrorism they habitually employ against their own citizens or the citizens of weaker nations. The occasional murderous adventures of groups like the Palestine Liberation Organization are as nothing compared to the killing carried on by many members of the United Nations.

The anti-terrorist proposal hasn't been put forth out of concern for human life. It legitimates terrorism and reinforces the idea that the national state is justified in using terror to achieve its political goals.

It does this by suggesting that it is only the terrorist who threatens the lives of innocent people by such acts as the recent African plane kidnapping. There's no doubt the passengers on the plane are innocent, but so are most victims of war. The United States, which is upset by the slaughtering of civilian airplane passengers, bases its atomic strategy on threatening to annihilate the entire civilian populations of its putative enemies, who are prepared to reply in kind. Warfare by national states is primarily directed against civilian populations. It was so in Vietnam where we attempted to destroy the enemies' "infrastructure," i.e., its civilian society, and it was true in our Civil War which was brought to a close by Sherman's March to the Sea - when he destroyed the South's capacity to sustain war by wrecking its agriculture, industry and transportation, and switched the aim of his guns from Confederate soldiers to Confederate civilians.

At the same time the U.S. had been working to protect innocent victims against terrorism, it was pleading with the government of Angola to spare the lives of the mercenaries who fought on the losing side in the recent civil war. By modern thinking, "mercenary" is as much pejorative as it is descriptive, since we hold that to kill for money is wrong but to kill for nationalistic fanaticism is right.

Mercenaries suffer their bad reputations somewhat unjustly. In history they've been known to commit the most barbaric outrages on innocent populations, but they rarely do it as a matter of policy, only out of rapine and lust. After they've pillaged, robbed, murdered and raped to the limits of their appetites, they tend to go comatose and sleep it off. When national governments wage war there is no end to their crimes and excesses. It would never occur to a mercenary army to commit genocide; there's no profit in it.

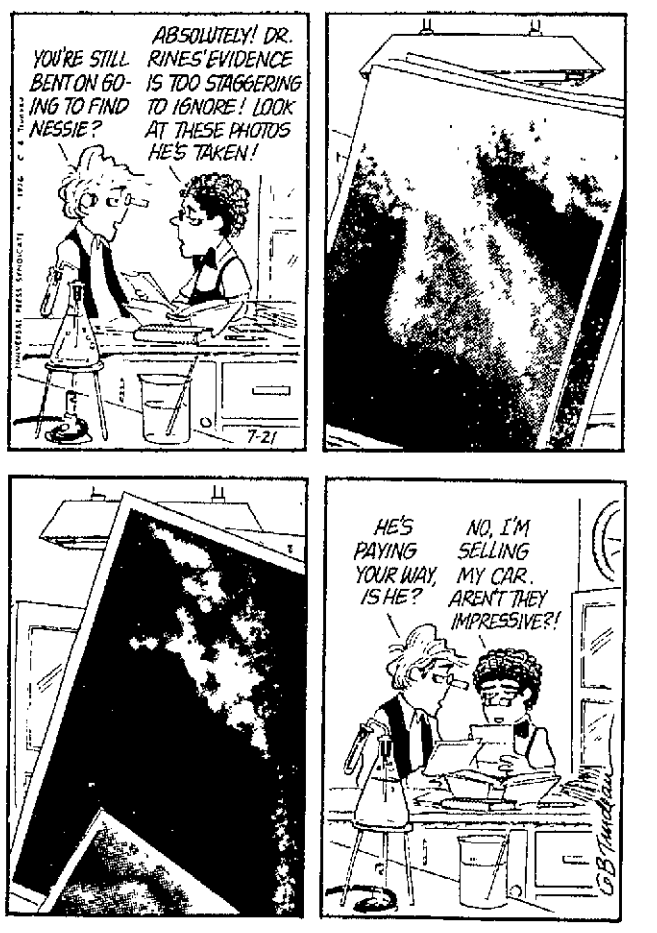

The least lethal and the most civilized wars in Europe, those of the 18th century, were conducted by mercenary armies. Our own revolution would have been a lot bloodier if we'd had to face an army of English patriots instead of a bunch of hired Germans. Soldiers who work for pay, rather than for the fatherland, usually prefer posturing and bluster to killing and blood. If you're fighting for money the general idea is to hang around long enough to spend your paycheck.

With mercenary soldiers there is some hope that when you run out of money the killing will stop; with nationalism there is none because, as we have discovered, there are far more nationalisms than there are national states to accommodate them. Vide that obscure group of Indonesian separatists who hijacked a Dutch railroad train not so many months ago to press the claims of some nationalism that almost no one had ever heard of.

The peoples of the western world have brought this on themselves. We're the ones who've propagated the nationalist ideal, the conviction that the members of every cultural, religious or linguistic group can only hope to live as they wish if they are the proprietors of their own, petit national state. Any other kind of arrangement is so alien to us, we can't even imagine what it might be like, unless it is world government, and that is nothing more than trying to make the entire globe a national state.

We're irritated with Mr. Idi Amin and Uganda at the moment. He is the result of the nationalist heritage we've bequested to Africa, a heritage which has entrapped Africans into starting their own arms race, into buying bombers and cannons like the older homicidal societies they emulate.

Now on to the Olympics where sport and fraternal competition, like everything else in this world, will be used as the symbols and tools of nationalism. If the terrorists come as they did four years ago at Munich, we can be horrified but hardly surprised.

Reagan May 'Steal' Ford Votes

WASHINGTON — The epic struggle for the Republican presidential nomination is so close that Ronald Reagan's aides may resort to stealing delegates away from President Ford.

Some delegates are bound by law to support the President at least on the first ballot. Their votes belong to Ford, but their hearts belong to Reagan.

In secret strategy sessions, Reagan aides have toyed with the idea of asking these delegates to abstain as long as their state laws require them to honor the primary verdicts. This would prevent the President from ringing up an early-ballot victory. Then, in subsequent ballots, they could legally switch to Reagan.

For example, Ford won 25 delegates in North Carolina and 19 in Kentucky. In both states, they are obliged to vote for Ford only on the first ballot. The President's five Nevada delegates must vote for him on the first two ballots.

The Reagan strategists believe they could pirate several Ford delegates from these three states. If the delegates would sit out the first ballot or two, Reagan could wind up with their votes.

We discussed this plot with the President's political aides, who seemed concerned that it might succeed. They conceded that most of the Kentucky, Nevada and North Carolina delegates, who are legally committed to Ford, are really "Reagan men."

They might hold out on Ford and cast their ballots later for Reagan, the presidential aides acknowledged. The plot is an "immoral attempt to disenfranchise the voters," declared one Ford official.

To counter the move, the President's forces may ask the Republican National Committee to adopt a convention resolution compelling each state delegation to honor the primary results. The committee, since it is stacked with friends of Ford, might be able to block the Reagan strategy.

Sources inside the Reagan camp, meanwhile, acknowledged that the delegate-stealing scheme hasn't been abandoned.

OVER-THE-COUNTER POT: In the paneled board rooms of some large corporations, the executives are casting covetous eyes on the multibillion-dollar marijuana market.

The secret estimates indicate marijuana users are now smoking $4 billion worth of pot per year. If marijuana were legalized, the market could soar to $10 billion annually.

This is enough pot to tempt the biggest of businesses. In anticipation of the day pot will be made legal, some alcohol and tobacco companies already are making production plans.

Government-sponsored tests at the University of Mississippi have produced an experimental marijuana five or six time stronger than the pot now sold on the streets. Tobacco companies, therefore, have set aside choice Southern land for future marijuana harvests, competent sources report.

Some firms have even registered trademarks on brand names, lifted straight from marijuana street lingo. Since trademarks cannot be issued for illegal products, the companies are using them temporarily on other obscure tobacco items.

Once marijuana is legalized, the firms can switch the trademarks, say, from cigars to pot.

The corporate executives are closely watching the status of legislation that would make marijuana legal to market. One corporate representative made a quiet trip to Washington recently to consult with experts on the law. He wanted to know what could be done to speed the legislation along.

Eight states have already decriminalized marijuana use; another 27 are considering similar legislation. There are also bills before the Senate and House which would decriminalize pot possession on the federal level. They will probably be taken up, according to our sources, after the presidential election.

Meanwhile, the marijuana question may become an issue in the election. Democratic candidate Jimmy Carter has already taken a stand in favor of decriminalization.

President Ford has stated his opposition to the idea but has indicated privately he has an open mind on the subject. Ronald Reagan is staunchly against decriminalization. If he gets the GOP nomination, he reportedly plans to attack Carter on the issue.

Poe Epitomized Tragic Genius

Edgar Allen Poe lived an eternity of agony in 40 years. He was a great poet, a superb mystery writer, but life as he lived it was a dark cellar of ravenous rats. It is astonishing that he attempted suicide only once.

He was born January 19, 1809, the son of David and Elizabeth Poe. The father died when Edgar was 10 months of age. His mother died of pneumonia when he was less than three years old.

Poe was raised by John Allan, a merchant of Richmond, Va. Mrs. Allan was childless, and lavished love on the baby. This caused Allan to depise the infant. The merchant would not adopt Poe, nor would he permit the boy to wander far from wrath and punishment.

In his teens, Edgar Allan Poe caught his foster father in infidelities. The youngster said nothing, but John Allan wrote letters to Poe relatives stating that Edgar's mother had been unfaithful, and no one could be certain of her children's legitimacy.

The boy began to write poetry. In the summer, he swam six miles on the James River. He was short and pale, a youth with huge dark eyes and a high forehead. Women were attracted by a deep sorrow in those eyes.

In school he excelled in ancient and modern languages. At the University of Virginia, John Allan refused to pay Poe's bills. The poet began to drink and play cards. He left in shame, owing $2,5000.

He fell in love with Elmira Royster, a young neighbor. Watching him drink, she reminded Poe that in his case a little bit was too much. He made mountains of promises, and kept none.

Edgar Poe quarrelled with Allan, and took a ship to Boston. He published a volume called "Tamerlane and Other Poems" at age 18. It did not sell; no critic reviewed it.

The young man was broke. He enlisted in the army, and was later appointed to West Point. He was 20 when John Allan invited him home the night after his stepmother's funeral.

The fires of imagery consumed Poe. "Tamerlane" contained some poems about his unhappy love affair with Elmira Royster, who married a merchant. He staggered and lurched from one melancholy triumph to another. Allan disowned him publicly. West Point dismissed him for "gross neglect of duty."

He wrote a second and third book of poetry. In 1833, Poe won a prize of $50 for a short story called, "Ms. Found in a Bottle."

Three years later, he married his cousin, Virginia Clemm of Baltimore. She was 13. Her mother, Maria, was part of the marriage. He had published 83 reviews, six poems, four essays, three short stories, four books and was bankrupt.

Poe became famous in literary circles, and infamous for long sodden bouts with whiskey. His loyal friend was his mother-in-law. She nursed him to sobriety, nodded agreeably to his hundredth promise, and never left his side.

For $20 he wrote a preface to a book which had been plagiarized. Mrs. Clemm got a job to support his nocturnal writings. Her daughter was dying of tuberculosis. Poe perfected the modern mystery story with "The Murders in the Rue Morgue" and "The Mystery of Marie Roget." A great story skidded from under his pen, "The Gold Bug."

In Fordham, New York, the great writer penned the first drafts of "The Raven." He drank, fell into a stupor. It was winter, there was no heat, no food. Mrs. Clemm begged. Virginia Clemm Poe huddled in a corner under rags. Poe taught a cat to doze on her cheat to keep his wife warm.

She died Jan. 30, 1847, the first to be free. Maria Clemm remained at his side. He suffered a chronic psychological impotence, and sought sympathy and comfort from several women.

He fell in love and fell drunk with increasing frequency. As he approached age 40, Edgar Allen Poe was a celebrity in despair. He drank laudanum, but survived.

Back in Richmond, he joined a lodge of teetotalers. Anger outstripped his talent. In prose and verse, he lashed at his peers. He ran toward Philadelphia - as though running would alter his doom - and was found semi-conscious in Cooth & Sergeant's Tavern in Baltimore.

The world had turned its back on the genius. But not Maria Clemm. He was sent to Washington Hospital. He survived four days in screaming delirium. Edgar Allan Poe died on Sunday Oct. 7, 1849.

He was 40. Burial was at Westminister Presbyterian churchyard. In time, Maria Clemm got her reward. His mother-in-law, his true friend, rests beside him...

Riding 73,280 Pounds Downhill

That first morning I showed up for work to haul cement by the light of the moon, I met Gypsy Jack. He had earned that nickname. It meant he would drive any truck anywhere at anytime. That doesn't mean he's careless; accidents are against his religion.

The company knew they had a wide-eyed greenhorn on its hands.

"Today and tomorrow," said the safety man, "I'm assigning you to one of our top men. You'll make his runs with him and he'll show you the ropes. You won't get paid, of course."

"Of course," I said. No need to antagonize the man.

We got rolling at 3.30 a.m., heading for Plainville, Conn., 190 miles round trip through the Berkshires.

"This load grosses 73,000 pounds, right?" I asked.

"Yeah, 73,280 to be exact. The 280 is what the law allows for error. But we've got accurate scales, so they load us right up against the limit."

We stopped at a diner near Claverack. Good, I thought, I can get some breakfast. Jack hit the "maxi" brake valve and shut down the engine. "If we don't get back early, all the good runs'll be gone. I stop here for ten minutes. Just a quick cup of coffee."

I got the message. Better not order anything but coffee. "Can't make no money sittin' in a diner," Jack said.

I was halfway through my coffee when Jack stood up. "Let's go." Back in the tractor the clock showed me the engine had been shut down for exactly ten minutes.

As we rolled into the Berkshires, the load began to hold us back. Pulling the Norfolk hill we were in third gear, doing a steady seven miles an hour, as dawn lightened the sky ahead of us.

Beyond Norfolk, at the foot of a steep cut in the hills, innocently sits the town of Winsted. At the top, before the hill is visible, there is a small rustic sign designating a conservation area.

"See that sign?" said Jack, as he shifted down to ninth, then eighth, for no apparent reason.

"That little wooden one?" I said.

"Yeah. When you hit that, make sure you come down a couple of gears." We were starting downhill then, the air-brakes hissing periodically. "You can't see it from here, but right around that corner up ahead there's a blinker light and a town. Sometimes cars are streaming out of there and their drivers are still asleep. If you can't stop, you'll make a helluva mess."

"You won't have any problems in this rig," he went on, "but the brakes on some of the old ones you'll be driving next week ain't the best. So don't forget that sign." I felt my eyebrows rise.

"What if it's dark?" I asked.

"You'll learn to see it ...And don't hit the brakes too often. You don't want to lose your air."

(I feel an urge to state that since that time those problems have been corrected through technology and new road signs.)

In Plainville we unloaded in 45 minutes, Jack showing me how to pressurize and use the valves, and we roared back empty, arriving at the company's fuel pumps at 9:30. Every time we passed a diner I salivated and whined like Pavlov's dog, but to no avail.

Jack got a Bronx this time, Thruway all the way. I doubt the editor will let me tell you what they call that kind of run, but it means "easy" in this sense, "delightful sustenance" in another.

We loaded up again, and roared off again for the Bronx at about 10:15. Now! I thought. We'll stop at Modena for lunch. But no. I watched wistfully as that service area sailed uncaring past the window.

The next area did the same, as well as a Howard Johnson's. We unloaded in the Bronx, where we drank water from a hose.

Jack let me drive on the way back. He decided I was all right, so he took a nap sitting on the jouncing toolbox. "Where do you want to stop?" I asked nonchalantly.

"Let's get back," he replied. "I don't want to use up any more hours." Drivers are limited to ten hours of driving a day, 60 a week. He wouldn't get a good run on Saturday if he didn't have enough hours.

Just before Kingston, Jack opened his eyes and said, "Watch out for the bumps about a mile ahead."

"Okay," I said. He went back to sleep. They can't be that bad, I thought. But when we hit them, Jack flew off the toolbox and hit the roof with his head. I wanted it to be my revenge for starvation, but he just laughed.

We got back to the fuel pumps at 4.30, and Jack handed in his paper work. I trying to figure out how this man who fasted every day could nonetheless weigh about 230 pounds, until he said, "C'mon, let's go have a beer." We did, and I had two sandwiches besides. He didn't eat a morsel.

The next day was exactly the same, but I had bacon, eggs, three pieces of toast, and a hamburger before I left home.

My first day on my own they gave me a Plainville. At the top of the Winsted hill a little wooden sign caught my eye as it flashed by. What was I supposed to remember about that?

The rig was slowing gradually, but too gradually...

I remembered just as the rig was starting downhill, all 73,280 pounds of it. I hit the brakes three times, and the air pressure dropped. I managed to get into ninth gear, but was moving too fast for eighth, so I just stood on the brakes. The rig was slowing gradually, but too gradually.

As I rounded the curve the sharp smell of something burning reached my nostrils. Oh God! I was barbecuing the brakes! Soon there would be nothing but metal screeching against metal.

Luckily there were no cars pulling out at the blinker. But there was still the town, with a 30-mph speed limit. . As I approached the blinker I noticed a factory on the right. Something-Or-Other Wire Mfg. It simply stuck in my mind.

For some reason the brakes didn't evaporate, but the burning smell was stronger than ever. I entered Winstead at 35 mph, and slowed to a stop at a diner. I noticed the burning smell had disappeared, which was strange. It should still have been there.

In the diner I mentioned this to the counter man. "That wasn't your brakes," he said. "That's the wire factory. It smells like that all the time."

Jack certainly was right about that sign. I learned to pick out the little wooden thing long before I was anywhere near it. In fact, I can see it right now.

Ford Ponders His VP

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is taking his own good time is selecting a vice presidential running mate.

Nothing is certain regarding his own political fortunes but Ford is exuding confidence that he has the nomination sewed up against rival Ronald Reagan, tough as the going has been in this up-and-down campaign.

And it is not expected that he will reveal his vice presidential choice until after he gets to Kansas City next month and gets the GOP presidential nomination at the National Convention.

But the betting around the White House is that former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, 59, will get the nod from Ford when the time comes for the President to indicate his choice for the No.2 spot.

Observers see Connally as probably the best vote getter for Ford with his appeal to the South and his eloquence on the hustings. They believe he would be a match for Jimmy Carter in the political free-for-all with Ford taking the high "presidential road."

Ford has seen Connally privately several times and talked to him on the phone. His spokesmen say he has told no one of his preference for vice president and probably won't until the last minute. Like all of his predecessors, Ford likes to keep a secret and to make a big announcement at the dramatic moment.

The possibility of tapping Reagan for the job is not remote. In fact, to many political pros, the former California governor would be the logical choice and such a move would help to heal the wounds of a belligerent campaign for the nomination. Reagan also would be expected to have potent drawing power amomg the ultra-conservatives.

Ford's advisers believe that Connally would be able to deliver the Texas vote for Ford and perhaps some of the other Southern states.

Connally is sitting in the cat bird's seat. Reagan also has mentioned him as a running mate. So it appears he can't lose.

But Connally laughs off all inquiries about his political future. "I'm not running for anything," he told reporters when confronted at a reception given by Queen Elizabeth at the British Embassy last week

Connally has had his eye on the presidency — and while chances are slim to impossible this time around. He is making points with the Republican leaders and apparently his setting 1900 as a deadline for running. Ford cannot run again because he will have served more than two years in the White House in the unexpired term of his predecessor, Richard M Nixon.

Connally is comfortable with conservatives. He has long been a favorite of Nixon and would have been named to the vice presidential post succeeding Spiro T. Agnew but Nixon was warned he could not be confirmed.

Connally has done some political flipflops that did not endear him to the Democrats on Capitol Hill. He switched parties, from Democrat to Republican, in 1973. The quips at the time were that he was the only man "to jump on a sinking ship" in view of the inexorable momentum of Watergate and the obvious impending fate of Nixon

Sen Barry Goldwater, RAriz. has called Connally one of the best qualified men to serve in the presidency.

Connally served three terms in the governership in Austin. He also served as secretary of the Navy in the Kennedy administration and was shot and wounded in the Dallas assassination of John Kennedy. He was also a protege of Lyndon B. Johnson and also served as secretary of Treasury in the Nixon Cabinet.

He was acquitted of bribery charges in a Watergate-related criminal case involving payments by the milk industry to Nixon's campaign during the 1972 election

Whether Watergate would militate against Connally's selection as vice presidential nominee remains to be seen. White House observers seem too think not and Ford believes that Watergate is behind him and will not figure in the November election

Whether Democratic opponents would bring it up was not clear. Jimmy Carter has said he does not expect it to be an issue

Right now Connally is not saying a thing. He told reporters he is going to his ranch at Flogesvillz, Tex., to sit for a couple of weeks. After that he will be going to the Kansas City convention — and may be getting the all important call from Ford.

Earthy Sophistication Reigns

Among the many subcultures that have sprung up in American society is one that might be classified as "Hick Chic."

I don't know how widespread it is because I don't get around that much any more. But in these parts, pseudo-hayseedism is rampant.

Go to a Georgetown cocktail party and half the people there will be dressed like they just came in from plowing the north 40. These are people, you understand, lawyers, bureaucrats and such, whose closest contact with the land is potting soil.

The de rigueur fabric of Hick Chic is denim. Your basic Hick Chic outfit is a pair of hand-faded blue jeans, a dungaree jacket, a coarse blue work shirt and heavy shoes of the style once known as clodhoppers.

At least, that's the way the women dress.

Men dress much the same except that some wear sunbonnets.

If any of these people ever actually showed up on a farm, the farmer would sic the dogs on them.

Next to countrified haute couture, the main element of Hick Chic is bluegrass music. It says something that Jack Fogd, the President's middle son, took tennis star Chris Evert to a bluegrass place when she was playing a tournament here.

But Hick Chic bluegrass is to the stuff played in the backwoods of Kentucky as Old Grandad is to white lightning.

Hick Chic bluegrass is contrived and slick, performed, most likely, by architects and brain surgeons who have taken up the banjo and mandolin for relaxation.

The question that obviously arises is why these barnyard garments and diversions have become fashionable in metropolitan environments.

One sociologist with whom I discussed the matter told me Hick Chic was a spinoff from the general back-to-the-farm movement that has come about in the 1970s.

"During the sixties, the Army took thousands of city boys off the streets and sent them to Southeast Asia, which is largely an agrarian region," he explained.

"It was their first exposure to pastoral life and it left many of them determined to have a fling at rusticating when they go back home.

"And sure enough, the withdrawal of American troops was the start of a new urban-torural population trend that has replaced this country's traditional rural-to-urban migration.

"Even young veterans who remained in the city adopted bucolic trappings. Thus a whole new school of fashion was born."

I said, "Are you blaming Hick Chic on the Vietnam War?"

"Exactly How you gonna keep 'em urbanized after they've seen rice paddies?"

BY THE TIME you read this, maybe — just maybe — STEVIE WONDER has turned in his album to Motown. Yes, the very same album he started work on in January of 1975, the album that was supposed to be out last fall After taking four days off to nurse an abscessed tooth, Wonder returned to Hollywood's Crystal Sound Studios the week of July 5th to work on the final mixes of "Songs in the Key of Life." He said the LP should finally be presented to Motown by mid-July, which means it could be on the stands by August.

CALVIN HARDAWAY, one of Wonder's three brothers and a near-constant companion, said Stevie wasn't exactly dogging it during those 18 months: "Same time he's writing a song he's come up with an idea for another Then he'll go back and find something he wrote three years ago He changes songs every day. He's a perfectionist

"His livelihood is in the studio, his life is in the studio You want to come to his living room? Then come to the studio."

Wonder will stay in his "living room" to produce an album for WONDERLOVE, his backup group Then, there are plans for a European tour, to be followed by a swing through the U.S.

TWO PEOPLE WHO can't wait to hear WONDER's new LP are PETER FRAMPTON and CARLOS SANTANA Frampton told us a while back that he never goes on the road without his Wonder tapes and hopes to meet his "idol" some day. One reason for the bond, perhaps "We're both Tauruses" This is how Santana summed up his regard for Wonder "I have very few people who I call heroes and Stevie is one of them I look towards him as I look towards Martin Luther King."

FIVE SONGS into the BEACH BOYS' show at sold-out Oakland Stadium July 2nd, the rotund figure walked on the stage, tapped piano player BILLY HINSCHE on the shoulder and sat down himself It was the first time in 11 years that the ultra-shy BRIAN WILSON — the driving force behind the Beach Boys — had performed with the group. He stayed for the rest of the Boys' 90-minute set, even handling the lead vocals on 'In My Room ' As he left the stage afterwards, Wilson was heard to ask the group, "Was I OK?"

The next night at Anaheim Stadium, Brian walked on with the rest of the Beach Boys and stayed the entire set. He even left his seat once — at MIKE LOVE's coaxing — to wave to some fans who'd hoisted a "Welcome Back Brian" banner Brian's opinion of the shows "I loved it, especially seeing all the kids." Both performances were filmed by NBC for inclusion in the group's August TV special.

IT RAINED ON WILLIE NELSON's Fourth Annual Texas Picnic, July 2nd-4th, driving away a crowd of 100,000 The rain, though, was one of the lesser of the day's problems. some 15 stabbings and several rapes were reported, and there was one drowning. Only a reported half of the concertgoers paid for tickets before the fences were torn down. WAYLON JENNINGS never took the stage, and Willie appeared only briefly with DOUG SAHM and LEON RUSSELL. The promoters claimed losses of $100,000, but Nelson's manager, Neil Reshen, said it wouldn't be the last picnic "We'll keep doing it till we get it down perfect"

THE OHIO PLAYERS, never a big hit in England, walked off the "Top of the Pops" TV show recently, complaining of poor sound quality. They also walked out of a London Phonogram Records reception after exchanging words with record execs. One of their dressing rooms was burglarized and they changed hotels two times, complaining of bad service and poor accommodations. And they're still not a hit in England

Job Openings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Job openings in the front offices of the country's banks jumped 25 per cent during the first quarter from the year earlier period, according to Knight and Zabriskie, an executive recruiter. A survey by the firm showed jobs were particularly plentiful in the fields of marketing, international banking, retail and mortgage production starting at $25,000

Hot dog vender for the Bracht family gala was Robert McQueen of the Bronx. "Colonial" customers included Suzy and Marjorie O'Brien of Delmar.

Traditional Family Reunion In Honor of 'Nanny' Bracht Sparked by Colonial Garb

ROSENDALE—Descendants of the late Agnes "Nanny" Bracht gathered this past weekend in a family reunion that has become known as "Bracht's Cousin Club". The get-together was held this year at the home of Barbara and Thomas J. McInerney, LeFever Falls Road, with 89 of the 101 relatives in attendance, most of whom were from the New York area, with some from Pittsburgh, Pa., and Miami, Fla.

The reunions have become a tradition during the last 10 years and have been held in honor of "Nanny" Bracht who lived in Floral Park, L.I. and the Bronx. She spent her life working for various charity projects with the nuns of her church. In the family she always took care of the infants, and the children felt especially close to her. She had six children of her own; also surviving are 22 grandchildren and 47 great grandchildren.

In keeping with the Bicentennial year, many of the children and parents at the get-together came in colonial costumes for the two days of good food, good fun, and reunion. Every one attended the 9 o'clock Mass in honor of "Nanny" at St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, Sunday morning.

Life

"Umm-umm, good," says Suzy O'Brien of Delmar.

Slide-Lecture on Olana Set for Historical Group

HUNTER—Olana, one of the most interesting historic landmarks in the area, will be the subject of a slide-lecture presented by Linda MacLean, acting site director, when the Mountain Top Historical Society holds its monthly meeting at the Hunter School, Thursday, July 22 at 8 p m

Olana is on a high hill overlooking the Hudson River and can be seen clearly from the Rip Van Winkle Bridge The 37-room mansion was the home of Frederick Church, a successful landscape painter of the Hudson River School It was built between 1870 and 1874 and furnished with art works of the Old World, especially from Greece and Syria New York State designated it as an historical site and it was opened to the public in June of 1967

Linda MacLean has been acting site director at Olana for two years She received her M A degree under a New York State Historical Society and the State University of New York She graduated from Russell Sage College and was assistant curator of the Rensselaer County Historical Society in Troy

Commemorative Services Held at Local Church

KINGSTON—As part of the Bicentennial Celebration Year at Immaculate Conception Church Delaware Avenue, members of the parish held special commemorative services Sunday afternoon July 18 in honor of those from the church who have served in the wars The parish was formed in 1896 and men have served in both World Wars, Korean and Vietna conflicts

Part of the services were held at the World War II monument Sunday afternoon Altogether 288 men from the church served in this war and seven were killed in action

Paul Sepesy, president of the Parish Council and chairman of the event, was master of ceremonies Guest speakers were Mayor Francis Koenig, Eugene Perry, county legislator, Philip DeCicco, alderman of the ward, and Joseph Bujak, president of the White Eagle Benevolent Association

The National Anthem was sung both in American by the choir and in Polish by Eileen Reis Wreaths were presented by Edward Janasiewicz representing the parish and Joseph Bujak from the White Eagle Association A delegation from the Veterans of Foreign Wars provided the color guard and firing squad Taps were played by Robert Szymanski

The Rev Joseph Kozlowski pronounced the invocation and benediction and also conducted the religious services in the church preceding the ceremonies at the monument The church choir led in singing the patriotic music

DEAR ABBY

A Letter to Girls in Love with Married Men

DEAR ABBY: You once printed a letter telling girls who were in love with married men what to expect. You titled it "Never On Sunday." Please try to find it and run it again. I want to send it to my daughter. Thank you.—TEARING MY HAIR IN TULSA

DEAR TEARING: Here's the letter. I hope it helps:

DEAR ABBY: May I give your readers the benefit of my very valuable experience? I address this to any woman who is in love with a married man:

Never expect to see him on Sundays or holidays. Never call him at home. Don't ever expect him to take you out in public, but be prepared to entertain him at your place. He may bring a bottle or the steaks occasionally, but in actual dollars and cents, you will spend more on him than he'll spend on you.

Never depend on him in times of personal crisis. Don't believe him when he tells you that his wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin), and she hasn't slept with him in 10 years.

Don't expect his wife to divorce him if she catches him. She knows that you aren't his first affair and won't be his last. Also, she's not about to give up her social status, financial security and retirement income because of you. However, her discovery will probably terminate his affair with you, so be prepared to get some new clothes, circulate and find another man whose wife is a shrew, cold, homely, too fat (or too thin), and hasn't slept with him for 10 years. Sign me. . .—HIS WIFE

DEAR ABBY. This may be the most unusual letter you've ever received. You may even toss it into the wastebasket thinking it's a put-on, but I assure you it is not.

I am a 42-year-old man who is marrying a 38-year-old woman. It's my first marriage and her second.

Please don't faint, Abby, but I am a virgin—if one refers to a man who has never had any sexual relations in in his life as a virgin.

I know absolutely nothing about sex, and I'm scared to death that I will mess up on my honeymoon.

I am too ashamed to ask any of my close friends what to do. One day I tried to get some information from a casual acquaintance at work and he looked at me like I was nuts and said, "Just do what comes natural, man, do what comes natural." Then he walked away.

If I knew what was going to come natural I wouldn't be so worried. Can you help me?—NERVOUS IN LOUISIANA

DEAR NERVOUS: Your family doctor, or any physician, will instruct you in the basics. Don't be ashamed and don't worry. Your bride has been married before, so if you forget your instructions, she'll be able to cue you.

DEAR ABBY: Please explain in easy pool-hall language just what people mean when they say they are "born again"— —or "twice-born." Thank you.—B. H.: CLAY CITY, ILL.

DEAR B. H.: They mean that they have accepted Jesus Christ as their personal savior, and have put their faith and trust in Him.

For Abby's booklet, ."How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope.

Professors Barter Labor for Knowledge

NEW PALTZ—Two professors, Kurt Matzdorf and Robert Ebendorf, at State University College at New Paltz have found the ancient system of barter can be used to foster dissemination of knowledge.

The professors who teach the ancient art of gold and silversmithing, have just completed a one week workshop in metalworking for a group which included five persons from the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. The two teachers received no pay for their work having instead bartered their labor for a series of lectures to be given by museum personnel to New Paltz graduate students during the coming academic year.

The workshop provided the students, who also included faculty members and graduate students from Columbia University and a staff member from the New York University Institute of Fine Arts, with practical knowledge in metalworking techniques including the sinking, raising and stretching of holloware, embossing, flat chasing; rolling and drawing of wire; niello; and repousse.

"This experience of working with metal," Matzdorf said, "will enable them to better understand the construction of the historical pieces they deal with as curators and art historians."

The Metropolitan people included Prudence O. Harper, curator of Ancient Near Eastern Art, and her assistant, Holly Pittman, Katherine Brown, associate curator of Medieval Art and Pieter Meyers, research chemist. The Columbia University contingent was led by Edith Porada, professor of art history. The NYU Institute of Fine Arts was represented by Trudy Helms

FISHKILL—This week through July 25, The Cecilwood Theatre presents TV star Maeve McGuire in "My Fat Friend."

"My Fat Friend" is the story of overweight Vicky struggling to shed her excess poundage for the new man in her life, played by William Tost. She is aided in her struggle by her cynical, homosexual lodger (John Benson), and the boy who works in her shop (Lawrence O'Connell). This delightful play is directed by James Glass, producer of the Cecilwood Theatre.

Charlie Chaplin Film Festival Underway

NEW PALTZ—A Charlie Chaplin Film Festival is currently underway each Thursday evening in New Paltz and it is free. The festival is part of the program for the summer at the Student Christian Center, a united Protestant campus ministry to the State University College. The films begin at 9 p.m. and are shown by the Rev. Paul Walley, student Christian center director and campus minister, on the outdoor patio of Gage Hall dormitory at the college.

This Thursday, July 22, the movie will be "A Night Out," starring Chaplin, Ben Turpin, Leo White Bud Jamison and Edna Purveiance. This was the first movie for Miss Purveiance, who was to go on starring with Chaplin for some time. Two short films are shown with the main film and this week will be "Thank You, Mask Man" (a Lenny Bruce spoof); and "Brand New Day" (an animated short of a young woman greeting the beauty of the morning.)

The following week, July 29, "One A.M." will be the main movie.

Other programs being offered by the Student Christian Center this summer term are: Tuesday evening supper followed by volleyball and Bible Study. The supper is also free, held outdoors in the picnic area next to the center. The Bible study focuses on words and phrases in the Bible dealing with bodily postures and gestures relating to the Gospel. Led by the Rev. Mr. Walley, the study theme is "Body Language and the Bible." Supper is at 6 and study at 7:30 p.m.

On Wednesdays there is a summer coffee house at the Cave Inn, 143 Main St., next to the Trailways Bus Station and the Methodist Church education building. Student musicians play, admission is free although there is a small carge to cover refreshments. The program begins at 8:30 p.m. and continues to midnight. Artists scheduled tonight include two folk guitarists, Nelson Meyer and Rob Bass.

Information regarding the Student Christian Center may be obtained at the center, 62 Plattekill Ave., New Paltz. The center is funded by the Episcopal, Lutheran, Methodist and Reformed Churches in New Paltz.

The Rev. Mr. Walley is also conducting two field trips to Christian communities for 67 senior citizens attending a two week program at the college. They will visit the Society of Brothers in Rifton and the Holy Cross Monastery in West Park, an Episcopalian order.

Meat Prices Unchanged

KINGSTON—Retail meat prices will continue about unchanged this week with a fair number of beef, poultry and pork specials. These sale items are budget savers and are worth shopping around for, according to the Consumer and Market Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

Like last week, it will pay to take a good look at beef features. Chuck roast and steak will be attractive purchases with prices ranging from 49¢ to 98¢, depending on cut and trim. Other economical purchases will be frankfurters from 84¢ to $1.15, ground chuck from 75¢ to 99¢, and beef liver, hamburger and bottom round roast in the vicinities of 49¢, 65¢ and $1.19 respectively. Other beef items prices attractively are sirloin steak from $1.37 to $1.59, round steak from $1.45 to $1.65, cubed steak beef chuck from $1.25 to $1.49, beef shoulder steak from $1.19 to $1.49, and beef top round roast from $1.49 to $1.59.

Poultry sales will highlight broilers and fryers from 48¢ to 49¢, cut-up 50¢ to 55¢, chicken parts from 59¢ to 99¢, and turkey breast from 89¢ to 99¢. In the eastern area, ducks will be on special in the vicinity of 89¢.

There will be some thrifty buys on pork which include smoked ham butt from 99¢ to $1.29, smoked ham shank from 85¢ to $1.19, smoked pork shoulder picnic from 68¢ to 99¢, and semi-boneless smoked ham as low as 95¢ in the central area. Other items on special, here and there, will be center cut pork chops from $1.85 to $1.88, pork spareribs from $1.38 to $1.49, bacon from $1.49 to $1.69, Polish sausage from 89¢ to $1.49, Italian sausage from $1.35 to $1.44 and rib pork chops in the area of $1.35.

Veal cuts — rib chops, loin chops, shoulder chops and leg of veal — will be on special in the western and eastern areas. Lamb sales should be nearly nil.

NUTRITION AND SURVIVAL

By J. SOLTANOFF, D.C.

Poisoned Power... A Grim Prediction

I have received a number of letters from confused readers asking me my opinion of nuclear power plants. This confusion reminds me of the controversy that raged during the 50's and 60's regarding the dangers of cigarette smoking.

At that time there was a deliberate attempt on the part of the cigarette manufacturers to confuse the American public regarding the harmful and dangerous effects of cigarettes.

So called "controversy" is now raging over the safety of nuclear power plants among atomic scientists. Many are seriously questioning the safety of the emergency core cooling systems (ECCS) in reactors, Science magazine reported recently.

If a nuclear power plant's ECCS did not function properly, clouds of radioactivity would be released into the atmosphere. Although it is suspected that one reason for the accident at the Robert F. Ginna reactor near Rochester several years ago was due to cracked fuel rods in a faulty batch manufactured by Westinghouse (shouldn't there be closer inspection of such vital materials?), many experts believe that more severe and stressful conditions are sure to occur in the new generation of higher capacity nuclear power plants.

Senator Mike Gravel has called for a Federal Trade Commission investigation of "deceptive" advertising in both Time and Newsweek magazines for nuclear power plants claiming that breeder reactors produce "essentially no radioactivity."

Said Senator Gravel : "The breeder power plant will necessarily be the greatest radioactivity-producing machine in all time. Ask any competent physicist.. any kind of nuclear fission reactor produces radioactivity in direct proportion to the amount of energy it produces. A large nuclear electric plant of 3,000 thermal megawatts will produce as much radioactivity in one year of operation as the explosion of about 1,000 Hiroshima atom-bombs."

Residents of Ulster County in particular should be concerned, as we will be within range of three nuclear plants, including the one at Indian Point

High Profits tend to breed mild suspicions Smoking and Your Reflexes

Athletic coaches and doctors who have long believed that smoking lowers muscle activity, received support for their theory recently from Drs. Edward F. Martin and Alma M. Von Baumgarten, both of the University of Michigan Speaking to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, the doctors explained that smoking cigarettes can depress the patellar reflex (knee jerk) up to 67 per cent. This depression usually lasts 15 to 30 minutes after the first puffs are taken

These two physicians believe that the nicotine effect would be the same for all skeletal muscles "since the nicotine inhibits nerve cells in the spinal cord." Discovering Potential Heart Victims

Colonel Loren F. Parmlay of Walter Reed Army Medical Center told a recent meeting of the American College of Physicians that an electrocardiogram taken after moderate exercise may be able to pinpoint potential heart victimes. Military physicians looked for electronic "scribbles" on the EKG chart as signs that the heart was not receiving enough oxygen; a malfunction called ischemia

Medical tests have shown that people with ischemia have a high percentage of developing coronary artery disease. Exercise Clears Up Teenage Acne

A New York dermatologist (skin specialist) told a recent seminar on physical fitness that exercise and sports are often good for the skin and for skin conditions such as acne (pimples) so common with teenagers.

Dr. Louis Wexler, chief of dermatology at Beeckman-Douwntown Hospital, said that profuse perspiration loosens sebaceous plugs (blackheads or fatty plugs) and encourages a freer flow of sebum. This may result in a clearer complexion in those with skin problems.

Dr. Wexler also advised thorough washing with a mild soap and thorough drying with a moderately rough towel Getting away from junk foods including sweets, cake, candy, ice cream, etc., should also be helpful. Dr. Soltanoff, a West Hurley chiropractor and nutritional advisor, does not prescribe or diagnose. He reports on various fields of health.

Soprano Helen Merritt To Star at Templemont's Inaugural Concert

TANNERSVILLE—Helen Merritt, who has many performances in oratorio, opera, concert, musical comedy and television to her credit, will be the artist to star at the inaugural concert on the new outdoor stage at Templemont in Tannersville this evening at 8:30 o'clock.The new stage is located in a green field with a rolling hill forming a natural ampitheatre.

Miss Merritt, "soprano extraordinary,," was heard recently as guest soloist with the Catskill Glee Club. She has performed in Carnegie Hall, Philharmonic Hall, Town Hall, Carnegie Recital Hall, Broadway cast of "The King and I" and as "Julie" in Carousel.

Also appearing on the program will be Richard Bower, a talented pianist, who will accompany Miss Merritt and also play several solo selections. Folk singer, Lori Clinton will provide a change of pace with her warm style in folk music.

Templemont is located atop Clum Hill Road just off Rte. 23A in Tannersville. The program will begin promptly at 8:30 p.m. and the audience may bring folding chairs or blankets. Charge is $3. In the event of rain the concert will be at Tannersville High School.

Cecilwood Theatre Offering

'My Fat Friend' a Very Disjointed Tale

Editor's Note: John T. Sloper has been involved in the theatre for 18 years as stage manager and director. Since his move to Wappingers Falls in 1953, he has directed 24 productions locally. He now works freelance and has been writing theatre reviews for area publications since 1960.

FISHKILL--Not since "The Secret Affairs of Mildred Wild" has there been a production locally as tastelessly sophomoric as Charles Laurence's "My Fat Friend," currently at the Cecilwood Theatre in Fishkill. The British "comedy" will play through July 25.

The disjointed story hardly warrants telling. A girl who runs a bookstore finds instant love with a stranger who leaves the next day for four months in Iran. Her two lodgers conspire to make her lose weight so that she will be more appealing upon his return. He returns; she is thin; the romance is a shambles.

That's it! Nothing is said or done that could make us care one whit about the four unattractive people or their falsely humorous approach to life.

Maeve McGuire, with an obviously thin face and legs and a modicum of padding around the middle (in act I), is the fat friend of the title. Her lodgers are John Benson as a middleaged homosexual prankster and Lawrence O'Connell as a sour, sullen and petulant writer. William Tost has a thankless task as the easily unsuited suitor.

The performances, with the occasional exception of Ms. McGuire, do nothing to add any dimension to the tasteless and unincomprehensible script. Mildly naughty language that would be inoffensive if done with any kind of flair or style is dragged down to little-boy, bathroom-type humor that is unnecessary.

The speech patterns, sprinkled with stage British, are a confused mixture from all over, and the lines, though heard, are often not understood.

The script is as forced as the performances. Funnier (and more logical) conversation may be heard in any neighborhood bar. Attitudes that might have passed for sophistication in 1920 fall flat here, and by comparison to this author, Neil Simon attains (almost) the stature of Jonathan Swift.

If Laurence was reaching for laughs, these actors have overreached but have grasped only thin air. The play runs less than two and one-half hours.

KOed Nadjari Indictments Reinstated by the Court

NEW YORK (UPI) — Perjury indictments obtained by former Special Prosecutor Maurice Nadjari, but dismissed by the late Judge John M. Murtagh, have been reinstated by the Appellate Division of State Supreme Court.

The court, in a 4-1 decision Tuesday, overturned Murtagh's dismissal last December of the indictments against U.S. Customs Court Judge Paul P. Rao, his son, Paul Jr., and the son's law partner, Salvatore Nigrone because of "prosecutorial misconduct" in Nadjari's handling of the case.

The majority ruled on technical grounds that Murtagh promised but failed to give Nadjari 30 days in which to oppose motions for dismissal of the indictments.

Murtagh sharply criticized Nadjari for the use of undercover agents in seeking to have a robbery indictment "fixed" through Rao's office. His action paved the way for Gov. Hugh Carey's dismissal of Nadjari at the end of June.

In the dissenting opinion Tuesday, Justice Vito Titone said, "No prosecutor has a right to make a shambles and a mockery of a grand jury proceeding and no court should ignore such a travesty when it comes to its attention.

"This grand jury proceeding is so saturated with error that any indictment emanating therefrom should never again attain the status of a valid document," Titone wrote in listing instances of alleged misconduct by Nadjari.

Justice J. Erwin Shapiro said he voted for reinstatement "most reluctantly," and said he hoped the former prosecutor's newly-appointed successor, John Keenan, would make a "courageous reevaluation" in determining whether to proceed with the case.

Such a reevaluation of transcripts of proceedings leading to the indictments, Shapiro said, "will indicate to him as they have to me that they were secured by means abhorrent to those of us who believe that the Constitution was meant to be obeyed, not only by ordinary citizens, but by prosecutors as well."

In initial appeals of the indictments, the Raos' attorney, Roy M. Cohn, argued that the indictments should be dismissed because the so-called robbery was faked by Nadjari's undercover agents. Cohn said Nadjari, in an effort to entrap the Raos, was responsible for 12 separate crimes, ranging from forging police records to the removal of court records from the files.

In his dissenting opinion, Judge Titone supported that contention. He said, transcripts of tape recordings were read to grand jury members without permitting them to hear the tapes and assistant prosecutors participated in the grand jury's deliberations.

"When viewed in aggregate," Titone wrote, "the cumulative mistakes herein ... are so pervasive and enormous that quashing the indictment practically was mandated."

Rain Crushes Crops

(By UPI)

Driving rains swept northern Illinois Tuesday night and early today, crushing crops, flooding roadways and knocking out power in some areas.

More than five inches of rain soaked portions of Chicago's South Side and southern suburbs.

Roads ran curb-deep with water in some areas. Scores of cars stalled along major expressways in the metropolitan area and many drivers pulled off the roadways as raid reduced visibility to near zero.

Lightning struck a Commonwealth Edison Co. transformer in Joliet, Ill., southwest of Chicago, knocking out power to a third of the Will County city. Joliet reported more than four inches of rain Tuesday night and the storm continued early today.

The rains beat down corn crops in numerous fields and authorities said some crop damage was expected, though no damage estimates were available.

A broad band of thunderstorms stretched from eastern New Mexico through western Kansas early today and other storms hit portions of Iowa, Indiana and spread from New York into New England.

Steamboat Rock, Iowa, reported nearly two and a half inches of rain in an hour and Eldora, Iowa, got nearly two inches in the same period.

'BEST THEME'

Marianne Williams, a member of the church board and representative of the Ponckhockie Congregational Church youth group, received the trophy for "best theme" float in Kingston's Bicentennial Parade from Mayor Francis R. Koenig. Also present were Egon Schreiner, Steuben Society parade unit organizer, representing the Society's Schuhplattler folk dancing group whose float won the grand prize and Edward Levine, Bicentennial Commission chairman. Kingston Lodge 970, Loyal Order of Moose, received the award for the most original float.

City Buses Now Have Ad Space

KINGSTON — City operated buses now have interior advertising space available for lease to merchants and other advertisers, according to a contract signed by Mayor Francis R. Koenig.

Advertising card racks in each of the city's three minibuses will be leased through Signs & Designs, an area design studio and advertising agency which submitted a low bid on the ad leasing.

Howard Slotnick, operator of Signs & Designs, will pay the city $250 and will in turn lease the space to advertisers.

The municipal busing program was begun in April under a federal transportation grant, starting with one minibus and later expanding to three.

Alderman James F. Howard, chairman of the Kingston Common Council's railroad and bus committee, said the advertising program should appeal to passengers and local businesses as well as provide revenue to the city.

Adult Clinic Set for Woodstock

WOODSTOCK — The Ulster County Health Department will hold an adult acreening clinic at the Woodstock Health Center, 8 Maple Lane on Monday, July 26. The clinic will be open from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., but an appointment is necessary.

The clinic, which will serve anyone age 50 and older, will provide screening for blood pressure, hemoglobin, diabetes and other conditions, with counseling on related problems. This will be the final clinic for 1976.

Appointments can be made by calling the Woodstock Health Center Monday through Friday from 9 to 10 a.m. and from 4 to 5 p.m.

There will also be a clinic for immunization against polio, whooping cough, diptheria, tetanus, measles, german measles, and mumps held at the Woodstock Health Center on Wednesday, July 21 from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. It is recommended that immunizations be started at three months of age. The immunization service is available for those age 3 months to 21 years.

Another Strong Tuneup for Kingston

SAUGERTIES—If Tuesday night's game was any indication, the Legion county baseball championship will be a wild affair this weekend.

Kingston and Saugerties, the two combatants who are scheduled to meet in a best two-of-three series Friday, Saturday and Sunday, slugged it out at Cantine Field, with Kingston Post 150 prevailing, 8-6.

Kingston coach Ron Secreto utilized four pitchers: Joe Augustine, Dave Loeffler, John Acker and Marco Tiano, with Tiano picking up the win. Nick Malgeri suffered the loss for Saugerties.

Loeffler and Paul Runge keyed the win with two hits each and Loeffler drove in two runs and Runge three.

Kingston scored in the first as Rich Bell and John Grogan walked, a wild pitch scored Bell and Runge's single scored Grogan. It added solo runs in the second and fourth and two each in the fifth and sixth.

In the fifth, Kingston scored its pair when Augustine walked, advanced to second on a wild pitch and came home on Jay Foust's single. Foust scored when Loeffler doubled. In the sixth, Tom Slattery singled, Kevin Jordan pinch-ran and stole second, Grogan singled Jordan home and Runge doubled home Grogan for the final run by Kingston.

A three-run third came for Saugerties when Cliff Benjamin cleared the bases with a triple. The final run came in the sixth as Harris scored as Kingston failed to complete a double play.

The first game of the championship series is on Friday at 8:30 p.m. at Dietz Stadium. The second game will be Saturday at Saugerties(5 p.m.) and the third game, if necessary, Sunday at Dietz, (2 p.m.).

UPI Photos

MONTREAL (UPI) — Chauvinistic in their success, smug in their attitude and brash in their outlook, America's men swimmers are splashing their way toward an unprecedented clean sweep of every event on the Olympic program.

Except for the fact that they've been warned not to speak of it any longer—or risk a "kick in the teeth" from their coach —the star-studded Yanks are proving that silence is just as golden as their old openmouth policy when it comes to winning medals and showing up the rest of the world.

They made it 5-for-5 Tuesday night with two more victories, both in world record times, and they'll be big favorites in six of the remaining eight events.

Brian Goodell, who said that for the first part of his race he felt like he was in bed dreaming, outduelled teammate Bobby Hackett to win the 1,500 meters in 15:02.40, and John Hencken then captured the 100-meter breaststroke in 1:03.11.

Unfortunately, there is nothing gallant about the men's success in relation to their female teammates, who are being shown up by their inability to break through the gold barrier.

It was almost a day of disaster for the U.S. on another front, though, as Puerto Rico, led by guard Butch Lee of Marquette with 35 points, came within a basket of producing the biggest upset in Olympic basketball history. The Yanks managed to pull out a 95-94 squeaker, and it took two questionable calls by the officials to secure the victory.

Lee, a sophomore, wasn't even invited for the U.S. Trials although three of his Marquette teammates were, and as Quinn Buckner of the winners said, "I'm sure Butch Lee felt he had something to prove and he played like the great player he is."

Whether the close call to Puerto Rico was a fluke, or merely a letdown as Coach Dean Smith suggested, will be determined this afternoon when the Americans play against a strong Yugoslavian team which crushed P.R. by 21 points on Sunday.

By contrast to the invincible men swimmers, the American women have been unable to break through the superiority of their East German counterparts, and lost out on the one gold they thought they had in the bag Tuesday night when Pietra Thumer barely edged out Shirley Babashoff in the 400-meter freestyle.

It was Babashoff's second silver of the Games, and although her time of 4:10.46 broke the former world record by more than a second, she was disappointed at losing the gold.

It was the fourth triumph in as many races for the East Germans, and they very possibly will go on to capture every event.

The U.S. girls did manage a breakthrough in the water, though, when Jenny Chandler of Lincoln, Ala., won the three-meter springboard dive with a backward 2-½ somersault in the tuck position.

"That was probably the best one of that particular dive I've done in a year because it's been stinking up the pool," said Chandler, a 17-year-old, dark-haired high school senior.

Along with the two in swimming and one in diving, America earned a fourth gold medal Tuesday when Don Haldeman of Souderton, Pa., won the trapshooting with a score of 190.

This enabled the United States to overtake East Germany in the medal standings with seven gold, six silver and three bronze. The East Germans are next with 6-4-4 while the Soviet Union, with four, is the only other country with more than one gold medal.

Hencken, who also had won a gold in the 1972 Games at Munich, said the continuing success of the swimmers serves as a hype to the others who follow.

"It keeps everybody all psyched up," said the 22-year-old Stanford student, who tied his world record once and broke it twice during the preliminaries and final. "It's like a log, it just keeps rolling on."

Goodell, at 17 the baby of the team and still a high school senior, said he talks to himself a lot while swimming the marathon 1,500 meters. He recently completed a course called "Let Go of the Cookie," and explained, "It means to get your head together."

The 5-8, 150-pound Californian said that for the first 600 meters of his race, he felt he was in bed dreaming about it. "Then I said, 'This is the Olympics. Wake up. Keep going.'"

On a more serious note, there seemed a possibility of another political storm hitting these already troubled Games when it was learned that American gymnasts are planning a tour of South Africa next month.

Jackie Fie, U.S. representative to the International Gymnastics Federation, said she saw no conflict in the tour inasmuch as it doesn't involve members of the Olympic team.

"As far as we're concerned," she said, "there's nothing that comes under the jurisdiction of the IOC (International Olympic Committee) and I'm sure they're going to continue to go."

Even before this became a possible issue, Egypt and Morocco pulled out of the Olympics, adding Arab support to the boycott by Black Africa in protest of a New Zealand rugby tour of apartheid South Africa.

In other developments Tuesday, the U.S. women's basketball team evened its record at 1-1 by beating Bulgaria, 95-79; U.S. Greco-Roman wrestlers, a sport in which the Americans never have won a medal, scored two upsets as middleweight Dan Chandler of Minneapolis decisioned Csaba Hegedus of Hungary, the 1972 gold medalist, and superheavyweight Willie Lee of Muncie, Ind., pinned four-time world champion Alexander Tomov of Bulgaria; and in boxing bantamweight Charles Mooney outpointed former European champion Juad Rodriguez of Spain and flyweight Leo Randolph advanced on a forfeit.

TUNISIA (UPI) — Tunisia announced today that it has withdrawn from the Summer Olympic Games.

A statement issued by the Foreign Ministry here said that the inability of the International Olympic Committee and the Organization of African Unity to reach agreement on the question of New Zealand's participation in the games led to the Tunisian decision to withdraw.

The OAU has objected to New Zealand's participation in the Olympics because of a New Zealand rugby team presently touring apartheid South Africa.

"Tunisia, loyal to its policy of conciliation, has waited until the end in the hope that a decision it could support would be reached," the statement said.

The communique said Tunisia was now obliged to take its stand alongside its Arab and African brothers.

Four in Amateur Tie; A.J. in the Running

By STEVE KANE
Freeman Staff

GROSSINGER — The New York State Golf Association's annual Amateur Championship began here Tuesday, but it did not have what anyone would call a rousing start. The best number any of the 137 starters could carve out of the unforgiving Big G links was a one-over-par 73.

Steve Cruse, Mike O'Connor, Dan Steltz and Peter Young all hit that figure to virtually assure themselves of making the 36-hole cut today which could climb as high as 160. In another foursome one shot behind the leaders' pace was hometown favorite Rad Yaun.

Two previous winners of the tournament, defending champ Dr. Alan Foster of Bellevue CC in Syracuse, and five-time state king Don Allen of the Country Club of Rochester, where among the masses who struggled with the huge greens and difficult pin placements. Foster blew to an 83, and Allen, who took a nine on one par five, came home in 79.

Of the Ulster County entries, Wiltwyck's A.J. Maneen led the way with one of the 15 rounds of 77. Frank Muller of Shawangunk was a shot behind that with 78, and his clubmate Jon Berger posted an 80.

The leaders all played steadily. None were worse than 38 on either nine. Cruse, of Ontario, had 37-36, O'Connor, of Blutt Point, fired 38-35, Steltz , of Holiday Valley, shot 36-37, and Young, from the Westchester CC, posted 38-35.

Yaun is a former New York State high school champ and a member of the Jacksonville University team, but the credential that made him a favorite was his affiliation with the host club. He went around his home trek in a run-of-the-mill 38-36 to finish in a group that included Bill Tyron of Elmira, Bob Chalanick of Highland and Dave Martin of Park.

Maneen, Muller and Berger qualified in the Mid-Hudson Sectional, one of a dozen qualifiers held across the state. The best Mid-Hudson start came from Bob Dockerty of Dutchess who managed a 76.

Albany's Charles Murphy and the state junior champ, James Gridley of Bellevue also came in in 76.

Berger played better than his score indicated and could have been well up among the leaders but for the final hole.

"I didn't know there were trees on the left," he said after he walked off the 18th green. The lesson he learned there cost him three strokes to par.

Barring a massive improvement in the scoring today, an unlikely possibility, Maneen and Muller need only to remain steady to win themselves places in the remainder of the 72-hole tournament. Berger is in a more precarious position and will have to battle for one of the 30 spots under the cut.

CHIP SHOTS...This was the first time the state tourney has visited Grossingers though the resort has hosted two LPGA events and a major pro-am...Conditions were almost perfect with swirling afternoon winds the only outside factor in the scoring... On the 13th, the hole where Allen took his nine, Muller faced a 100-foot putt. "It had to be at least a hundred feet," he said. He didn't make it...Catskill's John DeForest, who has played the local junior circuit, shot a respectable 78...Tad Boyce of Red Hook took an 81...Ray Billows of Dutchess, a multi-winner of the championship in his heyday, settled for 83...

Jim York Was Surprised

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jim York was "awfully surprised" when he was called upon to relieve Ken Holtzman for the New York Yankees in the first inning against the Chicago White Sox Tuesday night.

But it turned out to be a masterful selection by Yankees Manager Billy Martin as York pitched seven innings to get his first win since New York called him up from Syracuse.

The Yankees, with 16 hits, won 14-9 in a game stopped by rain with one out in the Chicago eighth inning.

The White Sox batted 11 men in the first inning, highlighted by Bill Stein's three-run homer, to grab a 7-0 lead. But that was meaningless as the Yankees knocked out starter Ken Brett in the second inning when 12 men went to the plate and New York scored seven runs to tie the game.

The decisive inning came early—in the Yankees' fourth— when Roy White walked, Thurman Munson and Chris Chambliss each singled, Greg Nettles doubled and, after a walk to Oscar Gamble, Carlos May delivered a pinch-single to score two runs and put the Yankees ahead to stay.

"I was just out to win," May said. "It was good and satisfying to get a hit. I have no greater incentive against Chicago than anybody else."

May was traded by the White Sox to the Yankees earlier this year, with Brett among the Sox' acquisitions in the deal.

Munson was the leader as the Yanks won for the 11th time in 12 games with the White Sox this season, driving in four runs with three hits.

For the Boston Red Sox, a disappointing fifth place in the American League East, it is a time for fresh starts and positive thinking.

"I'm not even concerned about the pennant race," said Boston's interim manager Don Zimmer, who acquired his first victory at the helm Tuesday night with a 4-2 win over the Texas Rangers.

"I just want to catch the clubs above us. We need to get above .500 before we can even begin to think about the Yankees," said Zimmer, who replaced the fired Darrell Johnson Monday afternoon.

Even with the win, the Red Sox stayed 14 games behind New York, a 14-9 winner over Chicago in a rain-shortened game. Elsewhere, Baltimore whipped Kansas City 10-3, Detroit, behind rookie sensation Mark "Bird" Fidrych, beat Minnesota 8-3, Milwaukee topped California 6-2 and Oakland downed Cleveland 7-4.

"They (the Yankees) are sitting pretty good right now," said Boston designated hitter Cecil Cooper, who drove in two runs. "But maybe we can apply a little pressure to them. It's happened before. Who knows? They may fall apart."

Orioles 10, Royals 3

Baltimore's Wayne Garland, 12-1, scattered seven hits and Bob Grich and Lee May contributed an impressive offensive show. Grich drove in five runs with a homer, a triple and a bases-loaded walk and May smashed two homers, bringing his season total to 17.

Tigers 8, Twins 3

Detroit's Fidrych boosted his record to 11-2 by scattering 10 hits before a season-high crowd of 30,425 at Minnesota. Rusty Staub drove in four runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly and Ron LeFlore knocked home two more with another homer as the Tigers spotted the Twins a 3-0 lead and rebounded to win. A's 7, Indians 4

Phil Garner's bases-loaded triple keyed a four-run ninth inning that broke a 3-3 tie and gave A's reliever Rollie Fingers his sixth win against six losses. Sal Bando's single off Dave LaRoche, 0-3, scored Don Baylor, then Gene Tenace walked and Garner greeted Jim Kern with his 10th triple. Billy Williams also contributed a homer for Oakland.

Brewers 6, Angels 2

Koosman Earns Plaudits From Both Sides of the Field

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Jerry Koosman has one of those "now you see it, now you don't" curves.

"It looks good to hit when it's coming towards the plate but just when you're ready to swing, the ball seems to disappear," said Joe Morgan Tuesday night after the 32-year-old Koosman pitched the New York Mets to a 2-1 victory over the Reds

The veteran left-hander restricted the Reds to five hits, struck out eight and walked three in reeling off his fifth straight victory to boost his record to 11-6.

"I don't feel bad about losing that game," said Reds' manager Sparky Anderson. "I take my hat off to Koosman. When a man pitches a game like that, you've got to give him his dues."

"Koosman's curve breaks a lot even though he throws it slow," said Morgan. "Juan Marichal was the only other pitcher I've ever faced who threw the same kind of curve."

"I threw more curves than I normally do because I had a good one tonight," said Koosman, a Minnesota native who likes cool weather and pitches best at the beginning and end of each season.

"Since I've found this little friend," said the smiling Koosman, nodding toward the cup of Gatorade he held in his hand, "the heat doesn't bother me as much as it used to."

Koosman downed a half cup of the soft drink between each inning. He also changed uniforms twice.

"The last time I pitching, I changed uniforms four times I perspired so much."

The Mets bunched singles by Felix Millan, John Milner and Ed Kranepool with a sacrifice fly by Mike Vail to score both of their runs in the first inning.

The Philadelphia Phillies on the menu are a pitcher's nightmare but Randy Jones eats them for appetizers.

Jones won his 17th game and shut out the heavy-hitting Phils for the third time this season in a quick one hour, 32-minute workout Tuesday night when he pitched the San Diego Padres to a 3-0 win over the Eastern Division leaders.

"It's just a team I can handle," Jones said "I don't know why. That changes from year to year but I just hope it continues "

Jones, who has lost four, continues to solidify his chance to become the National League's first 30-game winner since Dizzy Dean turned the trick in 1934. Denny McLain won 31 for Detroit in 1971

Dean picked up eight victories in relief, however, while McLain came out of the bullpen several times in September, something Jones says he'll never do.

"I'd do anything to help this club but I'd never come in to relieve just for a couple of wins on my record." Jones said. "Yes, I'd like to win 40 but not that way That's cheap I'd rather win 29 of my own Who needs 30 that bad? Anyhow, I keep telling you, I'm just looking for 18."

The complete game was Jones' 17th in 23 starts and the shutout was his four this season and 12th in his career.

Steve Carlton saw his personal five-game winning streak snapped as he dropped to 10-4

In other games, Pittsburgh beat Houston 9-5 before losing 4-3, Chicago edged San Francisco 3-2, Los Angeles downed St Louis 3-2 and Montreal took Atlanta 4-3.

Pirates 9-3, Astros 5-4

Manny Sanguillen laced a bases-loaded triple to cap a six-run first-inning Pittsburgh outburst and help John Candelaria boost his record to 10-4.

In the nightcap, Enos Cabell tripled and scored on a ninth-inning sacrifice fly by Ed Herrmann to give the Astros a split of the doubleheader.

Giants 3, Cubs 2

Chicago's Rick Reuschel was coasting along on a two-hitter until the ninth when he developed tenderness on his pitching hand and was taken out Joe Coleman relieved, walked Marty Perez, allowed a double to Gary Matthews and Bobby Murcer's run-scoring groundout. Darold Knowles came in to squelch the uprising and record his ninth save.

Dodgers 3, Cards 2

Davey Lopes hit his first home run of the season in the second inning to lead Los Angeles and left-hander Doug Rau over St. Louis. The Cardinals' Lynn McGlothen saw his record dip to 8-9.

Expos 4, Braves 3

Montreal, which had won only three games in July, halted a five-game losing streak as Barry Foote singled home a run and Pepe Frias drove home another run with a sacrifice fly in the third inning to beat Atlanta in a rain-delayed two-hour contest

Unser, Garrett To Expos

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos Tuesday night traded outfielders Jim Dwyer and Pepe Mangual to the New York Mets in exchange for infielder Wayne Garrett and outfielder Del Unser.

The announcement was made during Tuesday night's rain-delayed game between the Expos and the Atlanta Braves by Montreal President John McHale.

Dwyer, who has been used primarily as a pinch-hitter, was batting only .185. He appeared in 50 games, had 92 at-bats, seven runs, 17 hits three doubles, one triple, no home runs and five RBI's.

Mangual, who had nailed down a regular outfield job with Montreal, was batting .260 in 67 games. He had 215 at-bats, 34 runs, 56 hits, nine doubles, one triple, three home runs and 16 RBI's.

"We've been working on this deal for the past six weeks," said McHale. "But I guess the injury to (Dave) Kingman Monday night pretty much allowed the Mets to make up their minds. Both Garrett and Unser are left-handed batters and that's what we need because we face so many righthanded pitchers.

"In the deal, we're giving away quite a bit in age because Dwyer and Mangual are younger." Dwyer is 26 and Mangual is 24.

Garrett, 29, has been with the Mets since 1969 and entered this season with a lifetime batting average of .238. A utility player who has played second, shortstop and third base, he played in two World Series with the Mets and hit two home runs in the 1973 classic against Oakland.

SIDELINES

Steve Kane

Steve Dropkin, the quiet guy who almost messed up Monday's Woodstock Open by threatening to run away with the title, is a worthier winner than most of his victims realized. Back when the NJCAA's Region XV had some good golfers, players like Joe Bostic and Tom Monticello, Dropkin was among the best of the lot.

He took the Rockland Community College banner all the way to the national JUCO tournament in Roswell, New Mexico, and he was well up among the medalists in that rugged competition.

He went to Florida after his two years at Rockland were over, but he decided to leave college after only about a month in the south. Since that time he's been working and playing golf, much of the latter with his former RCC coach, Howie Pierson.

Both Dropkin and Pierson play out of Riverdale. In team events, like the Ike, they are a dynamic duo, physically not unlike Batman and Robin. Dropkin thinks they should have won the Ike team title this year, but "I let Howie down."

The pair also joined a New York club, Blue Hills, in order to be eligible for tournaments in this state, but that venture backfired. The club squashed their eligibility because they didn't show up too often at Blue Hills.

Mil Radler kept the excitement alive at Woodstock with a fine performance that equalled Dropkin's. The five-under-par totals of those two overshadowed the fact that the Open field as a whole played better than ever. The median score was 74—it's never been that low before—and only a dozen of the 99 players failed to break 80.

Next year promises to be even better. The increased purse brought the pros out of the woodwork, a trend which should continue. That will enable the hard-pressed tournament committee to be a little firmer with borderline players and Johnnies-come-lately.

About the only negative feedback heard from the contestants had to do with getting lunch. The small Woodstock facilities just couldn't get the goodies out fast enough.

That should be improved by the time the 42nd Open rolls around, and there is one other change in the works, the date Conflicts have plagued the tourney in recent seasons. This year it was pro-ams at Winged Foot and Niagara Falls.

Instead of the third Monday in July, the standard time slot for the tournament in recent years, the contest will most likely be switched back to its original date, the second Friday in August. Tournament officials are hoping such a change will cut down on the number of conflicting events that draw good players away from the field as well as give a boost to the size of the gallery.

There's another open golf tournament in the works, the Grossinger Open. It'll be played August 30 and offer a total purse of $5,000 with $1,300 to the winner.

The first 80 pros and 40 amateurs to file will get spots. Amateurs need an eight handicap or better to file.

Mark Etess of Grossingers reports he's already got his first entry. It's from an amateur named Mary Diana. She'll be hitting from the same tees as the men.

Grossingers also landed the State Amateur this year, and it's currently in progress, but host Paul Grossinger won't be around to watch how it ends. He'll be playing in the New York Seniors Tournament.

He's looking forward to it, but he's making no predictions

"I used to be a pretty good player," he said. "I shot a 73 at Knollwood once, and I've broken 80 at Baltusrol."

Grossinger was watching the amateurs struggle with his course Tuesday when he had an unusual experience he later recounted.

"Ever hear of a guy losing his bag on the course?" he asked, "Ever hear of a guy losing all his clubs...his caddy... his cart?"

Another tournament is going to be held in Albany later this month, an American Legion baseball tournament. It will involve all-star county teams from Albany, Rensselaer and Columbia, among others. It would be interesting to see what an Ulster County squad could do against such competition.

Marco Tiano and Tim Cole on the same side for a change? How about interchangeable double play combinations of Val Galm and Paul Runge and Jay Harris and Nick Malgieri?

You can't help but think that with such a combination of forces Ulster would raise some eyebrows, some of which would belong to a scout or two.

Six Teams Advance in District 16 Girls' Softball

KINGSTON—Lopsided scores were the rule Tuesday as play began in the District 16 Little League Girls Softball tournaments. Four of the six contests were one-sided affairs.

In the senior division, Esopus crushed Rondout Valley 11-3, Kingston Nationals slapped Jaycees 13-7, and Hurley topped Ulster 5-3.

In the junior division, the Americans slammed Jaycees 12-5, Hurley dominated Esopus 9-1 and Rondout Valley edged the Nationals 6-4.

Play resumes Thursday night in the senior division with Esopus meeting National at Americans Field and Hurley vs. the Americans at Rondout Valley field. In the junior division, the Americans meet Hurley at National field and Rondout Valley takes on Town of Ulster at Jaycees field.

Cheryl Turck pitched Esopus to the 11-3 win over Rondout Valley and Kathy Moxham doubled, had two hits and drove home three runs to aid the win. Kate Smith also doubled for Esopus. Their big inning was the fourth, with four runs.

Kingston National pushed across eight runs in the fit th in beating the Kingston Jaycees 13-7. Terri Bell was the winning pitcher and Dawn Bouton took the loss.

Hurley scored four in the first on its way to the 5-3 win over Ulster as Mary Tentnowski was the winning pitcher. Pat Fusaro took the loss. Leslie Warren and Nadine Fischer keyed the first inning rally.

Lisa DiBernardo got hits hits and scored three runs and Dawn Downs was the winning hurler as Hurley beat Esopus 9-1. Lisa Mitchell took the loss. Joanne Johnson drove in two runs.

Rondout Valley scored five in the second as it beat Kingston National 6-4. Jill Brown won the game and Yolanda Turini took the loss. Barbara Caddington , Dori Cesserato, Tammy Krom and Bonnie McMillan each got two hits.

The Americans scored seven in the fifth and in four of five innings in beating the Jaycees 12-5. Dena Perry was the winner, Dorothy Hembold took the loss. Kelly Dahl had a triple and two hits for the Americans

Quarterfinal Stage for Boys' LL Tournament

KINGSTON — Play in the District 16 Little League baseball tournament reaches the quarter-final stage tonight at 6 p.m. with four games around the county.

Five of the eight teams in action this evening will be making their first tournament appearances. They include Hurley and Rondout Valley, who'll meet at the American LL field; the Indians and Esopus, who'll tangle at Highland, and Highland, which meets the Ellenville squad at Esopus.

The other second round game tonight pits the Americans against the Jaycees at Rondout Valley.

The Americans advanced Monday with an 8-1 win over the Nationals. Jaycees beat Ulster, 9-1, and Ellenville trimmed Onteora, 5-2.

Tonight's winners meet Friday at Highland and Ulster. The championship game is set for Saturday at a field and time to determined.

Mike Dittus drove in three runs, John Riester knocked home two and George Uhl tossed a six-hitter as the Jaycees beat Ulster in Monday's tournament opener. Paul Brink had a pair of hits for Ulster.

Rich Gillette and Ray Weston each cracked two hits to spark Ellenville over Onteora. Edwin Ramos and Andy Konca combined on a three-hitter to keep the losers at bay.

Dolphins' Nick Buoniconti Retires

MIAMI (UPI) — Middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti of the Miami Dolphins ended a 14-year pro career Tuesday in favor of his law practice and a weekend broadcasting contract.

Buoniconti, 35, had been expected to announce his retirement after he failed to show up with the rest of the Dolphin veterans on the scheduled reporting date Sunday.

Huguenot Juniors In Classic Lead

ACCORD — Defending champion Huguenot Manor moved into first place in the Mid-Hudson Junior Golf Classic standings Tuesday at Rondout Pool, Golf and Tennis Club by capturing the circuit's weekly stop by a whopping 30 strokes over runnerup Catskill.

Wiltwyck, which had been the aggregate leader but which was missing one of its top players Tuesday, finished third, 35 shots behind.

Huguenot Manor now has a three-match total of 1,038 to Wiltwyck's 1,054. Catskill remains in striking distance with 1,070.

Medalist for Tuesday's round was Bryan Smith, Jr , of Wiltwyck with 40-37—77 Steve Van Tassel of Sawyercrest and Todd Krieg of Huguenot Manor tied for second with 79s

Smith also won the low net division with 77-6—71.

The circuit stops at Shawangunk next Monday.

Record $1.5 Million Sale For Secretariat Offspring

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — A chestnut colt sired by 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat brought a world record price of $1.5 million Tuesday night at the concluding session of the Keeneland Race Course Summer Yearling Sale.

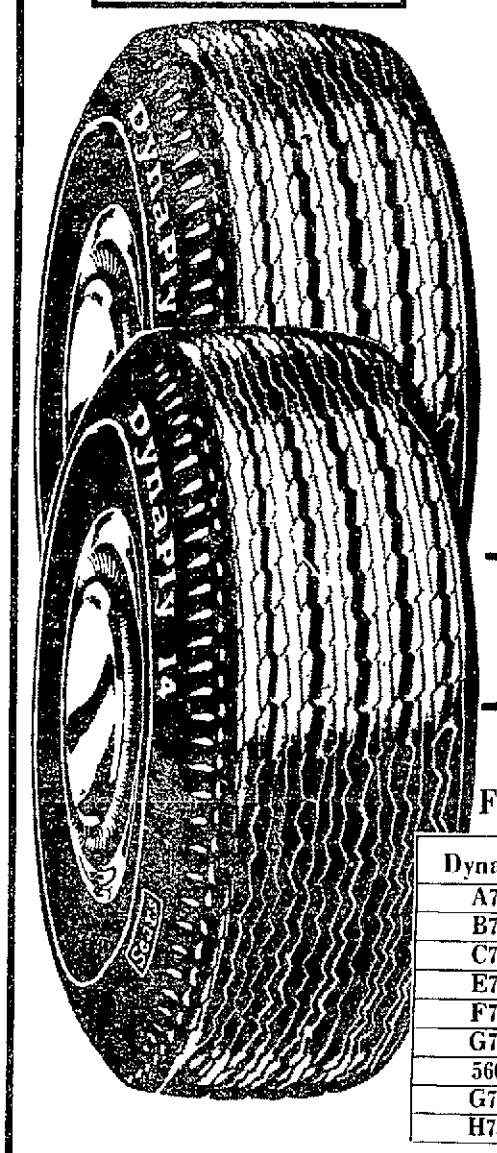

The colt, out of Charming Alibi, was purchased by a Canadian syndicate from the consignment of Texas millionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt's Bluegrass Farm.

Sea Raiders Rally to Sink Hurley

RED HOOK— Red Hook Sea Raiders pulled out a come from behind victory 232-221 victory over Hurley in a non-league match.

Having fallen behind after the first two medley relay races, Red Hook evened the score at 52 with victories in the freestyle and never again fell behind.

Two Red Hook boys, Bill Hladik and Mike Mosher led the team to victory, combining for a total of nine individual first places and 45 points. The 17-year-old Hladik recorded wins in each stroke and the individual medley. Fourteen-year-old Mosher took four individual races. Other multiple winners for Red Hook were Liz Fritz who finished first in the free, back and IM and Ann Hoch, who captured the 18 and under free and butterfly.

Hurley had four wins each from Bob Darling, Brian Caragher and Theresa Darling. Michelle Darling brought in blue ribbons in the eight and under free,breastsroke and butterfly.

The Red Hook girls outswam Hurley 16 to 9 while the Sea Raider boys managed an edge of 13 to 12. Hurley took three of the four relay events.

The Sea Raiders next swim against the Bi Valley League Champions, the Dutchess County YMCA Pirranhas today at the Rec Park pool.

Current BiValley League standings are: Dutchess County YMCA, 2-0, St Mary's Wappingers Falls, 2-0, Red Hook, 1-0, Mi-dletown YMCA, 1-1, Hyde Park, 0-1, Pawling, 0-1, Poughkeepsie YWCA, 0-1, Salisbury, 0-1, Spratt Park, 0-1.

Baeza, Ruffian Named to Hall of Fame

SARATOGA SPRINGS (UPI) — Jockey Braulio Baeza and the late filly Ruffian were among nine racing figures named Tuesday to the Saratoga Racing Hall of Fame.

Ruffian, who broke down during a nationally-televised match race in 1975 at Belmont against Foolish Pleasure and had to be destroyed, was named in the "female horses — modern" category. Baeza was chosen in the active jockey category.

Also named to the Hall of Fame was Susan's Girl in the modern female horse division; Northern Dancer in modern male horse category; Alsab as old-timer male horse; Bon Nouvel as a steeplechase horse; Bed O'Roses as old-timer female horse; Woody Stephens as active trainer, and Robert Smith as old-time trainer.

Ruffian won 10 of her 11 starts and was both two-year-old and three-year-old filly champion, in 1974 and 1975 respectively. Susan's Girl is one of three race mares to earn more than 1 million dollars. Bed O'Roses, racing in the early 50s, was both a two-year-old champion and a four-year-old champion.

Ulster Swimmers Win Five Races

KINGSTON—The Ulster County Swim Club recently participated in both the Adirondack Association Junior Olympics Long Course championships and the Lake Placid Annual Long Course Invitational swim meet

The club, coached by New Paltz State's Art Stockin and Kingston High's Floyd Mc Cormick, saw Rex Herman capture a total of five first places in the two meets

At the Adirondack meet Herman was first (ages 9 10) in the 200 meter Individual Medley in 3 02 8 Donna Durkin (13 14) was first in the 100 meter backstroke in 1 19 0, Kathy Sheren (13 14) was first in the 200 meter IM in 2 46 0, and Bob Winrow (15 18) was first in the 100 meter butterfly in 1 03 1 Herman and Winrow were runners up for high point awards in their age divisions

Swimmers to make the final six in their events included Joy Herman, Carole Murphy, Tracy Lasher, Kyle Mc Cormick, Larry Jordan, Steve Rubin Donna Durkin, Eileen Sullivan Kevin McCormick, John Hickey Patti Durkin, Barb Buck, and Paul Hansen

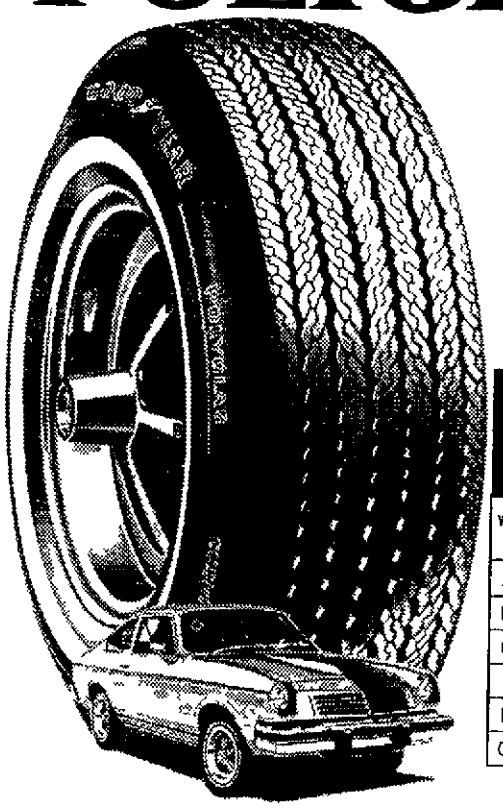

At the Lake Placid meet, Herman captured four first places and one second to win the high point award in the 10 andunder division He won the 50 meter free (33 9), 100 meter free (1 15 3), 50 meter breaststroke (45 6) and 50 meter butterfly (39 5)

Barb Buck won the only other first place for Ulster taking the 100 meter backstroke in 1 19 3 Thirteen other Ulster swimmers made the final six in their eventa

Suzanne Fraser and Steve Punt received trophies for finishing in the top six in the open one mile swim July 16

Aerodynamics

With a helping hand from helicopter and crew from the New York Air Force National Guard, this once proud "king of the road" cruises along for its last journey. The trip will end at West Point's artillery impact area where the car will become a "target" for Military Academy cadet summer training artillery practice.

Area Service News

Back from Europe

KINGSTON—Major Mel Moss, U.S. Army, has returned from his second European three-year tour of duty.

He was attached to Headquarters Company of the First Armored Division in Germany. In December, 1974, he was assigned to the Inspector General's staff.

The major has been in service since January, 1965. He spent three years in Germany, one year in Vietnam, a year at Fort Knox, three years as instructor at Kansas State College, Pittsburg, Ka., where he graduated and now his second tour in Germany.

He will visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Moss of 89 Southfield St., Kingston before going to his next assignment. He is to attend General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Ka.

100th Plans Reunion

HYDE PARK—The 100th Infantry Division Association is planning its 29th annual reunion at Pocono Manor Inn and Golf Club, Pocono Manor, Pa., Sept. 9 through 12.

The association is made up of former 100th Infantry Division members who served in World War II.Frank G. Andros of PO Box 55, Hyde Park, 12538, may be contacted for further information and reser-

Reserve Due Home

KINGSTON—The Kingston units of the Army Reserve are into their second week of training at Fort Drum, Watertown.

Major Joseph Paes, Battalion commander, has announced that the first week of training was outstanding and the units of the Hudson Valley are ahead of their work schedules and programs. The weather at Drum has been favorable for the many construction programs. There are several large road construction projects, several bridges and buildings renovations on the post.

The Kingston Units are known at Drum as the "builders." The 854th Battalion is one of the few in the state to have the mission to build or renovate as quickly as possible so the facility may be used.

The Army Reserve will return from training July 24.

Advice For Vets

KINGSTON—Many veterans allow their GI Insurance policies to lapse because of neglect rather than intent, according to Donald Moore, counselor, New York State Division of Veterans Affairs.

A number of them, he said, develop the habit of riding the grace period for premium payments. Then, they forget to mail their payments before the deadline, unkowingly allowing their policies to lapse.

Moore urged area veterans to bring premium payments up to date and make future payments before the grace period.

Assigned To 101st

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky.—Army Private Jack W. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sengelton of Modena, recently was assigned to the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Pvt. Thomas is a member of Company C, First Battalion of the division's 327th Infantry. He entered the Army in 1974.

Bank Opens Electronic System

Business News Today

Shop Rite Manager Lee Lussier tries new system

KINGSTON — Electronic banking has been introduced by Kingston Trust Co., which installed its first electronic transfer system, or EFTS, at a terminal in the Shop Rite Supermarket, Boices Lane, Monday.

The service, known as "The Bank Key" has already been installed at about 60 merchants in the upstate area by First Commercial Banks Inc., through its member banks in Syracuse and Albany.

William H. Stevens, president of Kingston Trust, said his bank has received approval from the State Banking Department to operate subsequent installations at Miron Home Center, Route 9W, Lake Katrine, scheduled for Aug. 2 and at Gov. Clinton Market, 777 Broadway, scheduled for Aug. 16. A fourth location, Rosendale Food Center is pending approval and many more locations should be forthcoming, he said.

The Bank Key service will operate through electronic terminals at store locations connected to the bank's computer center. Bank Key customers will be able to make deposits or withdrawals from their checking accounts and pay for goods without writing checks.

The Bank Key customer fills out a form describing what he wants — cash, payment of a purchase, or a deposit. He then gives the slip to the terminal attendant, who inserts the slip and a plastic bank key into the banking terminal.

Then the customer spells out his own personal password on a palm-size electronic pad, resembling a touch-telephone keyboard. Only when the customer enters his correct, secret password does the transaction take place.

The transaction takes place instantly and the customer's checking account is charged or credited. As a safeguard to privacy, the balance of the checking account is not available to the store clerk.

Stevens said the Bank Key will eliminate the need for stores to verify the customer's identification, saving both the store and customer inconvenience and delays. All Bank Key transactions are guaranteed to the store by The Bank.

Rondout National Stock Sale Done

KINGSTON — Rondout National Bank has completed the sale of its recent stock offering of 30,360 new shares, increasing the bank's stockholders from 225 to 424 and adding $516,120 to its capital.

The additional capital will permit further growth of the bank, including construction of a new permanent branch on Hurley Avenue in Kingston and an additional office in Saugerties, according to a joint statement by Chairman Lawrence A. Quilty and President James F. Dwyer.

"Rondout National is one of the few banks in the country to successfully market a new issue of stock in the past few years," Dwyer said. "It clearly demonstrates the confidence people have in independent banking in the Ulster County area."

Quilty commended "all who helped and participated in the sale, including stockholders, officers and employes of the bank."

Cafe Gets a 'Second'

KINGSTON — Having just toasted Schneller's Upstairs for being awarded the state's first tavern wine license, Kingston will now raise its glass again, this time to Cafe Downtown, which will have the distinction of being the second restaurant in the state with the new license.

"I might be second best but I'm trying harder," Bob Johnson, Cafe Downtown proprietor, quipped Monday when he received notification from the state to pick up his license on July 23. Schneller, of 63 John St., has license number TW-1 and Johnson's restaurant on West Strand will have TW-2.

Coming from behind is nothing new to Johnson, whose efforts to establish revitalized downtown in the West Strand area are well-known. He began the building of his restaurant business in an 1870 structure on the Strand in 1973 and was hit by disaster in April of this year when an alleged arsonist set fire to the building.

Fund raising affairs were held to help Johnson carry on his one-man crusade to restablish the restaurant which is scheduled to reopen this week or next.

There'll Be Some Changes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A clinic that diagnosed men as pregnant was ordered to improve its procedures.

Superior Court Judge Norman Dowds ordered the Phoenix Family Medical Clinic of Long Beach Tuesday to stop telling women they are pregnant unless the test was supervised by a physician or registered nurse.

The investigation began after seven students and an instructor at the California State University at Long Beach went to clinic and were diagnosed as as pregnant, though none was.

Eight female undercover agents then went to the clinic, investigators said, including four who substituted male urine for their own and two who had undergone hysterectomies and could not possibly be pregnant.

Two of the four male urine samples were diagnosed as coming from pregnant women, and both the hysterectomy cases were told they were pregnant, the complaint said.

The women said they were then offered abortions for $150.

Gay Gets Liberal Nod

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Earl Colvin, a gay activist, has won the Onondaga County Liberal Party's endorsement to run for the 32nd district congressional seat held by Democrat James Hanley.

The party gave its endorsement to the 43-year-old Colvin Monday. He is a political newcomer who said the National Gay Task Force told him he is the first openly gay person to see a seat in Congress.

Colvin, a graphic artist, said his inexperience in politics and government make him the best qualified candidate for the job.

"I can approach the job with an open mind, fresh ideas and an unjaded attitude, ready and willing to work and fight for those who elect me."

Congress Data Via Satellite

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time, Congress has received testimony by way of a communications satellite.

The cable television industry arranged to have the testimony relayed Tuesday from a satellite orbiting 22,300 miles above the equator. The House Communications subcommittee, which heard the testimony, has been studying the industry several weeks.

Donald Williams, president of a San Diego cable TV firm, argued by satellite that cable TV should be released "from the tangled web of burdensome regulation" under current provisions of the Federal Communications Commission.

Williams sat in a cable television studio in Santa Monica, Calif., and was questioned from Washington by Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., a former San Diego broadcaster. Committee members watched Williams on four color TV sets.

Members of the subcommittee questioned Williams after the testimony. Although they could see and hear him, Williams could only hear the congressmen.

A cable TV spokesman said the satellite rental cost about $625.

Arty Shelling Shatters Partial Beirut Truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A shelling attack on Arab League peace-keeping troops entering Beirut's no-man's land today shattered a partial truce and renewed fighting around a besieged Palestinian camp delayed the evacuation of 100 seriously wounded persons inside.

Gunners firing from Beirut's Christian sector shelled the city's "green line" dividing Christian and Moslem militias just as an armored column of Arab League forces was arriving.

Reporters said leftist gunmen manning roadblocks began cheering and clapping as the first of the peace-keeping troops arrived. Moments later heavy sniper fire from the Christian side sent them scattering.

A five-minute barrage of artillery fire landed in the midst of the column of 15 armored cars and 10 jeeps and personnel carriers and touched off panic among several hundred persons, who had assembled to watch them move in.

About 10 shells slammed into the street, wounding several persons. A Lebanese photographer was shot in the neck by a sniper and one shell blasted the road ahead of a car carrying several reporters, including UPI correspondent Michael Ross, shattering their windshield.

The white-helmeted Arab Leabue troops ducked inside their armored cars and quickly shut the latches. They took up positions along the side of the road but did not fire back.

Heavy fighting also broke out around the Palestinian camp of Tal Zaatar in southeast Beirut, forcing the International Red Cross to postpone its third attempt to send in a relief convoy to evacuate the 100 worst cases among the estimated 1,000 wounded languishing in the camp during the month-long Christian siege.

But a Red Cross spokesman said no immediate decision was made to cancel the convoy. He said he would wait until noon for the fighting to stop.

"If it doesn't, then the convoy is canceled," he said.

Trouble in Finding Partners, Too

Coast Woman, 83, Has Quite a Racket

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Peg South, 83, said she turned to tennis at the age of 66 to avoid becoming "a tea and toast old lady."

After playing a couple years she realized "I wasn't getting any better" so she tracked down a tennis pro, told him, "I don't mind spending the time and the money if you have the patience" and spent four years perfecting her game.

Now she claims to be the nation's oldest competitive tennis player, and says she has trouble finding partners in her age group. She resorts to playing with those in their 40s and 50s.

Miss South, who lives in the Emerald Bay area of Laguna Beach, will seek her sixth straight victory this weekend in the International Senior Olympics at San Diego Country Estates, a resort community 44 miles northeast of San Diego.

She plays tennis at least five days a week, Miss South says, "and I haven't a complaint on earth." As for her age, she claims "numbers don't make so much difference — it's how you feel."

She played tennis while attending Oregon State College in 1915, but says she didn't play again until her retirement at the age 66. "My mother died, and I didn't have any responsibilities," she said, "I didn't want to be a tea and toast old lady or a bridge player."

Lightning Strikes

According to scientists with the National Weather Service, the distribution of electricity in a thunderstorm cloud is usually a concentration of positive charge in the frozen upper layers, and a large negative charge around a positive area in the lower portions of the clouds.

The earth is normally negatively charged with respect to the atmosphere. It is estimated that some 1,800 thunderstorms are in progress over the earth's surface at any given moment, and that lightning strikes the earth 100 times each second.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

STUCK: (Q) I am 18 and the only one in my family who doesn't have a job I have an older sister and two older brothers who work but live at home. And my mother and father work.

So guess who gets stuck with all the house work? Me! I'm sick of it. I don't have any time of my own. Or money either.

When my parents tell me to do something, should I say, "No, I've got things of my own to do?" Or should I say, "Since I do all the work around here, like a maid, I should get a weekly pay check"? — Slave Girl in Texas

(A.) You should have time of your own to spend personally and socially. This time should be scheduled for you, and not just grabbed when there are no dishes to wash or beds to make. You should also have a weekly allowance.

Your family appears to take you for granted. Have a conference with all of them. Explain all the things you do for them. Explain your need for time and money of your own. Ask them to make arrangements for an allowance and free time for you. I believe if you will put it to them straight and in strictly business fashion, they will cooperate.

FRECKLES: (Q) I have this problem of being ugly. It's my face. I have no pimples but I have a million dark freckles. Boys say, "Ugh, look at her ugly face." Don't tell me to go to the doctor, because I don't have that much money I'm 14. — Spotted in Pennsylvania

(A.) Freckles are easily subdued with the correct makeup base. That is what you need, plus mascara, blush and pale lipstick. When you are older you may want to add other things.

Go to an expert at a department store and ask her to show you how to use this base and blend it at your neckline. Learn to apply it correctly and it will do wonders for those freckles.

(Write to Dr Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001 Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies.)

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, JULY 22

Your birthday today: The Sun changes sign, enters Leo at 1:19 p.m. EDT. For both today's thoughtful Cancer and more forceful Leo natives this year involves many changes of viewpoint. Wide-ranging personal opportunities begin with disturbing insight into present limitations. Relationships are less important than efforts to fulfill potentials. You attract what you need at the last moment; the achievement is to recognize breaks soon enough to grab them. Today's natives are natural leaders.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Complexities arise at work, require exacting decisions. Overtime is justified. Devote evening to pursuit of personal happiness. Children clamor for attention

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Figure your budget to the penny step by step, check for last-minute changes, and you've got a financially successful day. Tonight romance sparkles.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Take the initiative to get people together to reconcile differences. Barring that, hie yourself out of the picture. Be careful on the road and in public places.

Cancer (June 21-July 22). Stay within reasonable rules Try to recover scattered belongings. Ask a good question in the right spot, with emphasis on an informative answer.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Plans advance quickly. Get moving early with people who are all revved up to go. Stragglers soon hurry to catch up. Home life is easier. A gift says it nicely

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In seeking precise sums and measurements, you encounter people who insist on quibbling Keep your wits about you or you end up with a fight on your hands.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Expand: explore your surroundings again Even in accustomed routines something is different. Unusual opportunities are available, but subtly disguised

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You're largely on your own resources, yet better off. you won't have to explain. Get in touch with distant contacts for perspective on your field of action

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Ability to organize work puts you in line for higher pay and more responsibility. Quit early Tonight's ambiance lends itself to emotional satisfaction.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You needn't go to great expense to express your feelings. A good airing of your opinions is all that's necessary Blithely avoid recrimination.

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar ch 20): Continued tact turns the tide for the better Personal matters interrupt even serious business Leave communication channels open for unexpected messages.

Sometimes it pays to go after overtricks in match-point play On other occasions declarer should give the hand the same play that he would in rubber bridge. The test is to compare the possible results at your contract with those that will be attained by other declarers

South saw that if the heart finesse was on he would make six diamonds He would win the first trick with the queen of hearts, knock out the ace of trumps, draw trumps, discard two of dummy's spades on the long clubs and eventually ruff his jack of spaes in dummy

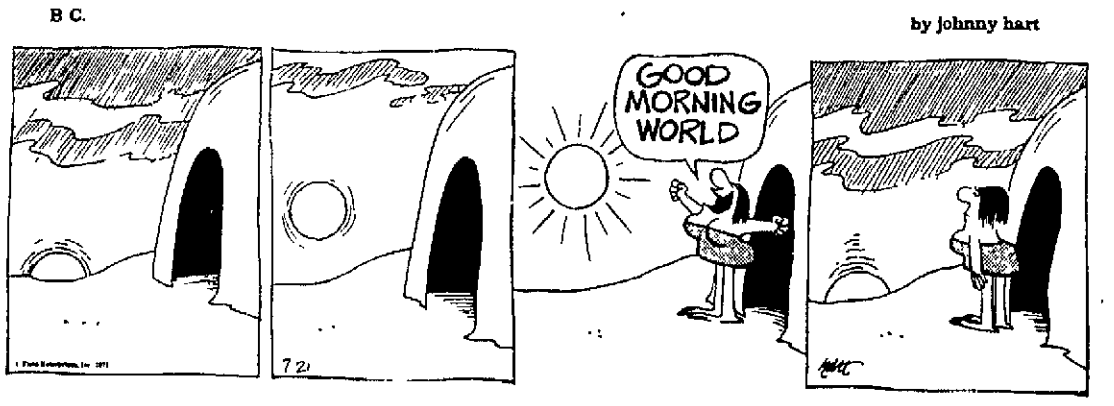

South also saw that irrespective of where the heart and spade kings were located, North could make at least four notrump

Therefore, South reasoned that his only chance for any match points at all would be to play safe for five diamonds and beat anyone who reached six and found the heart finesse wrong

So South called for dummy's ace of hearts, went after trumps and made his contract right on the nose It didn't do him much good, but at least it worked out better than finessing the heart, losing the spade finesse if East shifted to a spade and winding up in the ash can

By Arnold Sawislak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — This observer usually is the last to notice those "little noticed but highly significant" items that are the stock and trade of punditry. But this time we've got one of those prize sleepers by the ear. To wit:Section 12 of the report of the Committee On Rules of the 1976 Democratic national convention adopted with not much argument last week in Madison Square Garden. The section adds nine new words to Article X of the Demovratic Charter. The practical effect of these words could be to revive the party's famous quota system feud, a controversy that for several years had Democrats spending more energy arguing with each other than campaigning against the Republicans. The background is as follows: Through 1960, the delegates chosen for Democratic national conventions were mostly white, middle-aged male Anglo-Saxons. Party reformers managed to get the rules changed for 1972 to require state parties to give delegate seats to "traditionally under-represented" groups. Many states did this by using census data to determine what percentage of seats should go to women, blacks and young people. This method of distributing delegate seats became known as "quotas," and after the Democrats absorbed a monumental whipping, took at least part of the rap for the party's troubles. After 1972, the party excorcised "quotas" and substituted "affirmative action." This required state parties to conduct active recruiting campaigns for women, black and youth delegates, but imposed no tests of numbers. This seemed to satisfy everyone until the returns came in from delegate selection for the 1976 national convention. Women, who make up more than half of the population, got only 34 per cent of the delegates, down 4 per cent from 1972. Blacks dropped from 15 to 11 per cent, youths from 21 to 14 per cent.

Led by the blacks, the "traditionally under-represented groups" came back for redress. They knew that quotas, now specifically banned in party law, could not be reinstated. So they went for changes in affirmative action. The nine words added to the Democratic Charter's affirmative action section would require plans "with specific goals and timetables for achieving results."

The sponsors of the change in Article X assured the Rules Committee that the new words in no way would bring back quotas. The committee responded with a unanimous vote of approval for the change.

In practical terms, the sponsors will be right only if the Democrats retain their unity through the campaign and regain the presidency. Even though the change in the Charter could have no effect on the campaign this year nor on delegate selection until the mid-term convention of 1978, it doubtless will be discovered to be "hidden quotas" and share the blame if the party fares badly in 1976. That may not make sense, but particularly in politics, logic is the orphan of defeat.

Window On Asia

Carter Studied

TOKYO (UPI)— Japanese government leaders, already preoccupied with political uncertainty resulting from the Lockheed scandal, will have even more homework now that Jimmy Carter has been nominated as the Democratic presidential candidate.

The former Georgia governor was virtually unknown until news reports about him began pouring into Japan in recent months.

Now, however, foreign ministry officials are reported to be busy collecting information on Carter and one subject they are no doubt vigorously dwelling upon is Carter's foreign policy, especially relating to U.S-Japan relations. Carter has expressed a desire to have closer relations between the two nations but officials here are not sure what "closer relations" will mean. Presumably, they are hoping he will elaborate on the subject before the November elections.

Talks Stalled

MANILA (UPI)— Negotiations between the United States and the Philippines on a new treaty to govern the last two major military bases used by the United States in post-Vietnam Southeast Asia are not progressing as fast as expected.

The main issues under discussion include Philippine demands for full sovereignty over the bases, appointment of a Filipino base commander, sole criminal jurisdiction over GI's, reduction of the lease period from 25 to five years and a billion-dollar rent-aid package for continued use of the installations similar to concessions given to Spain and Turkey.

After three weeks of closed-door talks, both sides are reported still far from their hoped-for timetable of concluding a common draft by the end of July so it can be ready for signing during Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's expected Manila visit in early August.

Nixes Jets

SINGAPORE (UPI)— The Singapore government has quietly given up plans to buy a squadron of supersonic jet interceptors because of the estimated $100 million price

For the past year Singapore had been weighing the merits of the American F4 Phantom, the British Jaguar and the French Mirage.

Instead, Singapore is now expected to buy a squadron of American-made helicopters for lifting troops and artilltery at an estimated cost of $20 million.
